U. S. APPLAUDS CHICAGO'S WAR TO BANISH CRIME

Criminal Class Now Shuns City.

This is the sixth of a series of stories concerned with the interests of this city. Its text is "Make Chicago the First City in the World."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago's battle against crime and the results accomplished are now the wonder of the criminologists. The crime curve has shot downwards at a rapid rate. Professional criminals, gangsters, racketeers, the big hoods of the underworld, now mark the city on their maps as a "hot spot," and Chicago is now rated as one of the safest of cities in which to live, work and do business.

Sixteen years ago the Chicago Crime commission, first of its kind in America, started its work of rousing the old "I Will" spirit.

Today the various law enforcement agencies are working at top speed.

Officials Work Together.

There is close teamwork between the judges of the courts, Mayor Edward J. Kelly, Police Commissioner James P. Allman and the police force, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, Sheriff John Toman, Gov. Henry Horner and Attorney General Otto Kerner. They are acting in concert in a way never before seen in Chicago and meaning has been written into the old cry, "Crime Is on the Go."

Frontier style, Chicago's method has been to drag crime into the open where it can be fought. Where many other cities suppressed much local crime news, Chicago gave it headline publicity. Now some cities which were fond of calling Chicago the "crime capital" are studying methods used here.

The work of the crime commission under the battling 82 year old Frank J. Loesch and Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin was real inspiration for the recent national crime conference in Washington.

Aroused by Court Killing.

Tremendous momentum came soon after Aug. 1, 1933, when John Scheck, 20 year old criminal on trial for the murder of a bank cashier, murdered Policeman John Sevick in Judge Charles P. Molthrop's court. A revolver had been smuggled to Scheck, who made a dash for liberty.

Public sentiment was so aroused that Judge John Prystalski, then chief justice of the Criminal court, called for a crime war. Judges who had gone on vacation fishing trips, leaving the Criminal court almost unmanned, were called back to work. Other judges such as Kickham Scanlan and Ross C. Hall of the Appellate court were asked to volunteer.

Soon the courts were running full blast in summer with ten judges.

Bargaining Is Halted.

Bargaining with a criminal to plead guilty in return for minor sentences was stopped. Two weeks after the crime war opened three killers, including Scheck, were under death sentence.

Citizens on jury service fell into line and the 199 year penalty was invented to prevent possible parole of a murderer. A prisoner has to serve one-third of his sentence before he is eligible for parole.

Repeal of prohibition broke up organized crime by taking the big bootleg money from the gangsters. Gang murders have become almost nil. It became easy to push gang leaders around because they had no money, and the town was so hot that politicians dared not front for them. The political "fix" began to disappear. Speedy justice ended the kidnaping racket.

Cut Dockets Swiftly.

State's Attorney Courtney leaped in, while the judges cut down the piled up cases. In October, 1933, the criminal dockets had 1,145 cases. Last week they held 375. In 1919, when the crime commission started, there were 3,000.

Nearly one-half the crime cases are now tried within 30 days after indictment. One old dictum is that swift and sure justice is the greatest crime deterrent. Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan is still speeding up the system.

Commenting on the crime battle, Mr. Chamberlin says, "Chicago is now the Newgate instead of the Mecca for criminals." Newgate being a famous old London prison.

Weeping, Betty Gow Defends Self

DEFIES EFFORTS TO LINK HER TO BABY THEFT

Tells Frantic Hunt for Child.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The ladder used in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby was brought before the jury this afternoon. The state and defense in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, for the murder of the child, immediately engaged in a bitter and exciting contest over its admissibility as evidence.

The outcome still was uncertain as court adjourned. One of the most important phases of the state's case rests on admission of the ladder as an exhibit. Experts are ready to testify that the ladder was built with lumber from the attic in Hauptmann's home and thus connect him directly with the abduction.

Bessie Gow Day's Feature.

The other feature of the day was the testimony of Betty Gow, Scotch nurse who prefers to be called "Bessie." In nearly three hours on the witness stand the 30 year old woman who discovered the disappearance of the child on the night of March 1, 1932, thrilled the crowded courtroom.

Once Miss Gow seemed on the verge of a breakdown as she described the moment when she entered the nursery to find the infant gone. Again her eyes flashed angrily as she denied that she had "planted" the thumb guard as evidence on the grounds of the Lindbergh estate. The thumb guard had been worn by the baby on the night of the kidnaping

Miss Gow was pert as she sparred with her cross-examiner. He was the chief defense counsel, Edward J. Reilly. At the end she half-fainted, was assisted from the courtroom, did faint but came back half an hour later, smiling brightly.

Nurse Appears Victor.

It was a performance worthy of a great actress, although there were few to question her sincerity. The consensus in the courtroom along the press rows was that Attorney Reilly had failed signally in his announced intention of "tearing the witness to pieces."

Whereas Anne Morrow Lindbergh mother of the baby, quietly had restrained her evident grief in her testimony, the versatile Betty faltered, gulped, seemed about to collapse as she described her entrance into the nursery on the night of the crime.

"I bent over the crib," she said. "I could not hear the baby breathing. I felt for him. He was not there."

"THEY'VE STOLEN BABY"

Col. Lindbergh watched Miss Gow gravely as she repeated his comment to his wife after they had ascertained that the child was, indeed, not in the house. That comment was:

"Anne, they've stolen our baby."

Col. Lindbergh at that moment went out into the night carrying his rifle on a search in which he found muddy footprints, a ladder, and a chisel, but nothing else.

Hauptmann, appearing a little thinner each day to the scrutinizing eyes of the crowd, the hollows in his cheeks a little more shadowy, listened grimly. His wife sniffled into a handkerchief.

Betty forgot her woe, however, when the questioning began to involve Henry [Red] Johnson, her sailor sweetheart, of whom she admitted she was fond, and to whom she referred as a "very nice young man." She admitted Johnson telephoned her at Hopewell, the home of the Lindberghs, on the night of the kidnaping but she was most indignant at an implication by the defense that Johnson was in Hopewell at the time of the call.

Betty Admits She's Smart.

When Attorney Reilly asked her if she had not herself dropped the baby's thumb guard where she could find it later, about a month after the kidnaping, she was most indignant and answered in tones almost as loud as his.

"You're a very smart young woman, aren't you?" asked the attorney, wiping his perspiring brow, and Betty

RAIN TO CHASE 2 DAY FOG WHICH DISRUPTS TRAFIC

Belief that the dense fog which at midnight had obscured Chicago and the middle west for two days would lift some time today was expressed last night by Forecaster W. P. Day. A drizzling rain began falling late last night which, Mr. Day said, would dissipate the fog, and a northwest wind during the day is likely to speed the process. The rain probably will turn to snow with colder weather by night.

Since Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock not a plane has arrived or taken off at the Chicago airport. All air travel ceased from Omaha to Toledo, and from Indianapolis to Minneapolis. Airport officials last night termed the fog "zero-zero," a designation meaning "no ceiling, no visibility."

While the fog abated somewhat during the day, at dusk it suddenly began billowing through city streets. During the night motorists nosed along at a snail's pace, but by care they avoided serious accidents. Country roads bore little trafic.

Although the central west was the area most affected, Mr. Day pointed out that New York and other localities with wide snow coverage had fog too when the warm moist air from the south encountered that above the cold snow.

EVANSTON SENDS A MODEL BUDGET TO WHITE HOUSE

The Evanston city council voted last night to send President Roosevelt a copy of the suburb's balanced budget as a model for the federal government. The action was taken when Ald. Herbert Simpson of the Sixth ward directed the council's attention to Evanston's policy of spending within its means, and contrasted the federal budget sent to congress yesterday.

"The government too would have a balanced budget instead of being billions in the red if it followed Evanston's good example," said Mayor Bartlett. "I suggest that Ald. Simpson send a copy of our budget to the President." The council agreed unanimously.

Evanston's budget calls for expenditures of $1,226,136.

Mother Asks $51,910 Yr. to Care for Gloria

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, widow of Reginald C. Vanderbilt, will require $51,910 during the coming year for the maintenance, support, and education of her daughter and herself, it was stipulated today.

Her counsel, Nathan Burkan, submitted her budget to George W. Wickersham and Thomas B. Gilchrist, legal guardians of the child's property.

Mrs. Vanderbilt recently was granted "split" custody of her child, Gloria, by order of Justice John F. Carew. Main custody was given to the child's aunt, Mrs. Mary Payne Whitney, while the mother was granted custody over week-ends, the month of July and the holidays.

Expenses $40,286 in 1934.

The court last year approved expenditures of $40,286.81 for the year ending Dec. 31, last. Mrs. Vanderbilt submitted bills amounting to $5,805.69, which she said were incurred last December and not included in her allowance for the year.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's proposed budget includes the following expenses:

Rent, 49 East 72d street	$ 6,000
Electricity, $50 month	600
Steam, 6 months, $150 month	900
Gas, $60 month	720
Telephone, $60 month	720
Repairs for residence	300
Food, $500 month	6,000
Expenses for help include:
Governess, $125 month	1,500
Chauffeur, $160 month	1,920
Butler, $125 month	1,500
Cook, $100 month	1,200
Kitchen maid, $75 month	900
Housemaid, $75 month	900
Laundress, $50 month	600
Houseman, $75 month	900
Maintaining automobile and gas, $100 per month	1,200
Automobile insurance	300
Other items include clothing and furs	2,600
Physician	1,500
Music lessons, $100 month	1,200
Drugs and toilet articles	550
Books, toys, etc.	500
Miscellaneous items	2,000
Personal allowance to Mrs. Vanderbilt, $1,000 per month	12,000
Protection of child	3,600

Asks Pay for Guards.

In asking for the allowance for the child's protection Mrs. Vanderbilt said she would require guards or detectives 44 week-ends or 88 days, plus Christmas day, which would make 89 days, and she would require two men a day at the rate of $15 a day each, and that during the month of July she would require two men at all times, costing $930.

STEAMER SENDS 'S O S' FOR MINISTER AND MARRIAGE LICENSE

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Through the fog over quarantine today the radio ticked an SOS, but it did not tell of a floundering ship. It was from Dan Cupid, aboard the liner Gerolstein.

The message, from the Gerolstein's skipper, was addressed to John J. Dwyer, passenger trafic manager of the Arnold Bernstein Line. "Send a minister and a marriage license to Ellis Island," it said.

The skipper was acting on behalf of Sven du Rietz, Stockholm representative of the Auburn Automobile company, and Miss Helen Falk, passengers on the Gerolstein. They met on the voyage over from Antwerp and decided to be married when the ship touched New York.

NUDE HEROINE IN FILM 'ECSTASY' BRINGS U. S. BAN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—An order prohibiting the importation of the motion picture "Ecstasy" into the United States was issued today by Secretary Morgenthau.

This film play was of Czechoslovakian production and was held by some authorities to be indecent, owing to the fact that the heroine appears in one scene in the nude.

A private showing was conducted here, Mrs. Morgenthau attending. Secretary Morgenthau did not see the picture. The play had been denounced by the pope and by Fritz Mandel, millionaire husband of the heroine.

MAN, 78, SEIZED AS HE LEAPS OFF 21 STORY ROOF

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Two alert office workers in a building at 150 Nassau street, prevented a would-be suicide from leaping from the roof of the building, twenty-one stories high, to a courtyard below today.

John C. Jurgens, 78, who later said he "had no money and no family," poised himself for the leap for fully ten minutes, standing outside a guard rail around the roof.

From a top floor window opposite Edward Piering and William Witten saw Jurgens and started for the roof together. Jurgens, they said, jumped as they approached, but they managed to grasp his clothing. He landed on a fire exit one flight below.

Realty Valued at 750 Million Ordered Freed

Rulings which are expected to speed the lifting of receiverships from 750 million dollars' worth of Cook county real estate were made yesterday in the state and federal courts. The judges in both instances severely criticized dilatory and costly methods followed by receivers.

The eight judges of the equity branches of Superior and Circuit courts, acting in concert, issued an order to speed up foreclosure proceedings so that a bona fide sale of the property involved may be made in from four to six hours after the foreclosure petition has been filed.

At about the same time the United States Circuit Court of Appeals handed down a decision commanding the dismissal of all extensions or reorganization petitions under the amended bankruptcy act unless a workable plan of reorganization, fair to all creditors, is promptly submitted to the District court. All costs should be assessed against the petitioners, the judges added, if such submission of plan is not made.

Lessen Profits of Receivers.

The two decisions were regarded by realty experts as dovetailing to lessen the power and diminish the profits of receivers and trustees. The courts spoke plainly on this subject.

After relating that some properties were still in receivers' or trustees' hands although proceedings were instituted as far back as 1926, the Circuit and Superior court judges said: ". . . Receivers and trustees have been retained in the possession of property for a period of time far beyond that contemplated by law. This in turn has placed additional and unnecessary burdens upon litigants of all classes.

"It is apparent that the tying up in litigation of real estate of value of almost three-quarters of a billion dollars prevents the free barter, exchange, sale and improvement of a substantial part of the wealth of this community. . . . Bond investors are deprived not only of their interest but of the principal which is due them.

"The needless prolongation of foreclosure litigation not only tends to destroy the value of the property sought to be foreclosed, but also tends to destroy to a substantial degree the value of other real estate not in litigation."

Opinion of Federal Court.

In their discussion of the actions of receivers, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals said:

"In equity receiverships, on occasions, the jurisdiction of a court was invoked and a receiver appointed where the mortgage vastly exceeded the value of the property and there was no equity of redemption, and yet the receivership was continued for three, four and even five years with the expenses of the receivership consuming the entire revenue and leaving the bondholders in a worse position each year."

Judges Stanley Klarkowski and Benjamin Epstein of the Circuit court took the lead in formulating the new and stricter rules for foreclosure and Judge William J. Lindsay, chief of the equity division of the Superior court, obtained the coöperation of his colleagues. The others who signed the order are Judge Prystalski and George Fred Rush of the Circuit court and Judges John P. McGoorty,

OIL RULING HITS GRANT OF POWER TO PRESIDENT

Overthrows Part of Petroleum Code.

Budget Requested

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(Special.) President Roosevelt's budget message was given to congress today. It calls for the expenditure of 8½ billions for the fiscal year beginning on July 1. This may reach 10 billions. The deficit will be $4,869,000,000 this fiscal year and $4,528,000,000 next. The national debt will total $31,000,000,000 at the close of this fiscal year and $34,239,000,000 at the end of next year. The presidential proposals were received with mingled emotions and are certain to be the subject of a bitter fight in congress. Details on page 6.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today knocked the bottom out of the NRA and severely jolted the whole structure of the New Deal.

It likewise put the brakes on the development of a dictatorship in the United States.

In a decision concurred in by eight of its nine members, the court held the President's prohibition of interstate transportation of oil exceeding state production restrictions an unconstitutional delegation of legislative authority by congress to the executive.

Congress Power Exceeded.

Congress, the court ruled, does not possess the authority to delegate to the President or to any other person the power to make laws.

While the decision affects specifically only that part of the National Industrial Recovery act relating to oil production, it is apparent that by implication it is of far reaching import. Under the supposed authority of the NRA, the President and NRA administrators have issued 3,000 orders having the effect of laws which prohibit 5,000 trade practices.

Under the NRA 718 codes of fair competition have been established applying to 98 per cent of American industry.

To the extent that these orders partake of the same unconstitutional delegation of authority to make laws as obtains in the case of oil production they are invalid under the decision of the court.

The sweeping opinion illuminates the attitude of the court toward the departures from the letter and spirit of the constitution inherent in the objectives of the New Dealers bent upon the creation of a new social and economic order.

Decision Stuns New Dealers.

It indicates that in subsequent decisions of cases now reaching the court little is likely to be left of the NRA and perhaps of the AAA, the TVA, and other institutions of the New Deal.

New Dealers were flabbergasted and anti-New Dealers heartened by the decision. The White House said there would be no comment from the President tonight. In the opinion of some of the New Dealers the administration would make an effort to salvage the NRA by procuring legislation curing the defects in the recovery act which the court found fatal to presidential regulation of oil transportation.

Board to Be Abolished.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who is also oil administrator, said that the decision does not affect the oil code "that gives us the authority to determine production." He opined the constitutionality of the oil code would be tested next. Mr. Ickes said the immediate effect of the decision would be the abolition of the oil tender board set up in east Texas under NRA to curtail "hot" oil production.

The court made short work of the arguments that have been advanced to justify the clothing of the President with broad dictatorial powers. That the President "had acted and will act for what he believes to be the public good," said the court, does not make a delegation of power constitutional. If this delegation of power were valid there would be no denial of the conferring of similar prerogatives in other fields of legislation.

The delegation of power by congress is necessary, the court holds, but there are well defined limitations thereto which must be observed "if our constitutional system is to be maintained." The court has held repeatedly that congress may not invest the President "with the power of legislation."

The court stressed the fact that NRA and section 9 [c] thereof declare no policy with respect to oil, set up no standards and lay down no rules.

"If section 9 [c] were held valid," said the court, "it would be idle to pretend that anything would be left of limitations upon the power of the congress to delegate its lawmaking function. The reasoning of the many decisions we have reviewed would be made vacuous and their distinctions nugatory. Instead of performing its lawmaking function the congress could at will and as to such subjects as it chooses transfer that function to the President or other officer or to an administrative body. The question is not of the intrinsic importance of the particular statute before us, but of the constitutional processes of legislation which are an essential part of our system of government."

The decision was written and delivered by Chief Justice Hughes. The only dissent was by Associate Justice Cardozo who did not read his opinion but merely filed it.

Court Session Impressive.

The session of the court in which the reading of more than a dozen opinions preceded the climactic NRA oil code case and built up a dramatic suspense therefore, was the most impressive within the memory of the oldest members of the bar.

From the moment court opened, after a three weeks' recess, at noon, until Chief Justice Hughes started reading his opinion at 2:30 p. m., the lawyers, newspaper correspondents and other spectators who filled every seat in the small, half circular chamber were kept in the dark as to when and whether that momentous decision would come down.

In accordance with custom the associate justices read their opinions in other cases first, and finally at 1:30 Chief Justice Hughes began reading an opinion which turned out to be a minor insurance case.

The chief justice then announced a suspension of the reading of opinions for the admission of new members to the bar. Half a dozen were admitted and the chief justice announced a recess until 2:30. This obviously was to delay publication of the decision until the close of the New York stock market.

Puts End to Suspense.

Promptly upon reopening at 2:30 the chief justice put an end to the suspense by announcing he was to deliver the opinion in the "Panama Refining company and Amazon Petroleum corporation" cases.

The chief justice spoke in loud, clear, and impressive tones that commanded absolute silence for the full fifty-five minutes he required to read the opinion. Sitting in the center of the row of judges, his appearance was Olympian, suggesting the mythological god Jupiter presiding over the world of men and events while flanked by the lesser gods. The chief justice, with his lofty brow and handsome whiskers, has easily the most distinguished presence on that august bench.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Panama Refining company and the Amazon Petroleum corporation, which sought to restrain enforcement of the President's orders on the transportation of oil produced in east Texas.

Richberg Defends Codes.

Donald R. Richberg, director of the national executive council, while on leave of absence as general counsel of the NRA, held that the Supreme court's opinion would not necessarily affect other sections of the NIRA or the codes of fair competition imposed under them.

"Without assuming what the opinion of the court may be as to the validity of a code of fair competition," said Richberg, "it is well to call attention to the fact that the court has not, even by implication, cast a doubt upon the validity of codes of fair competition.

"In fact, the court expressly stated: 'We express no opinion as to the interpretation or validity of the provisions of the petroleum code.'"

Richberg here referred to that part of the opinion which dealt with article 3, section 4 of the code. The court did not rule upon this section because it had been inadvertently eliminated in revising the code and was nonexistent when this suit originated.

DISCUSSES SECTION 9

Addressing itself to section 9 [C] of the National Industrial Recovery act the court said:

"Section 9 [C] is assailed upon the ground that it is an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. The section purports to authorize the President to pass a prohibitory law. The subject to which this authority relates is defined. It is the transportation in interstate and foreign commerce of petroleum and petroleum products which are produced or withdrawn from storage in excess of the amount permitted by state authority.

"Assuming for the present purpose, without deciding, that the congress has power to interdict the transportation of that excess in interstate and foreign commerce, the question whether that transportation shall be prohibited by law is obviously one of legislative policy. Accordingly, we look to the statute to see whether the congress has declared a policy with respect to that subject; whether the congress has set up a standard for the President's action; whether the congress has required any findings by the President in the exercise of the authority to enact the prohibition.

Brief and Unambiguous.

"Section 9 [C] is brief and unambiguous. It does not attempt to control the production of petroleum and petroleum products within a state. It does not seek to lay down rules for the guidance of state legislatures or state officers.

"It leaves to the states and to their constituted authorities the determination of what production shall be permitted. It does not qualify the President's authority by reference to the basis, or extent, of the state's limitation of production.

"Section 9 [C] does not state whether, or in what circumstances or under what conditions, the President is to prohibit the transportation of the amount of petroleum or petroleum products produced in excess of the state's permission. It establishes no criterion to govern the President's course. It does not require any finding by the President as a condition of his action.

"The congress in section 9 [C] thus declares no policy as to the transportation of the excess production. So far as this section is concerned, it gives to the President an unlimited authority to determine the policy and to lay down the prohibition, or not to lay it down, as he may see fit. And disobedience to his order is made a crime punishable by fine and imprisonment.

"We examine the context to ascertain if it furnishes a declaration of policy or a standard of action which can be deemed to relate to the subject of section 9 [C] and thus to imply what is not there expressed. It is important to note that section 9 is headed 'Oil regulation,'—that is, section 9 is the part of the National Industrial Recovery act which particularly deals with that subject matter. But the other provisions of section 9 afford no ground for implying a limitation of the broad grant of authority in section 9 [C].

"Thus section 9 [A] authorizes the President to initiate before the interstate commerce commission 'proceedings necessary to prescribe regulations to control the operations of oil pipe lines and to fix reasonable compensatory rates for the transportation of petroleum and its products by pipe lines' and that the interstate commerce commission is to grant preference 'to the hearings and determination of such cases.'

"Section 9 [B] authorizes the President to 'institute proceedings' to divorce from any holding company any pipe line company controlled by such holding company which pipe line company by unfair practices or by exorbitant rates in the transportation of petroleum or its products tends to create a monopoly. It will be observed that each of these provisions contains restrictive clauses as to their respective subjects. Neither relates to the subject of section 9 [C].

Declaration of Policy.

"We turn to the other provisions of Title I. of the act. The first section is a 'declaration of policy.' It declares that a national emergency exists 'which is productive of widespread unemployment and disorganization of industry, which burdens interstate and foreign commerce, affects public welfare, and undermines the standards of living of the American people.'

"It is declared to be the policy of congress 'to remove obstructions to the free flow of interstate and foreign commerce which tend to diminish the amount thereof'; 'to provide for the general welfare by promoting the organization of industry for the purpose of cooperative action abong trade groups'; 'to induce and maintain united action of labor and management under adequate governmental sanctions and supervision'; 'to eliminate unfair competition practices, to promote the fullest possible utilization of the present productive capacity of industries, to avoid undue restriction of production [except as may be temporarily required], to increase the consumption of industrial and agricultural products by increasing purchasing power, to reduce and relieve unemployment, to improve standards of labor, and otherwise to rehabilitate industry and to conserve natural resources.'

POINTS TO OMISSIONS

"This general outline of policy contains nothing as to the circumstances or conditions in which transportation of petroleum or petroleum products should be prohibited—nothing as to the policy of prohibiting, or not prohibiting, the transportation of production exceeding what the state allows. The general policy declared is 'to remove obstructions to the free flow of interstate and foreign commerce.' As to production, the section lays down no policy of limitation. It favors the fullest possible utilization of the present productive capacity of industries.

"It speaks, parenthetically, of a possible temporary restriction of production, but of what, or in what circumstances, it gives no suggestion. The section also speaks in general terms of the conservation of natural resources, but it prescribes no policy for the achievement of that end. It is manifest that this broad outline is simply an introduction of the act, leaving the legislative policy as to particular subjects to be declared and defined, if at all, by the subsequent sections.

Excesses Not Forbidden.

"It is no answer to insist that deleterious consequences follow the transportation of 'hot oil'—oil exceeding state allowances. The congress did not prohibit that transportation. The congress did not undertake to say that the transportation of 'hot oil' was injurious. The congress did not say that transportation of that oil was 'unfair competition.' The congress did not declare in what circumstances that transportation should be forbidden, or require the President to make any determination as to any facts or circumstances.

"Among the numerous and diverse objectives broadly stated, the President was not required to choose. The President was not required to ascertain and proclaim the conditions prevailing in the industry which made the prohibition necessary. The congress left the matter to the President without standard or rule, to be dealt with as he pleased. The effort by ingenious and diligent construction to supply a criterion still permits such a breadth of authorized action as essentially to commit to the President the functions of a legislature rather than those of an executive or administrative officer executing a declared legislative policy. We find nothing in section 1 which limits or controls the authority conferred by section 9 [C].

Administration Agencies.

"We pass to the other sections of the act. Section 2 relates to administrative agencies which may be constituted. Section 3 provides for the approval by the President of 'codes' for trades or industries. These are to be codes of 'fair competition' and the authority is based up certain express conditions which require findings by the President.

"Action under section 9 [C] is not made to depend on the formulation of a code under section 3. In fact, the President's action under section 9 [C] was taken more than a month before the petroleum code was approved. Subdivision [E] of section 3 authorizes the President, on his own motion or upon complaint, as stated, in case any article is being imported into the United States 'in substantial quantities or increasing ratio to domestic production of any competitive article,' under such conditions as to endanger the maintenance of a code or agreement under Title I., to cause an immediate investigation by the tarif commission.

The authority of the President to act, after such investigation, is conditioned upon a finding by him of the existence of the underlying facts, and he may permit entry of the articles concerned upon such conditions and with such limitations as he shall find it necessary to prescribe in order that the entry shall not tend to render the code or agreement ineffective.

Agreements and Licenses.

"Section 4 relates to agreements and licenses for the purposes stated. Section 5 refers to the application of the anti-trust laws. Sections 6 and 7 impose limitations upon the application of Title I., bearing upon trade associations and other organizations and upon the relations between employers and employés. Section 8 contains provisions with respect to the application of the Agricultural Adjustment act of May 12, 1933.

"None of these provisions can be deemed to prescribe any limitation of the grant of authority in section 9 [C].

"The question whether such a delegation of legislative power is permitted by the constitution is not answered by the argument that it should be assumed that the President has acted, and will act, for what he believes to be the public good. The point is not one of motives but of constitutional authority, for which the best of motives is not a substitute. While the present controversy relates to a delegation to the President, the basic question has a much wider application.

"If the congress can make a grant of legislative authority of the sort attempted by section 9 [C], we find nothing in the constitution which restricts the congress to the selection of the President as grantee. The congress may vest the power in the officer of its choice or in a board or commission such as it may select or create for the purpose. Nor, with respect to such a delegation, is the question concerned merely with the transportation of oil, or of oil produced in excess of what the state may allow.

ABDICATION OF POWER

"If legislative power may thus be vested in the President, or other grantee, as to that excess of production, we see no reason to doubt that it may similarly be vested with respect to the transportation of oil without reference to the state's requirements. That reference simply defines the subject of the prohibition which the President is authorized to enact, or not to enact, as he pleases.

"And if that legislative power may be given to the President or other grantee, it would seem to follow that such power may similarly be conferred with respect to the transportation of other commodities in interstate commerce, with or without reference to state action, thus giving to the grantee of the power the determination of what is a wise policy as to that transportation, and authority to permit or prohibit it, as the person, or board or commission, so chosen, may think desirable. In that view, there would appear to be no ground for denying a similar prerogative of delegation with respect to other subjects of legislation.

"The constitution provides that 'all legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States, which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives,' article 1, section 1. And the congress is empowered 'to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution' its general powers, article 1, section 8, paragraph 18. The congress manifestly is not permitted to abdicate, or to transfer to others, the essential legislative functions with which it is thus vested.

Holds Limitations Essential.

"Undoubtedly legislation must often be adapted to complex conditions involving a host of details with which the national legislature cannot deal directly. The constitution has never been regarded as denying to the congress the necessary resources of flexibility and practicality, which will enable it to perform its function in laying down policies and establishing standards, while leaving to selected instrumentalities the making of subordinate rules within prescribed limits and the determination of facts to which the policy as declared by the legislature is to apply.

"Without capacity to give authorizations of that sort we should have the anomaly of a legislative power which in many circumstances calling for its exertion would be but a futility. But the constant recognition of the necessity, and validity of such provisions, and the wide range of administrative authority which has been developed by means of them, cannot be allowed to obscure the limitations of the authority to delegate, if our constitutional system is to be maintained.

Recalls Wartime Acts.

"The court has had frequent occasion to refer to these limitations and to review the course of congressional action. At the very outset, amid the disturbances due to war in Europe, when the national safety was imperilled and our neutrality was disregarded, the congress passed a series of acts, as a part of which the President was authorized, in stated circumstances, to lay and revoke embargoes, to give permits for the exportation of arms and military stores, to remit and discontinue the restraints and prohibitions imposed by acts suspending commercial intercourse with certain countries, and to permit or interdict the entrance into waters of the United States of armed vessels belonging to foreign nations.

"These early acts were not the subject of judicial decision and, apart from that, they afford no adequate basis for a conclusion that the congress assumed that it possessed an unqualified power of delegation. They were inspired by the vexations of American commerce through the hostile enterprises of the belligerent powers, they were directed to the effective execution of policies repeatedly declared by the congress, and they confided to the President, for the purposes and under the conditions stated, an authority which was cognate to the conduct by him of the foreign relations of the government.

JUSTICE CARDOZO.

PROCLAMATION OF 1810

"The first case relating to an authorization of this description was that of the brig Aurora, 7 Cranch, 382. The cargo of that vessel had been condemned as having been imported from Great Britain in violation of the nonintercourse act of March 1, 1809 [2 stat., 528]. The act expired on May 1, 1810, when congress passed another act, [2, stat., 605, 606], providing that in case either Great Britain or France, before March 3, 1811, 'shall . . . so revoke or modify her edicts as that they shall cease to violate the neutral commerce of the United States, which fact the President of the United States shall declare by proclamation, and if the other nation shall not within three months thereafter so revoke or modify her edicts in like manner, with respect to that nation, as stated, the provisions of the act of 1809, after three months from that proclamation, 'shall . . . be revived and have full force and effect.'

"On Nov. 2, 1810, the President issued his proclamation declaring that France had so revoked or modified her edicts, and it was contended that the provisions of the act of 1809, as to the cargo in question, had thus been revived. The court said that it could see no sufficient reason why the legislature should not exercise its discretion in reviving the act of 1809, 'either expressly or conditionally, as their judgment should direct.' The provision of that act declaring 'that it should continue in force to a certain time, and no longer' could not restrict the power of the legislature to extend its operation 'without limitation upon the occurrence of any subsequent combination of events.'

Dependent on President.

"'This was a decision,' said the court in Field vs. Clark, 143 U. S. 649, 683, 'that it was competent for congress to make the revival of an act depend upon the proclamation of the President, showing the ascertainment by him of the fact that the edicts of certain nations had been so revoked or modified that they did not violate the neutral commerce of the United States.'

"In Field vs. Clark, supra, the court applied that ruling to the case of 'the suspension of an act upon a contingency to be ascertained by the President, and made known by his proclamation.' The court was dealing with section 3 of the act of Oct. 1, 1890 [26 Stat. 567, 612].

"That section provided that, 'with a view to secure reciprocal trade' with countries producing certain articles, 'whenever, and so often as the President shall be satisfied' that the government of any country producing them imposed duties or other exactions upon the agricultural or other products of the United States' which, in view of the free list established by the act, the President 'may deem to be reciprocally unequal and unreasonable, he shall have the power and it shall be his duty' to suspend the free introduction of those articles by proclamation to that effect, and that during that suspension the duties specified by the section should be levied. The validity of the provision was challenged as a delegation to the President of legislative power.

"The court reviewed the early acts to which we have referred, as well as later statutes considered to be analogous. While sustaining the provision the court emphatically declared that the principle that 'congress cannot delegate legislative power to the President' is 'universally recognized as vital to the integrity and maintenance of the system of government ordained by the constitution.'"

Finds Act Inconsistent.

The court found that the act before it was not inconsistent with that principle; that it did not "in any real sense invest the President with the power of legislation." As "the suspension was absolutely required when the President ascertained the existence of a particular fact," it could not be said "that in ascertaining that fact and in issuing his proclamation in obedience to the legislative will he exercised the function of making laws." "He was mere agent of the lawmaking department to ascertain and declare the event upon which its expressed will was to take effect." (Id., pp. 692, 693.)

The court referred with approval to the distinction pointed out by the Supreme court of Ohio in Cincinnati, Wilmington, etc., Railroad v. Commissioners (1 Ohio st., 88) between "the delegation of power to make the law, which necessarily involves a discretion as to what it shall be, and conferring authority or discretion as to its execution, to be exercised under and in pursuance of the law.

"Applying that principle, authorizations given by congress to selected instrumentalities for the purpose of ascertaining the existence of facts to which legislation is directed have constantly been sustained. Moreover, the congress may not only give such authorizations to determine specific facts, but may establish primary standards, devolving upon others the duty to carry out the declared legislative policy; that is, as Chief Justice Marshall expressed it, 'to fill up the details' under the general provisions made by the legislature. [Wayman V. Southard, 10; Wheat, 1, 43.]

TEA REGULATION UPHELD

"In Butfield vs. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470, 496, the act of March 2, 1897 [29 Stat. 604, 605] was upheld, which authorized the secretary of the treasury, upon the recommendation of a board of experts, to 'establish uniform standards of purity, quality, and fitness for the consumption of all kinds of teas imported into the United States.'"

The court construed the statute as expressing "the purpose to exclude the lowest grades of tea, whether demonstrably of inferior purity, or unfit for consumption, or presumably so because of their inferior quality." The congress, the court said, thus fixed "a primary standard" and committed to the secretary of the treasury "the mere executive duty to effectuate the legislative policy declared in the statute."

"Congress legislated on the subject as far as was reasonably practicable, and from the necessities of the case was compelled to leave to executive officials the duty of bringing about the result pointed out by the statute." [See Red "C" Oil company vs. North Carolina, 222 U. S. 380, 394.]

"Another notable illustration is that of the authority given to the secretary of war to determine whether bridges and other structures constitute unreasonable obstructions to navigation and to remove such obstructions. [Act of March 3, 1899, section 18, 30, statute 1,153, 1,154.] By that statute the congress declared 'a general rule and imposed upon the secretary of war the duty of ascertaining what particular cases came within the rule,' as thus laid down in Union Bridge company vs. United States, 204 U. S. 364, 386; Monogahela Bridge company vs. United States, 216 U. S. 177, 193; Philadelphia company vs. Stimson, 223 U. S. 605, 638.

Application of Rule.

"Upon this principle rests the authority of the interstate commerce commission, in the execution of the declared policy of the congress in enforcing reasonable rates, in preventing undue preferences and unjust discriminations, in requiring suitable facilities for transportation in interstate commerce, and in exercising other powers held to have been validly conferred. St. L., I. M. & S. Ry. company vs. Taylor, 210 U. S. 281, 287; Intermountain rate cases, 234 U. S. 476, 486; Avent vs. United States, 266 U. S. 127, 130; New York Central Securities company vs. United States, 287 U. S. 12, 24, 25.

"Upon a similar ground the authority given to the President, in appropriate relation to his functions as commander in chief, by the trading with the enemy act as amended by the act of March 28, 1918 [40 statute 460], with respect to the disposition of enemy property, was sustained.

"The determination," said the court, "of the terms of sales of enemy properties in the light of facts and conditions from time to time arising in the progress of war was not the making of a law; it was the application of the general rule laid down by the act. [United States vs. Chemical Foundation, 272 U. S. 1, 12].

Contrives Radio Control.

"The provisions of the radio act of 1927 [44 Stat. 1162, 1163], providing for assignments of frequencies or wave lengths to various stations, afford another instance. In granting licenses, the radio commission is required to act 'as public convenience, interest, or necessity requires.' In construing this provision, the court found that the statute itself declared the policy as to 'equality of radio broadcasting service, both of transmission and of reception,' and that it conferred authority to make allocations and assignments in order to secure, according to stated criteria, an equitable adjustment in the distribution of facilities. The standard setup was not so indefinite 'as to confer an unlimited power.' Radio commission vs. Nelson Brothers Co., 289 U. S. 266, 279, 285.

"So, also, from the beginning of the government, the congress has conferred upon executive officers the power to make regulations—'not for the government of their departments, but for administering the laws which did govern.' United States vs. Grimaud, 220 U. S. 506, 517.

Rules Subordinate.

"Such regulations become, indeed, binding rules of conduct, but they are valid only as subordinate rules and when found to be within the framework of the policy which the legislature has sufficiently defined. In the case of Grimaud, supra, a regulation made by the secretary of agriculture requiring permits for grazing sheep on a forest reserve of lands belonging to the United States was involved. The court referred to the various acts for the establishment and management of forest reservations and the authorization of rules which would 'insure the objects of such reservation,' that is 'to regulate their occupancy and use and to preserve the forests thereon from destruction.'

"The court observed that 'it was impracticable for congress to provide general regulations for these various and varying details of management,' and that, in authorizing the secretary of agriculture to meet local conditions, congress 'was merely conferring administrative functions upon an agent, and not delegating to him legislative power.' [id, pp. 515, 516,] The court quoted with approval the statement of the principle in Field vs. Clark, supra, that the congress cannot delegate legislative power, and upheld the regulation in question as an administrative rule for the appropriate execution of the policy laid down in the statute. See Wayman vs. Southard, supra; interstate commerce commission vs. Goodrich Transit company, 224 U. S. 194, 214, 215; selective draft law cases, 245 U. S. 366 ,389; McKinley vs. United States, 249 U.S.397.

ORDERS AFFECTED

DEFINES CONGRESS POWER

"The applicable considerations were reviewed in Hampton & Co. vs. United States, 276 U. S. 394, where the court dealt with the so-called 'flexible tarif provision' of the act of Sept. 21, 1922 [42 Stat. 858, 941, 942], and with the authority which it conferred upon the President. The court applied the same principle that permitted the congress to exercise its rate making power in interstate commerce, and found that a similar provision was justified for the fixing of customs duties; that is, as the court said, 'if congress shall lay down by legislative act an intelligible principle to which the person or body authorized to fix such rates is directed to conform, such legislative action is not a forbidden delegation of legislative power.

"If it is thought wise to vary the customs duties according to changing conditions of production at home and abroad, it may authorize the chief executive to carry out this purpose with the advisory assistance of a tarif commission appointed under congressional authority.' The court sustained the provision upon the authority of Field vs. Clark, supra, repeating with approval what was there said — that 'what the President was required to do was merely in execution of the act of congress.' [ID pp 409-411.]

Holds Code Exceeds Limits.

"Thus in every case in which the question has been raised, the court has recognized that there are limits of delegation which there is no constitutional authority to transcend. We think that section 9 [C], goes beyond those limits. As to the transportation of oil production in excess of state permission, the congress has declared no policy, has established no standard, has laid down no rule. There is no requirement, no definition of circumstances and conditions in which the transportation is to be allowed or prohibited.

"If seciton 9 [C] were held valid, it would be idle to pretend that anything would be left of limitations upon the power of the congress to delegate its law making function. The reasoning of the many decisions we have reviewed would be made vacuous and their distinctions nugatory. Instead of performing its law making function the congress could at will and as to such subjects as it chooses, transfer that function to the President or other officer or to an administrative body. The question is not of the intrinsic importance of the particular statute before us, but of the constitutional processes of legislation which are an essential part of our system of government.

Cites Another Objection.

"There is another objection to the validity of the prohibition laid down by the executive order under section 9 (C). The executive order contains no finding, no statement of the grounds of the President's action in enacting the prohibition. Both section 9 (C) and the legislative order are in notable contrast with historic practice (as shown by many statutes and proclamations we have cited in the margin) by which declarations of policy are made by the congress and delegations are within the frame work of that policy and have relations to facts and conditions to be found and stated by the President in the appropriate exercise of the delegated authority.

"If it could be said that from the four corners of the statute any possible inference could be drawn of particular circumstances or conditions which were to govern the exercise of the authority conferred, the President could not act validly without having regard to those circumstances and conditions. And findings by him as to the existence of the required basis of his action would be necessary to sustain that action, for otherwise the case would still be one of an unfettered discretion, as the qualification of authority would be ineffectual.

Defines No Standards.

"The point is pertinent in relation to the first section of the National Industrial Recovery act. We have said that the first section is but a general introduction, that it declares no policy and defines no standard with respect to the transportation which is the subject of section 9 [C]. But if from the extremely broad description contained in that section and the widely different matters to which the section refers, it were possible to derive a statement of prerequisites to the President's action under section 9 [C], it would still be necessary for the President to comply with those conditions and to show that compliance as the ground of his prohibition.

"To hold that he is free to select as he chooses from the many and various objects generally described in the first section, and then to act without making any finding with respect to any object that he does select, and the circumstances properly related to that object, would be in effect to make the conditions inoperative and to invest him with an uncontroled legislative power.

MUST SHOW AUTHORITY

"We are not dealing with action which, appropriately belonging to the executive province, is not the subject of judicial review, or with the presumptions attaching to executive action. To repeat, we are concerned with the question of the delegation of legislative power. If the citizen is to be punished for the crime of violating a legislative order of an executive officer, or of a board, or commission, due process of law requires that it shall appear that the order is within the authority of the officer, board, or commission, and, if that authority depends on the determination of fact, those determinations must be shown.

"As the court said in Wichita Railroad and Light company vs. Public Utilities commission, 260 U. S. 48, 59: 'In creating such an administrative agency the legislative, to prevent its being a pure delegation of legislative power, must enjoin upon it a certain course of procedure and certain rules of decision in the performance of its function. It is a wholesome and necessary principle that such an agency must pursue the procedure and rules enjoined and show a substantial compliance therewith to give validity to its action.

"When, therefore, such an administrative agency is required as a condition precedent to an order, to make a finding of facts, the validity of the order must rest upon the needed finding. If it is lacking, the order is ineffective. It is pressed on us that the lack of an express finding may be supplied by implication and by reference to the averments of the petition invoking the action of the commission. We can not agree to this.

"Referring to the ruling in the Wichita case, the court said in Mahler vs. Eby, 264 U. S. 32, 44: 'We held that the order in that case made after a hearing, and ordering a reduction was void for lack of the express finding in the order. We put this conclusion not only on the language of the statute but also on general principles of constitutional government.' We cannot regard the President as immune from the application of these constitutional principles. When the President is invested with legislative authority as the delegate of congress in carrying out a declared policy, he necessarily acts under the constitutional restriction applicable to such a delegation.

Holds Orders Invalid.

"We see no escape from the conclusion that the executive orders of July 11, 1933, and July 14, 1933, and the regulations issued by the secretary of the interior thereunder, are without constitutional authority.

"The decrees of the Circuit Court of Appeals are reversed and the causes are remanded to the District court with direction to modify its decrees in conformity with this opinion so as to grant permanent injunctions, restraining the defendants from enforcing those orders and regulations.

"It is so ordered."

In his dissenting opinion Justice Cardozo said:

"With all that is said in the opinion of the court as to the code of fair competition adopted by the President Aug. 16, 1933, for the governance of the petroleum industry, I am fully in accord.

"I am unable to assent to the conclusion that section 9 [C] of the NIRA, a section delegating to the President a very different power from any that is involved in the regulation of production or in the promulgation of a code, is to be nullified upon the ground that this discretion is too broad or for any other reason.

Point of Difference Narrow.

"My point of difference with the majority of the court is narrow. I concede that to uphold the decree there is need to discover in the terms of the act a standard reasonably clear whereby discretion must be governed. I deny that such a standard is lacking in any respect of the prohibitions permitted by this section which the act with all its reasonable implications is considered as a whole. What the standard is becomes a pivotal inquiry."

Justice Cardozo said, "There has been no grant to the executive of any roving commission to inquire into evils and then upon discovering them, do anything he pleases."

HIGH COURT RULING DEMOLISHES THE NRA, SAYS SENATOR BORAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], noted constitutional authority who has always opposed the NRA, said today that he had not read the Supreme court's opinion concerning code regulation of the oil industry, but understood from what was reported to him that "it completely demolishes the NRA as an unwarranted delegation of legislative power."

"If my understanding of the opinion is correct," said Senator Borah, "it would require the redrafting of the whole act and it could not be redrafted to cover the things it now covers, such as price fixing and production control. It has always been my contention that the act was unconstitutional and I am not surprised by the Supreme court's opinion. If congress can delegate that kind of power to the President they might as well go home and let him run the government!"

STATE NRA LAW IS KNOCKED OUT IN NEW JERSEY

Measure Is Suspended by Acting Governor.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—New Jersey's industrial recovery act and its supplements "shall cease to exist immediately" under the terms of a proclamation issued today by the acting governor, Senate President Clifford R. Powell, a Republican, of Burlington county.

Bitterly denouncing the act as ruining many businesses and raising costs to the consumers, he declared that the emergency it was designed to meet had ended.

Although Mr. Powell had been known as a caustic critic of the state recovery administration, his action came as a surprise to leaders of both parties, here for conferences before the 1935 legislature convenes tomorrow. He said that he had taken it without consultation with the Republican governor elect, Harold G. Hoffman.

Complaints of Duplication.

NRA officials in Washington took the news of Mr. Powell's action calmly. They said that complaints of duplication of assessments and charges on business men in New Jersey had been made despite a working agreement between the state and the NRA reached at a conference last August between Gov. Moore and Gen. Hugh Johnson.

Mr. Powell has been acting governor for a six day interim caused by the resignation on Jan. 2 of the Democratic governor, A. Harry Moore, to enable him to take his seat in the United States senate. He will be succeeded tomorrow by the new senate president, Senator Horace G. Prall, who will act as governor until Mr. Hoffman is inaugurated on Jan. 15.

18 Industries Regulated.

Powell's proclamation automatically put an end to the state recovery administration, which has been regulating eighteen industries under state codes. Mr. Powell specifically canceled all assessments and fees levied under the act and not already paid. The act provided that it should continue in force until July 16, unless terminated by a gubernatorial proclamation declaring an end to the emergency.

The administration has had an annual pay roll of $800,000 for code administrators. It was estimated 500 persons have been employed under it, although this was challenged by persons friendly to the administration, who claim that less than 50 have been employed recently.

Industries regulated included fuel, auto rebuilding, cleaning and dyeing, cloak and suit, goods storage and moving, wholesale and retail grocery, retail lumber, lumber products, building materials and specialties, laundry, automotive maintenance garage, structural steel and iron fabricating, retail rubber tire, retail drug, barber shops, flat glass, beauty shops, and retail meat.

Acts to Aid Business.

Admitting that summary abolition of the SRA would work hardship "in a few cases," and create a certain amount of confusion, Mr. Powell said that nevertheless the general welfare would best be served "by removing the tentacles of the state recovery administration from business."

Inasmuch as the NRA is "in full and complete force and operation," the emergency upon which the state codes were based no longer exists, Mr. Powell said in his proclamation.

"There have been a lot of agencies created to raise prices," he observed. "It's about time we had one for the consumer and lower prices."

STEEL WORKERS TAKE LABOR BODY ORDER TO COURT

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The "employé representatives, general body committee" of the Carnegie Steel company's Duquesne, Pa., plant today filed a petition in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals asking for a review of the national steel labor relations board's order directing an election of employé representative of the plan.

The three-judge Circuit court signed an order allowing the filing of the petition and directed the labor board to file as promptly as possible a transcript of the evidence on which it based its order.

On Dec. 31 the labor board ordered the election on complaint of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers that it, and not the existing committee, should be the one to represent the workers at the plant.

Roselle Grocer Kills His Wife and Ends Own Life

Julius Farney, 41 years old, a grocer of Roselle, Du Page county, last night shot and killed his wife, Velma, 35 years old, and then committed suicide. The bodies were found in their home at Central and Roselle roads by a neighbor, who came to play cards. Sherif Arthur Bennett learned that Mrs. Farney visited relatives in Elgin earlier in the day. When she announced her intention of going out in the evening, Sherif Bennett said, Farney apparently shot her in a jealous rage.

BARN MYSTERY GROWS; BULLET FOUND IN BODY

Murder Victim a Man, Coroner Decides.

With the discovery of a .38 caliber steel jacketed bullet in the charred body found Sunday in a fire swept barn near Ontarioville, Du Page county authorities yesterday turned to Chicago's underworld for a solution of the murder.

When the body was first examined, it was believed to be that of a woman, but Dr. Paul Isherwood, Du Page county coroner, after making an autopsy which revealed the bullet, said yesterday that the victim apparently was a man. Sherif Arthur Bennett said he believed the body was probably that of a gang ride victim.

Wrist Watch Only Clew.

But the man's assassins, who placed his body, clad in gasoline soaked garments in the barn on the farm of Herman Hitzemann, made identification almost impossible. The heat of the incendiary fire which wrecked the barn Saturday night obliterated virtually every trace of possible identification.

A wrist watch was the only clew. Officials of the Elgin Watch company told Sherif Bennett that the watch was one of a number consigned on Feb. 15, 1929, to the Order of Moose which issued them to new members.

Auto Crank in Ruins.

Sherif Bennett also found in the ruins an automobile crank and, nearby, a five gallon can that had contained gasoline.

Hitzeman, owner of an Ontarioville gasoline station, said that neither the crank nor the can had been seen by him when he visited the farm a week ago. The can was of a type no longer manufactured or commonly used.

Sherif Bennett said that two men who described themselves as government agents had joined the investigation in an effort to identify the victim. Department of justice officials in Chicago said, however, that they were "not interested" in the case.

Boy Struck by Snowball; It Costs His Right Eye

Richard Wozniak, 13 years old, 5721 South Hermitage avenue, lost his right eye yesterday when he was struck by an icy snow ball while playing on the grounds of the Henderson school at 5640 South Lincoln street.

Actor's Visit Told

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Arguments on a motion to dismiss the divorce action brought by Edward Fowler against his actress wife, Gladys George, star of the Broadway hit, "Personal Appearance," were heard in the Supreme court today.

Miss George recently gained a considerable amount of publicity when her husband led an expedition into her apartment at 2 a. m. and found her with an actor.

The actress explained she had invited the actor up to have a look at her Persian cat, which was ill.

Edward U. Roth, counsel for Miss George, had entered a motion to dismiss the action on the ground the court had no jurisdiction. Fowler's counsel, Leonard Bisco, then moved to dismiss that motion. The court reserved decision.

SHOUTS OF "HEIL HITLER" VOID BALLOTS IN SAAR

Civil Servants Cast Votes in Plebiscite.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Partisan cries of "Heil Hitler," forbidden at the voting places, today invalidated a high percentage of Saar plebiscite votes cast by civil servants preliminary to the general balloting next day.

In a single precinct where a check was made 20 per cent were cast out because orders had been disobeyed. One elderly woman was denied the right of franchise when she said: "I was born a German and I want to die a German."

The street car employés, who were to have been grouped with the civil servants in the early ballot, declined to vote, deciding to await the general plebiscite. They expressed a fear their votes might be tampered with during the week.

Hundreds Stay Away.

The fear of reprisal by either the Nazis or the adherents of the status quo [league of nations' control] kept hundreds of the civil servants from the polls in the two day preliminary to determine the future of the Saar. They expressed the fear, it was said by league officials, that their vote might be discovered between now and Sunday.

More than 10,000 public employés were supposed to vote today and tomorrow, but indications were that more than half of them would hold their ballot. The results of the two day voting will not be known until next Monday. The ballots will be guarded in safes and mixed with the final votes for counting.

A majority of the Saar's public servants are Nazis, and it was generally believed most of them voted for return of the Saar to Germany.

Polling places were heavily guarded, but no serious disturbances were reported. All outsiders were barred and efforts to break through the lines to see the inner mechanism of the plebiscite were without avail.

Carry Ballots to Prisons.

Officials also started making the rounds of hospitals and prisons, carrying miniature ballot boxes for the benefit of persons who cannot go to the polls. Sufficient ballots for the preliminary voting were "smuggled" into the territory yesterday. They had been secretly printed abroad.

All public and private assemblies were prohibited today until after the plebiscite in an effort to further neutralize the much sought after Saar territory. Theaters were excepted from the provision.

Meanwhile, the league governing commission cracked down on the Nazis' "discipline squad," arresting its leader, Paul Lonsdorfer, and another member for leading an assault last week at Blieskastel on anti-Nazi Catholics. Both were placed in jail and will be tried by an election court.

SUED FOR $40,166

[Associated Press Photo.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Marjorie Rambeau, stage and screen actress, was sued today to collect a $40,166 judgment obtained against her in New York March 22, 1932, by Mabel Manton. Mrs. Manton obtained judgment on the grounds that Miss Rambeau had alienated the affections of her husband, William Kevitt Manton.

COLD BOTHERS PRESIDENT, BUT HE'S IMPROVING

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt stayed at home today in an effort to eliminate what his physician described as a slight head cold which has persisted for three or four days.

He was reported improved tonight by callers and by his physician, Dr. Ross T. McIntire, who reported that there was no fever involved.

During the afternoon the President conferred for some time with Speaker Byrns but otherwise kept his calendar clear for the day, spending the time on an accumulation of mail and official reports.

Mr. Roosevelt's cold was said to bother him principally while speaking. It developed last week, but he went ahead with his plan to address congress with his opening message.

Girl Beaten and Robbed on South Side Street

Miss Genevieve Nagle, 20 years old, 5632 South Honore street, was knocked unconscious and robbed of a small sum of money last night by a man who met her as she was passing a vacant lot at 5518 South Wood street. She lay for a time on the ground, then staggered into the nearby home of her uncle, Policeman Michael Nagle, at 5515 South Honore street. A physician was called to attend her.

FIND AIM OF NAZI MEETING WAS TO CHEER UP HITLER

Chancellor Worried Over Split in Ranks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The real purpose of the mysterious Nazi "New Year's meeting" in the Berlin opera house last Thursday has been revealed in the course of conversations with participants, according to word received today from Berlin.

It was to bolster of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's faith in himself and to help drive the warring Nazi factions back into the ranks of the blind followers of the dictator.

With each group of Nazis clamoring for supremacy internally and with the big European powers proceeding with their negotiations without Germany, Hitler was becoming more and more despondent. His friends feared he would suffer a nervous breakdown as he did shortly before the blood purge of June 30, according to the information received here.

Goering Conceives Idea.

Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air and premier of Prussia, conceived the idea of summoning all the chiefs of political, economic and military Germany to pay tribute to Hitler. The idea was to engulf the harassed chancellor with a wave of admiration and expressions of faith, and at the same time remind the Nazi chieftains that their one and only duty is to obey the fuehrer blindly regardless of their personal wishes, the reports said.

Hitler, who in recent months has had one eye on the public, was to be given a chance to address his men in his own campaign style, unhampered by inhibitions of any kind such as the presence of international observers.

It was a passionate speech, said the official spokesman. It was a wild speech, several listeners admitted. They said they fully understood why it took the official censors five hours to agree on what should be published of Hitler's speech.

Goering Ignores Goebbels.

The reichsfuehrer warned his audience of the dire consequences they would suffer if they should fail to agree among themselves.

Gen. Goering, in calling the meeting did not inform Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, of his plans but made all the arrangements behind Goebbels' back.

It was a triumph for the Prussian premier, who showed that on a few hours' notice he could line up all the outstanding men of the party, government, army, and business and mobilize the police and air force sufficiently to quell the greatest riot.

The strength of the forces protecting Nazi dignitaries on that day indicated to some observers that the leaders are distinctly worried over their own fate despite their alleged popularity.

LEGION ASKS STATES FOR UNIFORM LAW TO HALT RED VOTE

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A model bill for the various states to prevent the communist party from having a place on the nation's election ballots, was mailed to fifty-eight departments of the American Legion tonight.

Homer L. Chaillaux, director of the national Americanism commission of the Legion, said 250,000 more communist votes were cast Nov. 6 than ever before.

State legislatures are in session now in forty-two states and the Indiana session opens Thursday. The Legion convention in Miami, Fla., designated Americanism as its primary activity for 1935.

2 COURTS ORDER $750,000,000 IN PROPERTY FREED

Federal, State Judges Act to Lift Receiverships.

Rules Issued for Attorneys.

The order was directed to members of the bar and masters in chancery. Among the important provisions are:

1. In all default foreclosure cases referred to a master, the plaintiff's attorneys must conclude their proofs so the master may complete his report in 20 days.

2. In all contested cases involving a note issue secured by a trust deed, the limit of time extended to attorneys for the contestants shall be 60 days.

3. In all contested foreclosure cases involving a bond issue secured by trust deed and merchants' lien claims, the attorneys must complete their proofs so the master can make his report in 90 days.

4. Objections and exceptions should be disposed of within 14 days of the completion of the master's report, unless the time is extended by the court.

5. Sale of property must be made within 60 days from the date of the approval of the master's report and the entry of decree.

6. Every solicitor, receiver or trustee seeking compensation or reimbursement of expense must file with the court a petition under oath, giving a detailed account of what is due.

Clear Titles for Loans.

The judges pointed out that the sale of the properties in foreclosure would make the titles clear and the properties eligible for loans by insurance companies, private lending agencies, and the Reconstruction Finance corporation. They added that they had full power to accept or reject bids and could see themselves that a reasonable price was paid for the properties sold.

Their plan is to have appraisals made by their own stafs and to compel would-be buyers to give what the tracts are worth. Judge Klarkowski recalled that the best offer on one piece of property at judicial sale was $25,000, while the property carried a bond of $525,000. He said the basis of appraisal would be the property's earning ability.

This, he held, would result in more stable values for all property. He and the other judges made it plain that they did not intend to recognize in the new real estate deal the so-called equities of fly-by-night real estate corporations formed, without investment of their own, to borrow funds—often an exorbitant amount—to complete partially erected buildings.

Appeals Court Upholds Law.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals decision was handed down by Presiding Judge Evan A. Evans and concurred in by Associate Judges Samuel Alschuler and Louis Fitzhenry. Their ruling covers all petitions filed under sections 74 to 77 of the amended bankruptcy law. It was predicated on a denial of an appeal of the Chicago Title and Trust company from a decision of Judge Patrick T. Stone, who had upheld the constitutionality of section 74 of the amended bankruptcy act. The trust company in its appeal contended that the section is in effect a moratorium on debt and should not be classified as bankruptcy legislation.

The judges pointed out that the amendments were passed to remedy conditions that existed because of the abuse of the remedy that receivership proceedings offered. However, it was added, the amendments were worthless unless the court got reorganization plans quickly.

One of the principal evils of the receivership industry, it has been asserted by investigators, has been the ease with which receivers and their attorneys could go to the federal courts and have them take jurisdiction away from state courts which were striving to get properties into the hands of bona fide owners. The order that such persons be forced to pay costs if they do not produce their workable, fair reorganization plans quickly is expected to be an effective brake on such transfers of jurisdiction.

Warning to Lower Courts.

The Appellate court warned lower courts not to accept reorganization plans "matured overnight" under equity receiverships "in an apparently desperate attempt to defeat the bankruptcy proceedings," and added:

"It if appears that months and even years have elapsed since the equity proceedings were instituted, during which a relatively large percentage of gross revenues of the receivership have been diverted from bondholders to receivership costs and expenses, and no steps have been taken to help the debtor or protect the creditors, the time for action in the court of bankruptcy is usually ripe."

MAYOR URGES PWA LOAN FOR CALUMET PORT

Tells Value of South Side Seaway Link.

Mayor Kelly last night urged the necessity of meeting the final requirement for a Public Works administration loan to develop the Calumet terminal harbor for the lakes to gulf waterway. The city has until Jan. 30 to acquire right of way from property owners along Lake Calumet and the Calumet-Sag channel in order to receive a loan of $2,814,500 from the PWA.

The mayor was the principal speaker at a meeting of representatives of civic and labor organizations, sponsored by the Calumet Waterway Improvement association and the Federation for the Improvement of Lake Calumet, in the auditorium of the Fenger High school, 112th and Wallace streets. James W. Crane, chairman of the arrangements committee of the association, presided.

Right of Way Main Problem.

Mayor Kelly reported that other conditions laid down by the PWA. such as plans for the construction of bridges, will be met and it now remains to acquire the right of way. All property owners except the Illinois Central railroad and the Acme Steel company have indicated willingness to coöperate. The mayor said he was hopeful of reaching an amicable settlement with the two companies.

"I will do everything humanly possible to get this project through in order to make the Calumet region the greatest inland port in the world," Mayor Kelly declared. "The city council has appropriated $200,000 to pay for any definite damage done to parcels of land along the route, and we hope this will be enough.

"The government spent a billion dollars on the development of the Mississippi-Gulf of Mexico waterway and the Great Lakes system and if we put through this link we will bring an additional six million tons of commerce to Chicago every year and save shippers and consumers $3,600,000 annually."

Complete Cost $40,382,000.

The complete development of the Calumet-Sag link will cost $40,382,000, according to estimates of army engineers given to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who dispenses the PWA funds.

The route of the project would be south in the Calumet river from the harbor, then west to the Calumet-Sag channel which joins the main drainage canal at Sag, and south to Lockport and Joliet. A 9 foot channel, 300 feet wide, would be provided in the Calumet river, the southern end of Lake Calumet would be dragged to a 21 foot depth, and three barge passing channels would be created along the Calumet-Sag channel.

HOLD 3 TO U. S. JURY.

Three men were held to the federal grand jury yesterday on charges of hijacking an interstate shipment of lard. They were Walter Follmer, 35 years old, 4711 Kenwood avenue; Anthony Portell, 31, of 7151 South Ashland avenue, and Charles Kohlman, 35, of 2946 South Wallace street.

Embezzlement Charged

The trial of Samuel Insull on a charge of embezzling $66,000 from the Middle West Utilities company was set for Jan. 28 by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in the Criminal court yesterday. Although it had been rumored that the indictment would be dismissed because of the recent acquittal of Martin J. Insull on a similar charge, both state and defense lawyers told the court they would be prepared to go to trial.

Insull, looking fully rested since his acquittal with sixteen former associates on a mail fraud charge in the federal court six weeks age, appeared with his attorney, Floyd E. Thompson. Judge Harrington ordered Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hara to furnish the defense with a bill of particulars after Thompson argued that the embezzlement indictment was ambiguous.

The state charges that Insull took $66,000 from Middle West, one of his holding companies, to cover a brokerage account for Martin Insull. Martin cannot be tried on this charge, although he was indicted on it, because he was extradited from Canada only on the other embezzlement indictment on which he was freed.

Confesses "Stepping Out" on His Employer's Money

Henry Kleifgen, 19 years old, 5147 South Kostner avenue, a First National bank clerk, confessed at the detective bureau yesterday that he had been taking small amounts of bank money, so he could buy better clothes and "step out with the fellows." The total of his thefts was $490. He was locked up pending the filing of charges.

ILLINOIS READY TO PUT 100,000 ON RELIEF JOBS

Awaits Washington Order to Start Projects.

Nearly 10,000 approved work relief projects are now in the files of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, sufficient to provide jobs for about 100,000 additional relief "clients" in Illinois.

This was learned yesterday from Arthur R. Lord of the commission's work division, who said the 100,000 could be employed as soon as Washington issues the order and provides the funds for the work relief expansion program which was outlined by President Roosevelt in his message to congress last Friday.

105,000 Now on Work Relief.

There are 105,000 now employed on work relief jobs in the state, which would make a total of more than 200,000 such jobs when the new projects are started. It is estimated that there are 250,000 "employable" heads of families on relief, but it is hoped that there will be enough jobs to go around by the time the new program gets started in April or May.

"We have been continually encouraging the expansion of work relief in Illinois," Lord said. "There are things we do not yet know about the new program, however, such as how many of the projects will be local and how many federal."

Warns Against Letdown.

Meanwhile, W. S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, received a telegram from Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, cautioning against a letdown in the present method of giving relief. It said:

"Pending any change in the program of unemployment relief it is necessary that all relief administrations be kept at full efficiency. All state and local contributions are expected to be kept up to full and proper share of relief funds required."

The message raised anew the question of what Illinois will do about finding a source of relief funds. The sum required of the state during 1935 is $3,000,000 a month.

HEARING OPENED ON MIDDLE WEST RECEIVER'S FEES

A claim for $130,000 additional fees by Charles A. McCulloch for his services as receiver of the Middle West Utilities company, one of Samuel Insull's holding concerns, was opposed yesterday by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson at a hearing in the offices of Federal Master in Chancery Edgar B. Tolman at 30 North La Salle street.

Ettelson, representing a group of stockholders, asserted that the $95,000 paid to McCulloch while he was receiver from April, 1932, to July, 1934, was sufficient.

Hearing on the claim followed the ruling of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals last week sustaining Judge Walter J. Lindley of the district court in his decision that there was no collusion in the Middle West receivership. The appeals court commended McCulloch and the late Edward N. Hurley for their work as coreceivers. Daniel C. Green, operating head of the company under the receivership, is now trustee in bankruptcy for the concern.

Yesterday's hearing was continued to Feb. 11.

The other three winners are Harold Brown of Cincinnati, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, who is taking post graduate work at Harvard university; Fred Gillen, 20 years old, of Madison, Wis., a senior at the University of Wisconsin, and Martin Wagner, 23 years old, of Newport, Ky., a senior at the University of Michigan.

The awards entitle them to two years of study at Oxford university in England, with all expenses paid.

U. S. INJUNCTION GRANTED TO HALT POWER PROJECT

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Federal Judge George W. McClintic today dismissed the federal government's application for an injunction to halt construction of the Hawk's Nest power project in southern West Virginia until a federal license is obtained.

The dismissal was asked in a motion prepared by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

It was presented by District Attorney George I. Neal, who had asked the injunction. He made no announcement on the reason for the motion.

ORDER 2 RETURNED SOUTH.

William Stiuka, 30 years old, and his brother, Howard, 28 years old were ordered yesterday removed to Muskogee, Okla., where they shot their way to freedom from a jail while waiting transfer to Leavenworth penitentiary. They were captured here while working on several stolen cars in a north side garage.

SEND 27 RELIEF MEAT THIEVES TO BRIDEWELL

Twenty-seven "clients" of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission who confessed stealing meat from a cold storage plant where they were employed at 50 cents an hour, were sent to the Bridewell for periods of between 18 and 28 days by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the South State Street court yesterday.

The defendants, most of them colored, defended their acts by testifying that they had "permission" to take the meat from the foreman, Henry Leichering, 183d street and Pulaski road, and the timekeeper, Willard Blosser, 518 North Green street. Leichering and Blosser were granted continuances to Jan. 15 and did not testify. All were charged with petty larceny.

Twenty-five of the men, four of them white, were sentenced to serve 10 days and pay $10 fines. Being without funds they will have to serve out fines and costs. Two defendants received 20 day sentences and similar fines. Only one of the defendants, Frank Larson, 23 years old, 7339 Greenwood avenue, was freed. Chief Investigator H. A. Pearson of the relief commission estimated that 40,000 pounds of meat had been smuggled from the warehouse during the past two months under the overcoats of relief recipients employed there.

BREAK LIQUOR STORE WINDOW.

Edward Leszidiuski, 25 years old, 3525 School street, and Donald Hynda, 25 years old, 2505 Cortland street, were arrested yesterday morning after they had broken a window in a liquor store at 4808 Broadway.

PIQUETT ON TRIAL TODAY IN PLOT TO HIDE DILLINGER

Attorney Louis Piquett, former bartender, who is accused of having prostituted his profession to aid criminals, will go on trial this morning before Federal Judge William H. Holly. The specific charge is that Piquett concealed John Dillinger while he was a fugitive from the Crown Point jail, and obtained surgical aid for him in having his finger prints altered and his face changed.

"The government considers this a very important case," said United States Attorney Dwight H. Green last night. "The question is how far a lawyer can go in protecting his clients. A criminal has a right to a defense but a lawyer has no right to advise in the perpetration of a crime."

The three important government witnesses, who may tell some of the circumstances surrounding Dillinger's wooden gun escape from the Crown Point jail, are William Loeser, alias Ralph Robind, a plastic surgeon; Harold Bernard Cassidy, alias Harold Cass, and Arthur O'Leary, former assistant in Piquett's law office.

These men were indicted with Piquett on conspiracy charges involving the hiding of both Dillinger and Homer Van Meter, Dillinger gangster who was killed in St. Paul. They have pleaded guilty and will tell their stories for the government. FRENCH, ITALIANS PLEDGE PEACE TO CENTRAL EUROPE

Mussolini and Laval Keep Details Secret.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 7.—Premier Mussolini of Italy and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France, at 7 o'clock tonight in Il Duce's huge office in Palazzo Venezia signed documents which they said would bury the hatchet in the prolonged post-war differences between France and Italy.

These accords, reached after the four day visit of Laval to Rome, are left vague and unexplained in the following short official communique:

"The head of the Italian government and the French minister of foreign affairs conclude the Italo-French negotiations by signing some agreements relative to the interests of the two countries in Africa and some acts that register the community of views existing between their governments on questions of European order.

"They have found that the two governments are in agreement on the necessity for a plurilateral understanding on the central European question. They have agreed that the conception they have adopted shall be submitted as rapidly as possible to the examination of the countries interested. They have agreed, moreover, that while waiting for this understanding to be concluded they will examine together in the spirit of understanding itself all measures that the situation may require."

Laval Talks with Pope.

The Franco-Italian accord was one of two historically important accomplishments of Laval. He reached agreement with Pope Pius in another conference today on what was termed by prelates the basis of a possible concordat between France and the holy see.

Curiously, the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, tonight, alone of all the press, stated that the agreement between Mussolini and Laval is in four parts. By a fourth convention, says the Vatican paper, France and Italy agree that, bearing in mind the declaration of the powers at Geneva on Dec. 11, 1932, about German equality of rights to armaments, they will jointly oppose Germany's rearming until a general understanding on that question is reached.

This was taken to mean that Germany will now be invited to join in a non-intervention pact and return to the league of nations through the signing of a disarmament agreement, and that if she does so the rearmament she has achieved up to this time will be legalized and recognized. If she does not, it was believed France and Italy will oppose her attempts at further rearmament. It was under the declaration of December, 1932, that Germany returned to the disarmament conference.

Deference to British.

It is believed the communique avoided mentioning German rearmament because the question will be further discussed during a visit of Laval and the French Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin to London, where a final decision will be reached.

Beyond the lack of information on the accord, reliable officials venture that it represents first a solemn declaration of friendship and the settlement of differences on African questions and problems of general policy;

Secondly, that Italy and France made a consultative pact between themselves about what they would do in case Austrian independence is menaced. They will seek to have all countries of central Europe sign a convention to respect frontiers and not to interfere in each other's interests;

Thirdly, that there were three colonial conventions dealing with the status of Italian residents in Tunis, whose present privileges will continue until 1965, and two others concerning territorial concessions to be made by France in southern Lybia and Somaliland.

Signed Amid Pomp.

Signatures were affixed to the documents which embrace the accord in the presence of forty or more resplendent members of the French mission and of the Italian foreign office. Franco-Italian amity was toasted later at a dinner and reception given by the French embassy at the Vatican.

Following the signing, Premier Mussolini summoned French newspaper men and made a speech to them, while Foreign Minister Laval spoke to Italian reporters. Both men exchanged high compliments in each other's favor, and stated that the four days had developed close friendship between them.

Neither Mussolini nor Laval had much to offer to explain the documents. Laval declared: "Our understanding is complete," but he added, "much still remains to be done." Regarding central Europe, Laval indicated it is what they hoped to do rather than what was done that counted.

"Our convention about Africa is equitable and will be well received, I hope," Laval continued. "Neither Premier Mussolini nor myself have sacrificed our essential interests."

"The central European policy we have in mind is directed against no one. It offers all governments on the same basis of moral equality the possibility of associating themselves in an enterprise the exclusive end of which is the organizing of peace in Europe."

Mussolini Reticent.

Mussolini, to French newspapermen, was less explicit even than Laval. He spoke of a "Franco-Italian reconciliation" being fully realized.

"We have agreed," he said, "upon a common Franco-Italian attitude to be adopted in confronting certain possible eventualities," probably referring to Nazi attempts in Austria. He warned against the "danger of exaggerated optimism," and concluded by saying, "This crucial year has begun under happy auspices of the Franco-Italian agreement." It was recalled in this connection that Premier Mussolini has for a long time been predicting that 1935 will be a year of war.

Diplomatic circles ventured the opinion that Laval's visit was more an expression or an outward gesture of Latin solidarity than a sign of any intrinsic agreement.

Officials said the communique could not be more informative for two reasons: first, that the colonial accord had to be presented to the French cabinet and parliament for approval; and, second, that the central European pact must first be presented to Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugo-Slavia and Germany for their approval.

Discusses Saar Question.

After conferring with the pope for 50 minutes, Laval later visited Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, for an hour. He conferred the Legion of Honor on Pacelli. This was the first time a French statesman had visited the Vatican since 1870.

Besides the subject of a concordat, Laval discussed the Saar question with the pope, asking him to keep a friendly interest in the situation of the Catholics in the Saar Basin territory, in view of the coming plebiscite, although it was made plain that he did not ask for intervention. The Osservatore Romano indicated that the pope "wishes solely that each of the faithful act according to the dictates of a true Catholic conscience."

The Laval visit has been highly dramatized in the Italian press. Laval will leave Rome at noon tomorrow.

School Vandalism Losses Cut in Half During 1934

Burglaries and vandalism in Chicago public schools declined more than 50 per cent and consequent school property losses fell to $12,000 in 1934 from $31,360 in 1933, according to John Howatt, chief engineer for the board of education. His report yesterday attributed the reduction largely to 1,700 Illinois Emergency Relief commission workers who augmented the regular force of school watchmen.

STORY OF LINER CRASH IS TOLD BY PASSENGERS

Rough Sea, Poor Visibility Blamed for Mishap.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The Ward liner Havana has its nose clamped in a sand bank off the north tip of the Bahama shoals. Its 51 passengers who embarked for Havana, Progreso, and Vera Cruz, are scattered, some sheltered in hotels here, others still steaming southward on the United Fruit liner Peten.

Passengers who arrived here today on the freighter El Oceano said most of those on board were asleep early yesterday when the Havana struck. The vessel grounded so gently, they said, that many were not awakened.

One Passenger Dead.

One passenger, identified as Robert Rittenhouse of Brooklyn, died in a lifeboat of apoplexy, the only fatality thus far accounted for in the shipwreck. A complete check accounted for all passengers and crew.

The El Oceano brought in 38 passengers and some of the crew. Eleven other passengers are safe aboard the Peten, which will land them in Havana.

Officers who landed here were at a loss to account for the grounding, which appears almost as mysterious as the recent disaster of the companion Ward liner, Morro Castle, off the Jersey coast with the loss of 129 lives.

Blame Mishap on Weather.

One officer said the weather was bad, the sea rough, and visibility poor, but Mantamilla reef is well marked on all charts and maps.

The fourth officer of the Havana, John A. Rich of New York, who was washed overboard from lifeboat No. 5, said the Havana lost her bearings because of bad visibility.

Stories of heroism were told by passengers who landed here from the El Oceano. One member of the crew leaped overboard and rescued two children thrown into the sea with their mother when a lifeboat capsized. The mother also was rescued.

Dr. Howard Fox, New York physician en route to Merida, Yucatan, to study tropical diseases, said he was not even awakened when the Havana struck the shoal. The first he knew of the mishap was when a steward rapped on the door of his stateroom and gave the alarm.

Enters Boat to Break "Jinx."

"Stewards marshaled the passengers to their assigned positions by the lifeboats," Dr. Fox said, "and then, after all was clear as to where we were to go in the event that the ship was abandoned, we went down to breakfast.

"When the time did come to leave the ship those in the next lifeboat found there were only 13 pasengers, and I entered that one to break the jinx."

Louis Levitt of the Bronx played the piano and another member of the ship's orchestra, the drummer, helped him entertain the passengers until it was time to go over the side. One of the tunes they played was "How Dry I Am."

There was little confusion aboard the Havana. Shortly after 8 a. m. Capt. A. W. Peterson ordered the boats manned. Some of the crew went over first in the motor launch to test the sea but spray doused the engine, according to Dr. Fox.

Next lifeboat, No. 7, was lowered with fifteen passengers aboard.

Six Thrown Into Water.

The next boat lowered was No. 5, with Fourth Officer Rich in the stern. No sooner had the boat struck the water than a roller broke over it, throwing six people in the water and scattering cargo and oars. Steve Fouska, able seaman, managed to retain one of the oars.

Fouska paddled manfully, keeping the nose of the craft headed into the rollers. The boat was almost awash. A line was thrown from boat No. 7 and Fouska fastened it, one after the other, around the waists of four women passengers floundering in his waterlogged boat. In turn they were dragged to other boats.

As no rescue ships had put in an appearance, the captain deemed it inadvisable to launch any more boats. The rest of the lifeboats were lowered which El Oceano of the Morgan line reached the scenet about 11 a. m.

In Water 15 Minutes.

Mrs. Fonia London of Brooklyn had a nerve wracking experience. She and her small daughter, Fanny, and son Elias were thrown into the water when a wave hit their lifeboat and the little boy floated face downwards for some minutes before being hauled into another boat. He was revived. Mrs. London was in the sea fifteen minutes before she was rescued.

Coast guard craft today stood by the Havana, which was not believed to be in immediate danger of breaking up.

Capt. Peterson, aboard the Havana with eighty-three members of the crew, asked the cutters Pandora, Carrabasset, and Vigilant to stand by until plans are made to refloat the vessel.

Peru Quells Revolt

CAJAMARCA, Peru, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Peruvian government ordered army troops to this ancient Inca city today because of yesterday's attack by 100 civilian revolutionists on the central police post in which eight persons were killed.

Order prevailed again tonight and communications were normal. The attacking revolutionists were crushingly defeated and put to flight by police who recaptured the barracks after a sharp engagement. The attackers took flight into the surrounding Andes mountains. Ricardo Revilla, reputedly leading the attackers, was killed, together with six of his followers and Lieut. Erasmo Roscllo of the police.

Owing to holiday vacation leaves, the police post was garrisoned by only four men, who put up a stubborn fight. The episode was believed to be an echo of an inclusive revolutionary plan said to have been scheduled for the latter part of last November. The government easily crushed a revolutionary outbreak at that time on the outskirts of Lima.

MISSING BRITISH TANKER IS FEARED SUNK IN PACIFIC

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Fear that the missing British oil tanker La Crescenta may have gone down with its crew of 25 to 30 in a Pacific storm was raised today by a wireless message from another tanker, the Athelbeach.

The Athelbeach reported sighting large quantities of oil 960 miles northeast of Hawaii in the area where the La Crescenta last was heard from.

Bound for Japan with 62,421 barrels of crude oil, the La Crescenta sailed from Port San Luis Obispo, Cal., Nov. 24, and was due in Japanese waters Dec. 25. She was last reported Dec. 20.

CONGRESS GETS BUDGET DEMAND OF 8½ BILLIONS

Concern Over Rising Debt Expressed by Many.

Estimates at Glance

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7. — [Special.] — President Roosevelt's budget estimates at a glance:

	Year ending June 30, 1935.	Year ending June 30, 1936.
Receipts	$3,711,650,688	$3,991,904,639
Expenditures	8,581,069,026	8,520,413,609
Deficit	4,869,418,338	4,528,508,970
Public debt	31,000,000,000	34,239,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's 8½ billion dollar budget for the coming fiscal year, destined probably to grow to more than 10 billions, was received by congress today with mixed emotions.

While the attitude of the Democratic majority indicated that the budget with its 4 billion dollar work relief program and other innovations will be approved, there was evidence that many senators and representatives were alarmed over the prospect of a 34 billion dollar public debt on June 30, 1936, with no definite promise from the President that the "easy money" spending will stop even then.

"If the administration continues to squander the resources of the nation at this rate, what we are headed for is inflation, chaos, and bankruptcy," snapped Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.].

Vandenberg Expresses Doubts.

"I continue to doubt whether prosperity can be purchased in this fashion, and I am particularly challenged by the President's annual recurrent necessity to move his debt deadline upward," Senator Arthur Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] declared.

Bitter criticism was showered also on Mr. Roosevelt's request that he be given a free hand to spend the four billion dollars for work relief, largest single item in the budget, as he sees fit. Congress' first rebellion against the White House may result, as many members of both houses said bluntly that it was their prerogative and not the President's to appropriate money.

"Appropriation of a large sum of money in a lump sum to be allocated by the President results in extravagance, in ill-considered expenditures, and in terrific waste of the people's money," Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] said.

George Favors Allocation.

"I'm willing to vote for whatever is necessary for a work relief program, but I think it should be allocated and the general control of expenditures kept in the hands of congress," Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] objected.

Radical senators, on the other hand, insisted that the President's 4 billions for work relief was inadequate. This group was led by Senator Robert F. La Follette [Rad., Wis.] and consisted of Senator Edward Costigan [Rad., Colo.], Senator Bronson Cutting [Rad., N. M.], and Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.].

Beside projecting the New Deal's fiscal program into the fiscal year 1936, which runs from July 1, 1935, to June 30, 1936, the President estimated the probable receipts and expenditures for the current fiscal year, which will close on June 30 next.

Estimates Are Made.

In brief his estimates were:

1934-'35: Receipts of 3 billion 712 million dollars; expenditures of 8 billion 581 million dollars, of which 5 billion 260 millions is for "recovery and relief," and a deficit of 4 billion 869 million dollars.

1935-'36: Receipts of 3 billion 992 million dollars; expenditures of 8 billion 520 million dollars, of which 4 billion 582 millions is for "recovery and relief," and a deficit of 4 billion 528 million dollars.

This continued spending of money in excess of its income will have run the government into debt 34 billion 239 million dollars by the close of 1935-36, the President told congress. Mr. Roosevelt, however, laid great stress on the fact that the "ordinary" budget, covering all items except "relife and recovery" and debt retirement, is balanced. These "ordinary expenses" in 1936 will amount to 3 billion 302 million dollars, and can be met out of the revenue aggregating 3 billion 422 millions.

"We have not yet reached a point at which a complete balance of the budget can be obtained," President Roosevelt told the congress, citing the need for unemployment relief. "I am, however, submitting to the congress a budget for the fiscal year which balances except for the expenditures to give work to the unemployed.

"If this budget receives the approval of the congress, the country will henceforth have the assurance that, with the single exception of this item, every current expenditure of whatever nature will be fully covered by our estimates of current receipts. Such deficit as occurs will be due solely to this cause, and it may be expected to decline as rapidly as private industry is able to reëmploy those who now are without work."

Commenting on this point, Representative Carl E. Mapes [Rep., Mich.] pointed out, "this ordinary and extraordinary budget business doesn't mean anything. All debts have to be paid eventually, don't they?"

Billion for Defense.

Beside his request for dictatorial power over the four billion dollars for relief, the President's budget includes several other innovations such as a huge appropriation budget for national defense aggregating almost a billion dollars, inclusion in the ordinary budget of an annual public works fund of 200 million dollars, and increases in most of the ordinary running expenses.

The new 200 million public works fund, exclusive of the emergency fund, will hereafter become a regular feature of the budget, the President predicted. It will cover routine federal works such as road building and rivers and harbors. Particular significance attaches to the fact, however, that the President plans to pay for his socialistic Tennessee Valley authority out of this fund. This fact is taken as a broad hint that there will always be some of TVA going on in some section of the country as long as the New Deal continues.

Seeks to Build Up Navy.

The President's large national defense item results from his policy of building up the navy and of modernizing the army. The army will receive 315 million dollars and the navy 477 millions. In addition the army will have 3½ millions and the navy 103 millions of PWA funds to carry on improvements started this year. This brings the total from national defense to 898 millions in 1935-'36 compared with 820 millions in 1934-'35.

Reversing his previous policy of cutting down ordinary expenses, the President this year estimated increased costs throughout his ordinary budget. Government departments and bureaus are to receive 788 million dollars in 1935-'36, compared with 566 millions in 1934-'35. Veterans will get 705 millions in disability and other compensations compared with 545 millions. Public debt interest and sinking fund charges will rise from 1 billion 409 Millions to 1 billion 511 millions.

Hopes to Cut Relief Costs.

To offset these increases and thus, in spite of them, to reduce his budget total from 8 billion 581 millions this fiscal year to 8 billion 520 millions, the President, although he contemplates an expensive works relief program, hopes to cut his "recovery and relief" costs from 5 billion 260 millions this year to 4 billion 582 million dollars next year.

Virtual elimination of the New Deal's sprawling credit agencies such as the RFC, the Farm Credit administration, and the commodity credit corporation, was one device which Mr. Roosevelt used in order to produce an apparent reduction in his "recovery and relief" expenditures and in his entire budget for 1936. Although these agencies will, as the President admits, loan out hundreds of millions of dollars, he made no allowance for them in his budget.

The President explained this action by saying that in the fiscal year 1936 the credit agencies such as the RFC will lend only that money which it collects from old loans. Each of the credit agencies, the President argued will be a "wash item" with its income and outgo balancing. Rather than include them under both the income and the outgo headings, he dropped them out almost entirely, thus lowering his budget totals.

Regards Them as Club.

The New Deal cannot afford to let these credit agencies expire, President Roosevelt stated, because he regards them as a club over private capital which he can swing if banks do not expand credit to suit his wishes. Yet his policy of restricting their 1936 loans to their repayments may seriously curtail them. The RFC, it is estimated, for instance, will have only 712 million dolalrs to lend in 1935-'36 compared with 2 billion 236 million in 1934-'35. Curtailment of some of the agricultural credit agencies may be even more drastic.

PUBLIC DEBT OF U. S. TO BE NEARLY $270 FOR EVERY PERSON

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The public debt of $34,238,000,000 by the middle of next year, as forecast today by President Roosevelt, amounts to close to $270 for every man, woman, and child in the United States.

That total is nearly 29 times what it was two decades ago. It exceeds the 1919 total, the post-war peak, by about eight and three-quarter billions.

The total per capita debt, however, is considerably smaller than that of Great Britain. According to 1933 figures of the league of nations, England's national debt amounted to $696 per capita, France's to $262, and Italy's to $124.

The gross federal government public debt by fiscal years ending June 30 follows:

1913.	$ 1,193,000,000	1925.	20,516,000,000
1914.	1,188,000,000	1926.	19,643,000,000

REVEAL PLANS FOR JOB AND OLD AGE INSURANCE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's social security program, which will be submitted to congress within about ten days, will include the following immediate recommendations, it was learned today:

1. Unemployment insurance, to be partially financed by the federal government through pay roll tax not exceeding 2 per cent. The money would be paid as a partial subsidy to states adopting laws conforming to a federal standard.

2. Old age pensions, to be operated under state laws with a partial subsidy from the government on a matching basis. Funds for this subsidy would be drawn from a $100,000,000 appropriation which the President is expected to ask.

3. Widow's pensions on the same basis as old age pensions, with funds provided by the same $100,000,000 appropriation.

The President's decision on a pay roll tax not over 2 per cent to carry on the unemployment insurance has been made despite the fact that the economic security committee recommended that this be 3 per cent. The President felt that this was too high.

Mr. Roosevelt has indicated that he wants prompt action on his program, especially relief and security matters.

U. S. TO RESUME TAX HEARINGS ON ECKHART ESTATE

The final effort of the federal government to collect $1,500,000 taxes from the heirs of Bernard Albert Eckhart, Chicago capitalist and manufacturer who died in 1931 leaving an estate of $5,000,000, will be started today in a hearing before Judge Charles Trammell of the United States board of tax appeals. The hearing, expected to last about two weeks, will be held in the Palmer house.

The government contends that Eckhart, anticipating death, transferred a large part of his estate to his heirs before he died in order to avoid the payment of the estate tax. The bulk of his estate was left to his widow, Mrs. Katie L. Eckhart, and their four children. Shortly before his death he gave $1,000,000 to the University of Chicago.

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE ON BUDGET

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to congress on the budget:

"The budget of the United States government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, of which this message is definitly a part, is transmitted herewith for your consideration. It deals principally with the moneys carried in the general and special accounts of the government which constitute the great bulk of the general fund as this fund is shown on the first page of the daily treasury statement. The remainder of the general fund consists mainly of moneys carried in trust accounts which are not strictly government money and therefore enter only incidentally into the financial picture presented by the general budget summary.

REVIEW OF THE FISCAL YEAR 1934.

"The total expenditures of the government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1934, as shown in the general budget summary and supporting schedules, amounted to $7,105,000,000 in round figures. Of this amount, the sum of $1,086,000,000 was spent for the operation and maintenance of the regular departments and establishments of the government, $556,000,000 to meet veterans' pensions and benefits, $757,000,000 for interest on the national debt, $360,000,000 for statutory debt retirements, and $63,000,000 for tax refunds, making in the aggregate $2,822,000,000. The remainder of the total expenditures for that year, amounting to $4,283,000,000, was spent for recovery and relief. The general purposes to which this amount was applied are set forth in detail in supporting schedule No. 3. It will be seen that this amount was expended approximately as follows:

Agricultural aid	$ 847,000,000
Relief	1,844,400,000
Public works	653,500,000
Aid to home owners	194,000,000
Reconstruction Finance Corp.	584,600,000
Miscellaneous	158,600,000
Total	$4,283,000,000

"A part of this expenditure of $4,283,000,000 for recovery and relief is repayable: indeed, substantial repayments have already been made to the government. Loans amounted to $732,000,000, and subscriptions to capital stock and preferred shares to $826,000,000, making a total of $1,558,000,000 which may be regarded as repayable expenditures made during the fiscal year 1934. The part regarded as nonrepayable totals $2,725,000,000. This sum has been spent mainly for grants, aids, public works projects, and administrative expenses.

Total Receipts for Year.

"The total receipts of the government for the fiscal year 1934 reached in the aggregate $3,115,500,000. Of this amount $2,640,600,000 came from internal revenue, $313,400,000 from customs, $152,600,000 from miscellaneous revenues, and $8,900,000 from receipts due to the realization upon assets. Income tax supplied $818,000,000 of internal revenues; miscellaneous taxes [e. g., estate, capital stock, liquor, tobacco, stamp, and excise taxes], $1,469,600,000, and processing taxes, $353,000,000. Since the processing taxes are appropriated for the use of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, their total should be subtracted from the aggregate receipts shown above in order to arrive at the general receipts of the government.

"The general receipts, $2,762,500,000, excluding processing taxes, approximately equaled the regular expenditures for the year, a fact which should be duly recognized.

Deficit Total Told.

"The deficit at the end of the fiscal year 1934, as shown in the general budget summary, was $3,989,500,000 in round figures. After deducting $359,900,000 for statutory debt retirements during 1934, the resulting net deficit financed from borrowings was $3,629,600,000.

"The gross increase in the national debt amounted to $4,514,400,000, making a total debt of $27,053,000,000, as indicated in supporting schedule No. 6. This addition to the debt during 1934 included the financing of the net deficit of $3,629,600,000 and an increase of $884,800,000 in the cash balance of the general and special accounts, as shown in supporting schedule No. 4.

THE ECONOMIC SITUATION.

"Because of its profound influence on the federal budget, the economic situation may be briefly summarized at this point.

"Business was substantially more active during the fiscal year 1934 than in either of the two preceding fiscal years. At the opening of the year, in July, 1933, producers were increasing their operations sharply, reflecting in part larger orders placed in anticipation of code regulations.

"There was a temporary decline in output in the autumn and early winter, in response to an overaccumulation of inventories during this period, but production again advanced during the last half of the fiscal year. Industrial output for the period as a whole, when measured by the federal reserve board index, was 25 per cent greater than in the fiscal year 1933 and only slightly below the level of the fiscal year 1931.

"The degree of recovery varied in the different industries. Production of nondurable goods, which had declined only moderately during the depression, approached within 1 per cent of its 1924-'25 average, while output in the durable goods group, where prices showed relatively small declines since 1929, was 38 per cent below its average in those years.

"Construction activity financed by private individuals continued to be restricted in amount, although public construction increased. This result was in no way surprising in view of the enormous sums spent in permanent structures, in many cases in excess of actual requirements, during the period 1925-'29.

"Employment Expands."

"The average volume of industrial employment expanded in proportion to production, and the total number of unemployed at the end of the fiscal year 1934, although still very large, decreased by about 2 millions, as compared with June, 1933, and 4 millions, as compared with the worst point of the depression, which fell in March, 1933.

"Reflecting higher wage rates and an expansion in total hours worked, industrial pay rolls averaged sharply higher over the year. Distribution of commodities at retail to consumers increased, but in smaller proportion than output, with the result that inventories of manufactured goods showed a net growth over the year ended June 30, 1934.

"At the end of the fiscal year 1934 the bureau of labor statistics index of wholesale commodity prices stood at 74.8 per cent of its 1926 average, as compared with 66.3 per cent on June 30, 1933, and 59.6 per cent early in March, 1933.

Farm Products Rise.

"The sharpest rise in prices took place in farm products which were affected by anticipation of smaller crops during the summer of 1934. The rise in agricultural prices more than offset the decrease in farm output, and farmers' cash income, including governmental rental and benefit payments, was 34 per cent higher than in the fiscal year 1933. Corporate profits, aided by larger volume as well as by inventory appreciation, also increased considerably.

"Following the close of the fiscal year 1934, output in basic industries fell sharply through September, reflecting particularly an overaccumulation of inventories in steel and textile products and the delay in the placing of orders for autumn merchandise because of uncertainty as to the effect of the drouth.

"Industrial prices, however, remained relatively stable and prices of farm products and foods moved into closer alignment with prices of nonagricultural commodities. In retail markets, goods continued to move in sustained volume with the result that inventories were reduced to lower levels and output was again increasing in the final quarter of the calendar year 1934.

Condition of the Fiscal Year 1935.

"The total expenditure requirements for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, are estimated at approximately $8,581,000,000, as shown in the general budget summary. Of this amount, the sum of $3,321,000,000 is for regular expenditures and $5,260,000,000 for recovery and relief. The regular expenditures are for the following general purposes:

Operation and maintenance of the regular departments and establishments	$1,235,000,000
Veterans' pensions and benefits	610,000,000
Interest on the national debt	835,000,000
Tax refunds [excluding processing taxes]	68,000,000
Subtotal	$2,748,000,000
Debt retirements	573,000,000
Total	$3,321,000,000

"The amount of $1,235,000,000, mentioned above, includes $20,000,000 for expenditures estimated to be made this year from an additional sum of approximately $125,000,000 which will be required for 1935 to make up deficiencies in the appropriations for the regular departments and establishments, including the veterans' administration.

"Of this additional sum, approximately $65,000,000 will be required to meet the needs of the veterans' administration due to the application of new laws or revised rules pertaining to service-connected disabilities.

Provides for AAA.

"Of the total expenditures for recovery and relief, $788,000,000 are for the Agricultural Adjustment administration and the refunding of processing taxes, while $4,472,000,000 is devoted to other purposes in the recovery and relief program. During the first five months of the current fiscal year the government expended for recovery and relief $1,712,000,000, or at the rate of about $350,000,000 per month.

"A summary of the aggregate amounts expended for recovery and relief from February 1, 1932, to November 30, 1934, shows a total figure of $8,164,900,000. This expenditure has been distributed approximately as follows:

Agricultural aid	$1,337,300,000
Relief	2,783,000,000
Public works	1,226,200,000
Aid to home owners	306,300,000
Reconstruction Finance Corp.	2,351,200,000
Miscellaneous	160,900,000
Total	$8,164,900,000

"From Feb. 1, 1932, to Nov. 30, 1934—nearly 3 years—provision for recovery and relief through appropriations and authorizations reached a grand total of $14,412,400,000.

"Of this total there remained unexpended on Nov. 30, $6,247,500,000, a large part of which had already been obligated though not yet actually paid out by the treasury. The sum of approximately $900,000,000 from the unobligated portion must, however, be made available for transfer to emergency relief needs during the remaining months of the current fiscal year.

Recommends Transfer.

"Recommendation is therefore made that the congress provide for the immediate transfer of such unobligated portion for relief during the transition period from direct relief to work relief as outlined in my annual message.

"Appropriations for emergency relief purposes will be completely exhausted early in February. Hence it is vitally necessary that unobligated balances of moneys already appropriated be made immediately available to care for the unemployed during the remainder of the fiscal year 1935 and the transition period. Through such action no new appropriation will be required to carry our relief needs for the current fiscal year.

"The total receipts for the fiscal year 1935 are estimated at $3,711,000,000. After deduction from this amount the processing taxes, estimated at $589,000,000, there remains $3,122,000,000 to be applied against other expenditures of the government.

Estimates Income Tax Yield.

"The income tax for 1935 is estimated to yield $234,000,000 more than in 1934, or a total of $1,051,000,000. The receipts from miscellaneous internal revenue taxes, exclusive of processing taxes, are expected to produce $60,000,000 more in 1935 than in 1934, thus bringing the total yield up to $1,543,000,000.

"It is estimated that customs will show a decrease for 1935 under 1934 of about $26,000,000, due to the Cuban sugar agreement and to the foreign trade situation in general. Miscellaneous revenues and other receipts from the realization of certain assets are expected to yield for 1935 about $227,000,000, an increase of $66,000,000 over 1934.

"The deficit for the fiscal year 1935 is estimated at $4,869,000,000, including $573,000,000 for statutory debt retirements. On Dec. 26, 1934, the gross national debt stood at $28,484,000,000. It is estimated that the gross debt on June 30, 1935, will amount to about $31,000,000,000. In the budget message of last year it was estimated that the national debt on June 30, 1935, would amount to $31,800,000,000. According to the latest estimates, the debt will not reach this amount by $800,000,000.

THE FISCAL YEAR 1936.

"In the budget message of last year I said, speaking of the fiscal year 1936, that we should plan to have a definitly balanced budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on to seek a continued reduction of the national debt.

"Despite the substantial measure of recovery achieved since that statement was made, unemployment is still large. The states and local units now provide a smaller proportionate share of relief than a year ago and the federal government is therefore called upon to continue to aid in this necessary work.

"For this reason it is evident that we have not yet reached a point at which a complete balance of the budget can be obtained. I am, however, submitting to the congress a budget for the fiscal year 1936 which balances except for expenditures to give work to the unemployed.

"Will Cover Expenditures."

"If this budget receives the approval of the congress the country will henceforth have the assurance that, with the single exception of this item, every current expenditure of whatever nature will be fully covered by our estimates of current receipts.

"Such deficit as occurs will be due solely to this cause, and it may be expected to decline as rapidly as private industry is able to reëmploy those who now are without work.

"A résumé of the financial plan which the general budget summary shows for 1936, as compared with 1934 and 1935, is presented below:

*Indicates deficiency.

"The estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1936, as shown in the general budget summary, total in round figures $8,520,000,000, including statutory debt retirements.

"Of this amount, $3,938,000,000 are for regular purposes, and the remainder for recovery and relief. The regular expenditures consist of $1,622,000,000 for the operation and maintenance of the regular departments and establishments of the government, which includes $200,000,000 to be expended from an annual appropriation of $300,000,000 for public works, as requested in the budget and as explained below.

Describes Other Items.

"The other items of regular expenditures are $740,000,000 for veterans' pensions and benefits, $875,000,000 for interest on the national debt, $636,000,000 for statutory debt retirements, and $65,000,000 for tax refunds [excluding processing tax refunds].

"Some of the principal increases in the major expenditure items for 1936 may be cited. The restoration of the final 5 per cent of the 15 per cent salary reduction amounts to about $40,000,000 for the regular departments and establishments, exclusive of the postal service.

"The latter service requires an additional sum of $25,000,000 for this purpose. Provision has been made in 1936 for an increase in the civil service retirement and disability fund of $20,000,000 over 1935, making a total annual contribution to this fund of $40,000,000. This increase will enable the government to meet more nearly its annual obligation with respect to this fund.

Estimate of Obligation.

"It has been estimated that this obligation amounts to $52,000,000, but such estimate has not been sufficiently established to justify its inclusion in the budget.

"An effort will be made during the coming year, however, definitly to establish the government's annual liability, the amount of which will be included in the 1937 budget. Likewise, an increase of $50,000,000 is recommended in the veterans' adjusted service certificate fund, thus bringing the total annual contribution to this fund up to $100,000,000.

"The actuarial requirement of the fund for 1936 has been estimated at $155,000,000. An effort will also be made during the coming year to establish this fund on a more definite basis consistent with the government's actual liability under existing law.

Defense Total Larger.

"The expenditures for national defense have been increased for 1936 over 1935 by $180,000,000. This increase is due to the current policy of the congress and the executive to make up for the delay by the United States in meeting the provisions of the naval treaties of 1922 and 1930, and to provide replacement and improved equipment for the army. Veterans' pensions and other requirements have also been increased by about $130,000,000, after adding to the 1935 figure the estimated supplemental amount previously mentioned, which is due to the application of new laws and revised rules pertaining to service connected disabilities.

"Another increase in the estimated expenditures is $200,000,000 from an appropriation of $300,000,000 which I am requesting for public works. This appropriation is intended to take care of the normal public works requirements of the government usually included in the annual supply bills, such as federal highways, river and harbor improvements, and general public works, including the construction program of the Tennessee Valley authority.

Debt Charges Increase.

"This requested appropriation may therefore be regarded as regular instead of emergency. The debt charges for interest and retirements have increased considerably due to the growth of the national debt, but the decrease in the average annual interest rate has served to keep these charges down.

"The estimated expenditures for recovery and relief during 1936 are placed at $4,110,000,000, excluding $472,000,000 for the Agricultural Adjustment administration. I recommend that $4,000,000,000 be appropriated by the congress in one sum, subject to allocation by the executive principally for giving work to those unemployed on the relief rolls. An estimate of expenditure covering this amount is included in the budget.

"The total receipts for the fiscal year 1936 are estimated at approximately $3,992,000,000. When $570,000,000 of estimated processing taxes are deducted from this amount, there will remain for general purposes $3,422,000,000.

Gain Is Indicated.

"The detailed estimates of revenues and receipts for 1936, shown in statement No. 1, indicate a gain of $137,000,000 in the collections from income tax over those for 1935.

"This gain is due to anticipated improvement in business and to the upward revision of rates in the revenue act of 1934. The miscellaneous internal revenue taxes for 1936 are estimated to increase some $143,000,000 over the collections for 1935.

"This increase is predicated on the assumption that the taxes terminating on June 30 and July 31, 1935, will be extended by the congress, and also that the tax rates which would be reduced on June 30, 1935, will be continued. Otherwise there will be a reduction in the total estimate of miscellaneous internal revenue taxes of $378,000,000, thus bringing the total estimate down to $1,208,000,000, excluding processing taxes.

See Higher Customs Yield.

"Customs are estimated to yield $298,000,000 for 1936, representing a small increase of $11,000,000 over 1935. Miscellaneous revenues and other receipts are estimated to produce $250,000,000, a gain of about $23,000,000 over 1935.

"While I do not consider it advisable at this time to propose any new or additional taxes for the fiscal year 1936, I do recommend that the congress take steps by suitable legislation to extend the miscellaneous internal revenue taxes, which under existing law will expire next June or July, and also to maintain the current rates of these taxes which will be reduced next June. I consider that such taxes are necessary to the financing of the budget for 1936.

Urges Extended 3 Cent Rate.

"In this connection, may I say, too, that the postal revenues, as estimated in detail in the annexed budget of the postoffice department, are based on the continuation of the 3 cent postage rate for nonlocal first class mail.

"Unless this rate is continued, the postal expenses for 1936, which include steamship and aircraft subsidies and free carriage of government mail, will be burdened on the general revenues of the treasury. I, therefore, recommend the extension of the 3 cent rate.

"If the estimates submitted in this budget are approved, and if the expenditures for which authorization is asked are made in full, the deficit, including statutory debt retirements, will amount to $4,528,000,000 for the fiscal year 1936. The national debt will be increased during this year by approximately $3,152,000,000, thus bringing the total debt up to $34,239,000,000. But this increase, as I have pointed out, will be due solely to continued relief of unemployment.

CONTINUATION OF EMERGENCY AGENCIES.

"A number of the emergency agencies now authorized by law will terminate during the present fiscal year. Most of these agencies fill important present needs and should be continued. As rapidly as seems practicable, I am bringing the administrative expenses of these agencies under the supervision of the director of the budget.

ECONOMY LEGISLATION.

"Many of the estimates of appropriations contained in the budget are based upon the continuation of certain legislative provisions with reference to economy which are now in force. They are appended hereto and should be reenacted if the estimates are to be sustained.

"Among those continued is the provision for certain special salary reductions, the suspension of the reënlistment bonus to men of the military and naval services, the reduction in travel allowances of certain postal employés, permitting temporary reassignment of duties of certain postal employés, reduction in fees of jurors and witnesses, permitting transfers between appropriations, and the involuntary retirement of federal employés having thirty years' service.

Provides for Service Credits.

"Specific provision is also made for service credits to certain personnel affected by the suspension of increases in pay during the fiscal years 1933 to 1935, in the determination of compensation accruing subsequent to June 30, 1935, but without authorizing the payment of the amount that would have been paid during these years.

"Among the economy provisions which now obtain and which it is not proposed to continue is the 5 per cent reduction in compensation of government employés after July 1, 1935. I see no reason, however, for the restoration of this reduction prior to that date.

"The index figure of the cost of living, on the basis of which salary restorations are provided by section 3, title II, of the economy act of 1933, now indicates that such restorations in all probability would not even be justified on next July 1, or for some time thereafter.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE FORM OF THE BUDGET.

"Several important changes have been made in the form of the budget document for 1936. The purpose of these changes has been twofold: [1] To improve the usefulness of the document from the citizens' standpoint, and [2] to provide more adequate treatment of the financial requirements of certain governmental units, such as the postoffice department and the District of Columbia.

"The general budget summary, following this message, is designed to present on one page a comprehensive picture of the financial requirements of the government. It exhibits the anticipated receipts from all sources and the estimated expenditures for all purposes. It also shows the deficit and indicates the proposed means of financing this deficit.

In Aggregate Amounts.

"Since the figures presented in the summary are necessarily in aggregate amounts, the details of these amounts are shown in six supporting schedules. Both in the summary and in these schedules appropriate columns are carried to provide direct comparisons between the budget figures for 1936 and the estimated and actual figures for 1935 and 1934.

"The revenue estimates are emphasized in this budget for the first time. These estimates are set forth in statement No. 1 in sufficient detail to show all the principal sources from which the government gets its income.

"Accompanying this statement is a supporting text, which analyzes and gives the reasons for the 1936 estimates, and compares them with those for 1935 and with the actual collections for 1934.

Annexed Budgets Set Up.

"Annexed budgets are set up for the major self-supporting or self-contained units of the government, namely, the postoffice department, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Tennessee Valley authority, and the District of Columbia. The use of such budgets permits the receipts and expenditures of each of these units to be clearly and completely presented in gross figures and in balanced form, as has not hitherto been done.

"By following this method, the net figures for each unit, which may be either appropriation needs or surplus receipts, are calculated and then carried to the general budget summary. Thus the financial requirements of these units are definitly tied into the general budgetary plan.

"The annexed budgets are therefore not in any sense independent or multiple budgets, but simply integral parts of the government's general budget.

BETTER METHODS OF FISCAL CONTROL.

"In order to promote more satisfactory methods of budgetary control in the government, I propose this year to inaugurate the policy of having a summation of the budget prepared for publication immediately after the congress has acted on all financial matters.

"This summation will be ready on or before July 1, unless the congress is still in session. It will be presented along the lines of the general budget summary and supporting schedules, including statements Nos. 1 and 2, as shown in this budget.

"It will exhibit the revenue estimates, so revised by the treasury, as to reflect any changes in the economic situation during the preceding six or seven months and also any revisions made by the congress in the tax laws. It will provide a complete summary of all appropriations and expenditure authorizations made by the congress and related estimates of expenditures.

"Lastly, it will indicate the need for executive or administrative measures in controling the execution of the budget during the fiscal year 1936.

Asks Special Committee.

"A substantial reduction in the number of appropriation items would facilitate the exercise of budgetary control over expenditures and at the same time make for departmental economy.

"I, therefore, recommend that the congress establish a special joint committee to make a detailed study of the appropriation items in each regular appropriation bill with a view to greatly reducing the number of them, consistent with proper budgetary and accounting requirements.

"It is my belief that substantial adherence to the general recommendations and total figures presented in this budget will accomplish three major objectives: [1] The normal functions of the United States government can be carried on with economy and a high standard of efficiency; [2] the broad obligation of the government to use all proper efforts to prevent destitution can be maintained under more practical methods than we are using at present, and [3] the excellent credit of the government will be maintained for the common good.

"I believe that the congress will sustain these objectives.

STUDENTS CLASH WITH RED SHIRTS IN MEXICO CITY

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 7.—Five persons were wounded, some probably fatally, in a clash tonight between 5,000 Mexican students and Red Shirts during a demonstration by the former. A week ago in Coyoacan, a suburb of this city, five Catholics were killed beside a church there and one Red Shirt lynched.

The students made fiery speeches denouncing the government. Then they headed toward the Red Shirt headquarters, where they tore down a flag. Shooting soon began and the Red Shirts were getting the worst of the battle until the police and fire brigades intervened, using streams of water to disperse the gathering.

Then the students paraded past the national palace, but guards with Mausers in hand sent them scattering as they demanded dismissal from his office of Garrido Canabal, minister of agriculture, former governor of the state of Tabasco and originator of the Mexican Red Shirts.

HUEY LAUNCHES SENATE ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT

Assails New Deal for "Helping Wealthy."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Senator Huey P. Long arrived from Louisiana today and made his appearance in the senate arena with a violent two hour tirade against the Roosevelt administration. In his rare stentorian form the Kingfish raked the administration for "making the rich richer and the poor poorer."

The occasion for the senator's outbreak was ostensibly the recent statement of President Roosevelt that Louisiana legislation, ground out under the heel of Long's dictatorship, should be repealed in part or clarified. The penalty for not doing so would be the denial of further payments of PWA money to Huey's state.

Like Campaign Preacher.

"We can't coöperate with an administration that persists in policies that put 5 million more on the dole this year, threw a million more out of work, and increased the number of millionaires while the lower classes grew poorer," asserted Huey.

Huey then made the direct charge that the brothels of New Orleans had been owned by an opposing political faction that wielded the power of federal patronage in Louisiana.

All the Long gestures were called into play as he reached the temperature of a campaign preacher. Huey walked back and forth shaking a crooked finger at his unexcited colleagues, occasionally spinning around and whipping his arm over like a baseball pitcher.

"Not Afraid," Asserts Huey.

"The day after the Long ticket was announced in Louisiana," he shouted, "word came from Washington that now that Capone was taken care of, Long and 100 friends of his would be investigated on the income tax.

"Well, I ain't afraid. I've been indicted before for everything from stealing a cord of wood up to murder. Public life ain't that dear to me that I'd bend my knee and have a cuckhold heart, like some Democrats I know, just for the sake of getting a few crums from the federal treasury."

After a brief attack on Bernard Baruch, capitalist and occasional adviser to the President, Long sat down.

Before the session Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] was reëlected president pro tempore of the senate over Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg [Rep., Mich.] by a vote of 69 to 14. Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Oregon] was reëlected minority leader at a conference of senate Republicans before the session.

New Orleans Ponders Writ.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The city of New Orleans advised its chief creditors today that it may be a week, a year, or possibly longer before it can pay its debts under the temporary restraining order obtained by Senator Huey Long's dictatorship through the courts.

The muddle that surrounded the court order gradually began to clear today as the city fathers studied the restraining order and the judge that issued it explained, through a spokesman, certain of its provisions.

It was said the order does not prevent the city from meeting its pay roll or purchasing materials and supplies, but prohibits payments of open accounts or payments due on contracts other than bonded indebtedness. Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley awaited a formal interpretation of the restraining order from Judge Amos Ponder, who issued it, before outlining his plans.

Oil Workers Return.

Meanwhile in Baton Rouge laid-off employés of the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana refinery went back to work today on the strength of Long's announcement of compromise on his refining tax.

Refinery workers and other citizens, indignant that the tax ever was imposed and hostile to Long's general policies, pushed plans for repeal of the senator's "dictatorial" legislation.

Quick Growing Chinese Elms at Morton Arboretum

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Trees for Illinois.

January 7, 1935.

THE old fashioned note runs through the recommendations of trees for this part of the country made by C. E. Godshalk to men at THE TRIBUNE Experimental farms near Yorkville and Wheaton. From his many years of experience as superintendent of the Morton Arboretum near Lisle, Mr. Godshalk places the birches high up in his list of trees that have stood the test for planting around city and farm homes.

He finds the Paper or Canoe Birch the popular one among visitors to the Arboretum. One trouble with the birch is that trees are often attacked by borers. The trees do well in cool low soil or in high dry soil. The gray birch does well at the arboretum, indicating that it may be safely planted in northern Illinois. Mr. Godshalk says that the birch trees as a group furnish an attractive yellowish foliage, interesting bark all seasons of the year; they do not litter up the lawn; the leaves are small, usually graceful; and the top is lacy and effective in winter and summer. The weeping birch [Betula pendula youngii] is one of the most attractive trees at the Morton Arboretum. It is growing on a fairly high hill.

With the American elm, thornless honey locust and the birches at the top of his list, Mr. Godshalk continues to adhere to the old fashion note, and puts apple trees in fourth place in his recommendations of plantings for this region.

There are several varieties that may be used, including Jonathan, Wealthy, and Delicious apples. The apple tree furnishes flowers, fruits, foliage, and picturesque form. While this is not an apple section, the apple tree is considered worth while even if it does not produce a crop of fruit. At the Arboretum it is found that all four—elm, locust, birch, and apple trees—may be planted on the same lawn.

For ornamental border plantings, screen plantings, and as specimens on the lawn where shade is not desirable, Mr. Godshalk advises using the Flowering Crab, Mountain Ash, or Redbud or Judas trees. These trees furnish some shade, but are especially valuable where shade is not the major idea.

The Chinese or Siberian Elm is recommended by Supt. Godshalk for single specimens and for borders. It also makes an ideal screening. This new elm may be used for screening as the poplar is used in the Chicago region. He expects this elm to become popular.

A group of Chinese or Siberian elms, started from seed on the Arboretum grounds seven years ago, are now more than thirty-five feet tall. They have developed at the rate of five feet a year; some have grown six and one-half feet in a single year. They are used as a hedge in China; some are trained as dense hedges about five feet tall, or clipped as box wood. Since the foreign elm is grown from seed, the different types have not been fixed as is the case with the American elm. The Chinese or Siberian elm is still new; stock of this tree has just been offered by nurseries within the last few years.

The oaks rank high on Mr. Godshalk's list and he recommends them where the grower is willing to wait. The oaks are slow growing trees. At the Morton Arboretum the oaks average about fifteen to eighteen inches a year, while the American elm will produce as much as six feet of growth in a single year.

Oaks, including white, red, and burr oaks, are good trees in permanent plantings. The swamp oak is a good oak on either low or upland, according to Mr. Godshalk. He finds the poplar unpopular because it is brittle, but it makes a good screen and is recommended where a quick growing tree is needed. Some times oaks and poplars are planted together. The poplars grow rapidly, produce a screen in a short time, and often are removed later to make room for the oaks.

HOLDS MR. LOVE TO JURY FOR HIS FLOCK OF WIVES

Joseph Taft Love, 27 years old, 925 Leland avenue, was placed in a cell in the county jail yesterday after being held to the grand jury on a bigamy charge for $5,000 bonds by Judge Hartigan in Felony court. Love, a barber, appealed to the Town Hall police Saturday to lock him up in the station to protect him from some of his wives. Mrs. Viola Love, 3834 Sheffield avenue, told Judge Hartigan that she recently hired Mrs. Rita Schmid Love, 26 years old, to care for her 6 year old child whose custody she was given when she obtained a divorce from Love. It then developed that Rita was married to Love last May. The domestic tangle grew when Mrs. Ellen Meyer Love, 24 years old, 5426 North Western avenue, said she married him on Oct. 7, 1931, and they had never been divorced. Love said he was divorced twice before his marriage to Ellen Meyer.

INDICT LAWYER AS EMBEZZLER OF VET'S FUNDS

Amos B. Shepard, 36 years old, Wheaton attorney and former commander of the Wheaton post of the American Legion, was indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury here on a charge of embezzling $3,600 while acting as conservator for the estate of an incompetent war veteran. The indictment was returned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, who set Shepard's bonds at $4,000. Shepard was appointed conservator by the Du Page county Probate court for the estate of Simon Blazek, 40 years old, 238 South Grant street, Westmont. The estate consisted mostly of a $100 monthly disability payment from the government.

TOKIO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo will pay his first state visit to Emperor Hirohito of Japan early in April, the imperial household ministry announced today. The visit will repay one made to Kang Teh last summer by Prince Chichibu, brother of Hirohito.

SCIENTISTS SAY CHINCH BUG WILL BE WORSE IN 1935

Advise Plans to Forestall 31 Million Corn Loss.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Farmers were warned yesterday by officials of the college of agriculture of the University of Illinois, that chinch bugs threaten to be worse over most of Illinois this year than they were last year unless May and June are cold and wet enough to kill them off. The college authorities estimate that in 1934 chinch bugs caused a loss in this state of more than 31 million dollars to the corn crop alone.

Chinch bugs are more numerous this winter than they were last year, according to W. P. Flint, chief entomologist of the Illinois natural history survey and of the agricultural college at Urbana. He says that the weather so far this winter has been favorable to the bugs. The recent snow cover which extended over most of the infested area has been a protection to them.

Seek Resistant Seed.

With the present danger ahead, farmers in increasing numbers will begin searching for seed corn of varieties resistant to chinch bugs as one means of avoiding losses from this pest. Mr. Flint says that there is available only a moderate amount of chinch bug resistant seed corn, which is adapted to the north central and northern part of Illinois.

Of the so-called open pollinated varieties of corn, the most resistant is Champion White Pearl. This is not, on the whole, well adapted north of Decatur, Springfield, and Champaign, said Mr. Flint, adding, "I would caution any one against buying corn sold as resistant to second brood chinch bugs unless they are sure that it has been thoroughly tested. For the southern third of the state Champion White Pearl, Mohawk, and one strain of Golden Beauty are good varieties to plant."

The Recommended Precautions.

These three lines of attack against the chinch bug are recommended by Mr. Flint:

1. Plant the maximum acreage of crops on which the chinch bugs do not feed, such as soy beans, alfalfa, clover, cowpeas, buckwheat, rape, and other nongrass crops.

2. Crops on which the bugs do not feed should be so arranged as to avoid, in so far as possible, small grains and corn in adjoining fields. This will reduce to a minimum the barriers that will be needed between small grain and corn when the small grains are harvested.

3. Legumes not only should be planted by themselves wherever possible but also should be planted in corn.

Auto Crash Victim

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Cheyenne, Wyo., for Charles D. Carey, 52 years old, wealthy Meadow, Wyo., rancher, and his wife, the former Julianne Doane of Chicago, 39 years old. They were fatally injured Sunday night when their automobile, in which they were returning to their winter home in Cheyenne, crashed into a railroad underpass abutment a mile west of Cheyenne.

Mrs. Carey was born in Chicago and for several years was dean of women for the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company. She was married Sept. 2, 1933, in Chicago. Her husband was a Yale graduate and the brother of United States Senator Robert D. Carey of Wyoming. He was a widower with three grown children, Elizabeth, Louise and Charles, who survive.

Surviving Mrs. Carey are her mother, Mrs. J. Edwin Doane of Laconia, N. H.; her father, who lives in New York, and a sister, Mrs. William Holabird, 223 East Superior street. Mrs. Holabird left yesterday for Cheyenne to attend the funeral. Mrs. Carey will be buried in Cheyenne with her husband.

Son of Minister Draws 6 Months as Gun Toter

Edward Elliston, 23 years old, 2065 La Vergne avenue, son of a Lutheran minister, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Edward S. Scheffler in the Women's court, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was arrested New Year's eve when he flourished a pistol in a tavern at 3501 Armitage avenue, while in the company of Miss Agnes Peterman, 18 years old, 1940 Ballou street. A charge of disorderly conduct against the girl was dismissed previously.

"ARMY" SEIZES BILOXI CITY HALL IN VOTE DISPUTE

Mayor Elect Forms Council, Sets Up Guard.

Biloxi, Miss., Jan. 7.—(AP)—John A. O'Keefe, chosen in the August primaries to succeed R. Hart Chinn as mayor of Biloxi, seized physical control of the city hall with an armed force today and blocked Chinn's attempt to keep him from entering the office.

Chinn charges O'Keefe and his two commissioners were disqualified by irregular tax payments. After taking office the new city council set up a guard and ordered an audit of the books of the Chinn administration.

Finds Vault Locked.

O'Keefe then found the city's vault locked and the city's books and the seal barred to them. He announced he would move his cot down to his office and sleep there tonight to repel any attempt of the Chinn forces to oust him.

With guns bristling, the new commissioners headed by O'Keefe were sworn into office by a justice of the peace at a sea packing plant before some 150 of O'Keefe's supporters. The crowd, headed by armed deputies, marched on the hall.

O'Keefe took charge with Commissioner F. A. Tucci, elected with him, and John A. Swanzy, a holdover from the Chinn administration.

Injunction Move Seen.

Chinn was shut out with W. L. Parks, appointed to a commissionership vacancy several days ago by Gov. Sennett Conner.

They were in Gulfport today conferring with their counsel, former Lieut. Gov. Bidwell Adam. It was expected they would seek injunctive proceedings to prevent the new administration from performing any official duties.

Special guards stationed last night at the police station and the city hall by Chinn to forestall O'Keefe's entry into office offered no resistance. They were disarmed by the deputized squad of O'Keefe.

Find Bridewell Guard and Woman with Throats Cut

Joseph Janka, 53 years old, a widower, and Mrs. Caroline Kadlec, 41 years old, 3845 West 26th street, a widow, were found yesterday with their throats slashed in Janka's home at 2542 South Trumbull avenue. Both will recover, it was said at the county hospital, where the woman was taken, and at the Bridewell hospital, where Janka was treated. He has been employed at the Bridewell as a guard since 1924. Police said it appeared that he tried to kill the woman and commit suicide.

GUARDSMEN SEND 25 TO DETENTION CAMP IN GEORGIA STRIKE

Rossville, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Twenty-five men out of a group of sixty persons placed under military arrest here were bombarded with vegetables and they will be held in a detention camp for investigation of their activities in connection with the strike at the Richmond Hosiery mill.

National Guardsmen released the other thirty-five, including ten women.

The arrests were made when some of the jeering crowd about the mill failed to move at the guardsmen's orders.

The Guardsmen on several occasions were bombarded by vegetables and other missils thrown by persons standing just over the Tennessee line, 100 feet from the mill.

Alleged intimidation of employes by night riders caused Sheriff J. C. Keown to call for troops last week, shortly after most of the 1,000 workers at the Richmond plant walked out because of a wage reduction.

COUNTY PAYS WOLF BOUNTY; FIRST SINCE 1927

The first wolf bounty paid in Cook county since 1927 was authorized by the county board yesterday for A. R. Kelsey, Lemont township farmer, who claimed $30 for the pelt of a wolf he killed several days ago after it ate nineteen ducks belonging to a neighbor. The bounty in 1927 also was paid to Kelsey.

REAL INTERVIEWS WITH REAL FOLKS as told to Marion Lang EX-LAX Reporter

TRAINED NURSE PRAISES EX-LAX FOR CONSTIPATION

Maryann P. Lynch, 45-06—39th Place, Sunnyside, Long Island, N. Y.

SHE looked very competent, very professional, in her white, starched cap and spic-and-span nurse's uniform. And she spoke with the calm confidence of positive knowledge and experience.

Miss Maryann P. Lynch, trained nurse, is one of the 44,000,000 Ex-Lax users. Miss Lynch, however, is not only an Ex-Lax user herself, but she advises it for children. Here are the highlights of her comments:

"Being a nurse I'm on my feet most of the time, and have very irregular hours. I need a laxative now and then, and when I do I always take Ex-Lax. I find it very helpful. I also advise it as a good laxative for children. It is mild and very easy to take. And, from experience, I know children take it without any coaxing."

A trained nurse says..."children take it without any coaxing." Mother, what sweet music that must be to your ears. The kiddies love Ex-Lax. To them it is just like eating a piece of delicious chocolate.

But Ex-Lax is more than a gentle-acting, easy-to-take laxative. It's just as good for adults. It is as thorough in action as any laxative you can find. Thorough and complete in effect... without any of the faults of harsh, "dynamite" laxatives. Ex-Lax doesn't cause pain, doesn't nauseate you, or leave you feeling weak. It doesn't form a habit—you don't need to keep on increasing the dose to get results.

And, That "Certain Something"

Your Scalp Is Entitled to 121,630 HAIRS

Does It Have Them?

If you are a blonde your scalp should have 140,000 hairs; if a red-head, 90,000 will suffice, while a brunette needs 120,000 to meet present day requirements. The average healthy head of hair should have 121,630 hairs.

Nature provides your scalp with the necessary structure to grow this quantity of hair, but you yourself must help this hair-growing structure to function properly. If you have dandruff; if your hair is falling; or if your scalp is itchy you are surely on the road to baldness.

Let Thomas help your scalp make its quota. Thomas will overcome your falling hair and actually promote hair growth on the thin and bald spots. answered with a toss of her head: "I am!" Whereupon the crowd burst into applause and Judge Thomas W. Trenchard pounded for order.

LADDER BECOMES AN ISSUE

Less interesting to the crowd, but most important in the building of the state's case was the testimony involving the much discussed ladder. State Trooper Joseph Wolf told of finding the ladder, where it had been pointed out to him by Col. Lindbergh, who first saw it about seventy feet from the house. Wolf mentioned also the footprints of a man under the nursery window, the footprints, he said, of a man wearing a shoe about size 9.

The ladder itself was carried into court amidst a flaring of flashlights from the photographers gathered outside the courtroom.

Built in Three Sections.

The ladder is in three sections. It is of the extension type, the second section being narrower than the first and the third narrower than the second. It is so arranged that it may be carried under one arm when the sections are together, having a weight of not more than 35 pounds. It can be extended to reach a point some 25 feet high when all three sections are in use.

One section was broken, this occurring, according to the state's theory, when Hauptmann was carrying the child down the ladder. That fall, the state contends, resulted in the child's death.

Trooper J. Bornman also identified the ladder. When Attorney General David T. Wilentz sought to have the ladder introduced into evidence, Attorney Reilly and his colleagues made vigorous protest.

Disputes Use of Ladder.

"There is no evidence thus far in this case," Reilly insisted, "that this ladder was used in the kidnaping of that child by night."

Questioning of Bornman revealed that the ladder had been taken apart by experts in the search for fingerprints and in the identification of the wood and then nailed together again. The defense contended that the ladder was thus not in the same condition as at the time of the crime and could not be made a part of the evidence.

Judge Trenchard finally ruled that the ladder might be marked for identification and remain in court pending a final ruling on its admissibility. The same ruling was given to a three-quarter inch chisel found near the ladder.

In the cross-examination of Trooper Bornman, another squabble developed between the opposing lawyers. Attorney Reilly expressed wonderment that the policeman had accepted Butler Whately's explanation that he [Whately] had no connection with the crime. Whately is dead.

Turns Attack on Whately.

"Didn't you attempt to fit Whately's shoe into that footprint in the mud?" Reilly asked in seeming amazement.

"What, no," the policeman replied "He told me he had not been outside. I took his word for it."

"Every one at the house that night, excluding the father and mother, was under suspicion that night!" Reilly thundered. "Did you take Betty Gow's word for everything, also?"

"I did," returned the unabashed policeman. "You wouldn't accuse Mrs. Lindbergh of kidnaping her own child, would you?"

That referred to Mrs. Lindbergh's footprints under the window where she said she stood that afternoon, threw up pebbles, and so attracted Miss Gow's attention. Mrs. Lindbergh had testified to that, saying it followed an afternoon walk.

Renews Attack on Butler.

There were groans and hisses from the courtroom for Reilly, who has made himself unpopular with the crowd by his badgering of witnesses. The judge issued his usual threat to throw every one out.

The chief defense attorney renewed his implications that Whately, the butler, who died in May, 1933, had some sinister knowledge of the crime.

"Didn't you know that the butler was alone for two hours that night while the other servants were upstairs and Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh were dining?"

"That's not true," protested Prosecutor Wilentz. "There is no evidence he was out of sight for such a period."

"He was out of sight to a certain extent," admitted Trooper Bornman, "but he told me he was reading a magazine."

"You don't take the word of every one you question, do you?" Reilly asked. "You don't absolve a person because he says he's innocent, do you?"

"You take a statement, then investigate," the policeman said.

On redirect examination the policeman said he had found that Whately, not Mrs. Whately, as Reilly had contended, had served dinner to the Lindberghs that night.

Finds No Finger Prints.

Frank A. Kelly, a finger print expert for the New Jersey police, was the last witness of the day. He said he "processed" the windows and window sills in the nursery and all other furniture, but found no finger prints. He also observed the footprint under the window, but did not measure it or attempt to preserve it in any manner, he said.

During his testimony it was brought out that the state contends that only two sections of the ladder were used. Marks found on the side of the house under the window corresponded to the position of the top of the second section of the ladder, he said. These marks were "ladder marks," he said, deep scratches in the white paint covering the stone wall of the home.

If the third section had been used the ladder would have reached above the nursery window, Kelly said. There were no marks on the wall indicating that the third section had been used, he pointed out.

"So it's now your contention that only two sections of the ladder were used," Reilly commented to Wilentz. "You didn't say that in your opening statement."

"I said the ladder was used in the kidnaping," responded the prosecutor. "Nothing more. We have the ladder in here and we're going to prove it was built by this defendant. You can't keep it out."

"You're hedging," Reilly accused the attorney general.

The attorneys seemed to be getting too excited in the opinion of Judge Trenchard. He looked at the new clock on the wall, donated by a telegraph company, and ordered an adjournment for the day.

START DAY SMILING

There is nothing solemn about this hearing, although a man is on trial for his life, charged with a shocking crime.

As the jury entered the coutroom at the opening of the morning session, several of them were smiling broadly. A happy family spirit has appeared among the eight men and four women.

The judge had not yet ascended the bench and the courtroom crowd was, as usual, noisy and disorderly.

The jurors, instead of sitting down, stook looking around with interest. Mrs. Verna Snyder, the 260 pound juror, whispered something to her neighbor, Mrs. Rosie Pill, and they both giggled.

Betty Gow Enters Court.

Miss Gow entered the courtroom. The jurors may not have been reading newspapers, but they exhibited an awareness of Miss Gow's temporary importance. One juror pointed out the young Scotchwoman to his fellows. They all stared at her. She was smartly garbed in brown fur coat, brown hat of turban type with a feather in it.

Miss Gow's face is pale and some photographs depict her as almost pretty. She is not as good looking as she appears in the newspaper photographs.

The jurors sat down. Hauptmann came in, his usual stolid self. Mrs. Hauptmann, whose eyes always are bloodshot, as if she had been weeping, took a seat near her husband. They exchanged a glance.

Col. Lindbergh took his usual seat directly opposite the witness stand and not far from Hauptmann.

"Bessie Gow!" called Attorney General D. T. Wilentz.

Miss Gow sat very erect in the witness chair, her chin lifted, her brown eyes focused upon the prosecutor.

There was a slight burr to her speech, but mainly it was clear, her English well chosen. She later testified she had gone to work at the age of 14.

Miss Gow was employed by the Lindberghs in February, 1931, she said. Before that she had worked for a Sullivan family in Englewood, N. J. Before that she worked in a Detroit hotel and in several private homes in that city. She had come to the United States in 1929.

Takes Care of Baby.

Deftly, Prosecutor Wilentz led her through the preliminary questioning. She described her duties in the Lindbergh home. She took care of the infant when the child was in the Morrows' Englewood home on weekdays, she said.

"On the week-ends, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh would go to the Hopewell estate," she explained. "On those occasions, Mrs. Lindbergh acted as nursemaid to the baby herself. I usually did not accompany her."

Attorney General Wilentz questioned, Miss Gow replied.

Q.—On the week-end prior to March 1, 1932, you didn't go down to Hopewell? A.—No.

Q.—You were called down on Tuesday, March 1? A.—I received a telephone call about 11:30 a. m. from Mrs. Lindbergh.

Q.—You had not expected to go down there until then? A.—No, sir.

Drives to Hopewell Estate.

Miss Gow was driven down to the Hopewell estate arriving about 2 p. m., she said. Lunch was waiting for her. She was asked to recount what happened during that afternoon.

"About 2:30 p. m. I went upstairs with Mrs. Lindbergh when the baby awoke from his nap," she told the jury. "His cold seemed much better. We played upstairs for a time while Mrs. Lindbergh went out for a walk."

"Some time later, my attention was attracted to the window by Mrs. Lindbergh throwing pebbles from the outside. I held up the baby for her to see him."

There was an interruption at this point. The uproar of the crowd outside the courthouse, the shouting of newsboys, the clamor of the photographers and moving picture men had combined to make a deafening din, which made the witness' testimony almost inaudible. The crowd was watching a young woman being helped into a basement window by two men.

"I wonder if something couldn't be done about that noise?" asked the prosecutor. "It's making procedure in here most difficult."

"Well, we can try," Judge Trenchard said. "Let the sherif take some of his men and try to quell the disturbance."

Some deputies left the courtroom, but the noise outside thereafter did not perceptibly diminish.

"About 4 p. m.," said Miss Gow, continuing her story, "we had tea downstairs. Mrs. Lindbergh played with the baby in the sitting room. About 5 p. m. he ran into the kitchen and played for a while there with Mrs. Whately, the housekeeper.

Feed Baby in Nursery.

"He was given his supper a little later in the nursery. He hadn't quite finished when Mrs. Lindbergh came in and stayed until he was ready for bed," Miss Gow added.

"I gave him a little physic and he spilled some of it on his suit. So I changed his clothing."

"He didn't like the physic," Prosecutor Wilentz interrupted.

"No," Miss Gow said, with a little smile.

"While changing him," she continued, "I decided that he ought to have a proper little flannel shirt next to his skin. I cut one out of a petticoat and sewed it with some blue silk thread I got from Mrs. Whately."

The attorney general came forward with the tiny tattered garment found on the dead baby. Though the child's own mother had remained steady during a similar ordeal, the nurse visibly shrank from touching the faded cloth. But her identification of it was certain.

Identifies Baby's Garment.

"That's exactly the shirt I made for the baby," she said.

Attorney General Wilentz questioned and Miss Gow replied.

Q.—He wore it that night, the night he was stolen? A.—He did.

A piece of the white petticoat from which the garment had been cut was displayed by the lawyer. He asked the witness to hold the two pieces of clothing up for the benefit of the jury. It was apparent that they fitted together exactly.

Miss Gow also identified the blue silk thread which she had used. She described the other garments the child had worn that night, the woolen shirt over the undershirt, the woolen sleeping garment over that, and the thumb guard. The thumb guard later was found on the estate. The string tying the thumb guard to the baby's wrist still was knotted when it was found.

"That is the identical knot," Miss Gow said. "It never has been untied."

She told that the child was tucked into bed under two blankets and a quilt.

ONE WINDOW UNLOCKED

"The window to the southeast was shut but not fastened," Miss Gow said. "Mrs. Lindbergh and I tried to lock the shutter, but were unable to do so. The other window, the French window, was open, but the shutters were locked."

About 7:30 p. m., after securing the baby's coverings to the mattress with large safety pins, she withdrew, Miss Gow said.

The noise outside the courtroom had again swelled to the point at which it was interfering with the trial.

"I would suggest, your honor," Prosecutor Wilentz said, "that Col. Schwarzkopf [head of the state police] take some of his troopers and see what he can do about that noise."

State Police Stop Noise.

Col. Schwarzkopf left the courtroom. Soon outside there were mutterings and cries of protest, but the clamor abated. The trial proceeded.

"I went downstairs," Miss Gow continued, "and saw Mrs. Lindbergh in the living room. I told her the baby was sleeping peacefully and breathing evenly, and that I felt content that he was almost completely recovered from his cold."

"I went into the kitchen and had supper," Miss Gow added. She was questioned by Attorney General Wilentz.

Q.—Where were the others at that time? A.—Mrs. Whately was there and her husband.

Q.—What happened next? A.—About 8:30 we heard Col. Lindbergh's car come in. He entered through the kitchen and stopped to ask me the condition of the baby. I told him what I had told Mrs. Lindbergh, that he seemed very well.

Q.—What next? A.—I had a call from Mr. Henry Johnson.

Johnson is the "Red" Johnson, sailor on the yacht of Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co. with Col. Lindbergh's father-in-law, Dwight W. Morrow, the late New Jersey senator. Johnson attained prominence in the investigation of the case, as a friend of Miss Gow.

No more questions were asked by the state about Johnson. Miss Gow said she listened to the radio for a time that night and read a magazine for about half an hour. Then she and Mrs. Whately went, she said, to Mrs. Whately's room. There they examined a blue silk party dress that Mrs. Whately was making for herself. Mrs. Whately was the wife of Ollie, then the Lindbergh butler.

DOG WITH MISS GOW

Miss Gow said the dog, a Fox terrier, was with her at that time. With the aid of a pointer she outlined on the map the various positions of the persons in the household at the moment when presumably the kidnaping was taking place.

Miss Gow said she and Mrs. Whately were in the Whately quarters on the second floor in the extreme northwest wing, diagonally opposite from the nursery in the southeast wing. Whately was downstairs in the kitchen, as far as Miss Gow knew. The Lindberghs had dined and ascended to Mrs. Lindbergh's bedroom. They were talking there.

"Must Look at Baby."

"At a few minutes before 10 o'clock I looked at my watch," Miss Gow told the jury, "and said to Mrs. Whately: 'I must go look at the baby.' I walked down the long hall to the nursery."

Miss Gow was questioned by Attorney General Wilentz.

Q.—Did you meet any one? A.—No.

Q.—What did you find? The maid hesitated. She was nervous and her lips were trembling.

"I found things exactly——" she began and then stopped.

Miss Gow controled herself with an obvious effort and started again:

"I opened the door, but did not turn the lights on for fear of disturbing the baby. There was enough light from the hall through the open door. I crossed to the French window and closed it and then plugged in the electric heater. I stood for a minute waiting for the room to lose its chill."

LEARNS CHILD IS GONE

"I went over to the crib. I bent over it. I couldn't hear the baby breathing. I felt all over the bed for him. He wasn't there."

Miss Gow's voice faltered. Tears stood in her eyes. She touched a handkerchief to them. She tried to speak, but could not. Prosecutor Wilentz came forward hastily with a glass of water and she sipped it. The courtroom was very quiet. The scene was in contrast to the one when Mrs. Lindbergh had described her sensation at learning the child was gone.

The mother's voice had not broken, but Mrs. Lindbergh's very restraint had made the listeners sense the deep emotion she felt.

Hopes Mother Has Baby.

"I hoped—I thought perhaps Mrs. Lindbergh had him," Miss Gow resumed. "I saw her in the bedroom. I asked her where the baby was. She said she did not have him. I said: 'Where's the colonel? He may have him.' I ran quickly downstairs and said: 'Colonel, have you the baby?'

"He said, 'Isn't he in the crib?' and ran upstairs. He looked in the nursery. He said nothing but went to the closet and got his rifle. He came back and all three of us stood in the nursery."

Then, Miss Gow said, Col. Lindbergh turned to his wife and spoke.

"Anne," he said, "they've stolen our baby."

Again the witness almost collapsed. She again wiped her eyes.

Col. Lindbergh gazed at her with sympathy. A little muscle in Hauptmann's jaw twitched, but he gave no other sign. Mrs. Hauptmann touched a handkerchief to her eyes.

"Col. Lindbergh stood undecided what to do," Miss Gow continued, "then he said——"

"Object to what he said," interrupted Attorney Reilly, a little tardily aware of what these repeated comments of the bereaved parents might do to the sympathies of the jury. The defense objection was sustained.

SEARCH OF HOUSE BEGINS

"Mrs. Whately, Mrs. Lindbergh and I started to search the house," Miss Gow said. "We looked into the closets, behind doors, everywhere. Col. Lindbergh went outside. Mr. Whately called the police."

After the police came, Miss Gow declared, the three women sat, without speaking to each other, in the living room.

"I prayed for the safe return of the baby," Miss Gow told the jurors.

Miss Gow said she did not see the ransom note on the window sill until her second trip to the nursery, then the police were present, she testified. She noted also at this time a muddy smudge on the baby's coverlet. She was not asked if she saw the muddy footprints on the floor of the nursery as Col. Lindbergh had described them.

Finding of Thumb Guard.

Miss Gow proceeded to tell of the finding of the baby's thumb guard, a small wire contrivance intended to prevent the child from sucking one of his thumbs.

"Mrs. Whately and I used to take a walk every afternoon," Miss Gow said. "It was about a month after the kidnaping, about April 1, when we were walking one afternoon. I saw the thumb guard in the middle of the road leading to the house about 100 yards from the house at the gate. I recognized it immediately. I went right up to the house and found Col. Lindbergh and gave it to him."

Miss Gow was questioned by Attorney General Wilentz.

Q.—And you never left the Lindbergh estate during that month after the kidnaping? A.—No.

Q.—Please mark an "X" on the map where you found the guard, Miss Gow did so.

Q.—Now getting to May 12, 1932, you were still in the employ of the Lindbergh family. A.—I was.

Sees Body of Baby.

Q.—You went to Trenton with some policemen to a morgue there? A.—Yes.

Q.—You saw the body there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Whose was it? A.—Charles Lindbergh Jr.

Q.—What was the weight of the baby? A.—Twenty-six and one-half pounds.

Q.—And its height? A.—Thirty-one inches.

"Take the witness," said the prosecutor to the defense lawyers.

The portly Mr. Reilly arose. He had announced that he was going to "tear the witness to pieces." Miss Gow turned, faced him. She took another sip of water.

BETTY'S ORDEAL BEGINS

"How old are you, Miss Gow," Reilly began in a voice quiet for him.

"Thirty yea s," was Miss Gow's reply.

Q.—When were you first employed. A.—At the age of 14.

Q.—Where? A.—In Glasgow.

Q.—Ever work in London? A.—No.

Q.—Your full name is what? A.—Bessie Morton Gow.

Q.—You came to this country in 1929? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you work in Detroit? A.—O, several places. For a Mrs. Rocks.

Q.—You were single then and still are? A.—I am.

Q.—Did you go out with young men in Detroit. A.—I did.

Q.—Name them?

State Wins Skirmish.

"O, I object to that," interrupted Prosecutor Wilentz. "This is just a fishing expedition. Its not based upon any knowledge in the attorney's mind."

"It does seem rather remote, at this time at least," commented the judge. "I think I'll rule out the question."

Attorney Reilly resumed the questioning of Miss Gow.

Q.—Well, have you ever communicated with any one in Detroit since then. A.—I have.

Q.—With a young man? A.—No.

Many questions followed about whether Miss Gow had not filed an application with a Hackensack, N. J., employment agency, giving no references.

"Why weren't you able to supply any references?" Attorney Reilly wanted to know.

The state objected to the "able" part of this query and the objection was sustained.

"This woman is not on trial, not yet," Mr. Wilentz said, indignantly.

"Well, did you give any references?" Reilly proceeded. To that query Miss Gow replied with the convenient "I don't recall."

Q.—How did you get a job with the Lindberghs? A.—I was recommended to them by a ladies' maid working in Englewood.

TELLS OF 'RED' JOHNSON

Attorney Reilly switched suddenly in the cross-questioning of Miss Gow.

Q.—Have you some brothers? A.—I have two brothers.

Q.—What are their names? A.—Alexander and James.

Q.—Where are they? A.—Both are in Glasgow. They have never been out of Scotland.

Reilly retired in some discomfiture. He had announced he would get some important information about Miss Gow's brothers, intimating that he had information that one of the brothers had once been "in trouble with New Jersey authorities."

"Where did you first meet Red Johnson?" was Reilly's next question.

"In Maine," was Miss Gow's answer. "The Lindberghs spent their summers in a Maine summer home."

Q.—He was known as "Red"? A.—His name was Henry. I believe some of his friends called him "Red."

Q.—Where did you meet him? A.—At a dance in the village. I was introduced to him by the Lindberghs' chauffeur.

Tells of Seeing Movies.

Q.—You and Johnson went around a lot together? A.—Yes, we did.

Q.—You visited a lot of different places in Englewood? A.—Yes.

Q.—Met many people? A.—No, we met very few people.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—To the movies. Or we'd stop some place and have coffee.

Q.—Ever go to a roadhouse? A.—Not so far as I can remember.

Q.—Didn't you go to Palisades park? A.—Once, I believe.

Q.—When was that? A.—On New Year's eve, 1932, I think. There were two others in the party.

Q.—What were their names. A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Did you ever go to Hartford, Conn.? A.—Yes, to the home of Mr. Johnson's brother there.

Q.—Did Johnson have an apartment in Englewood? A.—He boarded there.

Q.—Where? A.—With a Mrs. Sherman.

Q.—What was his business? A.—He was employed on the yacht of Thomas W. Lamont.

Miss Gow Arouses Lawyer.

"Why did you come back from Scotland to testify?" demanded Reilly loudly.

"I came back in the cause of justice," Miss Gow responded promptly.

Attorney Reilly was very indignant about that answer. He moved it be stricken out of the record. Attorney Wilentz, smiling, said he thought it was a proper answer.

"Technically I guess he has a right to strike it out," remarked the judge, "so it will be stricken."

Succeeding questions developed that Miss Gow had been sent $650 by New Jersey authorities to pay for her passage and expenses here. Her cross-examination was resumed by Attorney Reilly.

Q.—When did you determine that your services here were worth $650? A.—I always intended to return.

Unable to Pay Fare.

Q.—When did you decide it? A. I wrote to Col. Schwarzkopf saying I was unemployed and couldn't stand the expense of the trip. The money was sent me.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you have not worked one day since you returned to Scotland? A.—That is a fact.

Q.—(In a booming voice) And that you never intend to work again? A.—(Emphatically) O, yes, I do.

Q.—Who paid your way to Scotland last August? A.—I did, with my savings.

Q.—How much were they? A.—My entire capital was about $800.

Q.—Did you ever take out citizen's papers? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever have the intention of taking out citizen's papers in the country where you earned your living?

State Opposes That Query.

The state protested this query and it was not pressed.

"As a matter of fact, because of the publicity in this case, I haven't been able to get a job," Miss Gow volunteered.

Miss Gow explained the trip to the United States to testify here had spoiled another opportunity for a job "paying three pound ten" in Glasgow.

The defense lawyer showed her two photographs. One picture, she said, was of herself. She denied with emphasis that the other was of her.

"Were you warned before you took the stand that you shouldn't identify one picture?" Reilly asked.

"I was not," was Miss Gow's answer. "That is not my picture."

Few Know Family Plans.

Attorney Reilly brought out in succeeding testimony that none but the household servants knew that the Lindberghs would not return to Englewood on the day before the kidnaping, but would remain through the week at Hopewell because of the baby's cold. The usual custom was to stay at Hopewell only over the week-end.

Attorney Reilly continued his cross-questioning of Miss Gow.

Q.—Why did you stay at the Morrows that week-end? A.—Because it was Mrs. Lindbergh's habit to care for the child at Hopewell herself.

Q.—Was there any one at the Morrow estate who knew that the baby was not going to be brought back to Englewood? A.—Mrs. Morrow.

Q.—None of the help? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—The first you knew then was the telephone call in the morning to come down? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you tell Red Johnson about that? A.—I probably did.

Q.—Why? A.—I saw him. It came out in general conversation.

Very Fond of Baby.

Q.—You were supposed to be fond of the baby?

"I was very fond of him," Miss Gow said, emphasizing the "very."

Q.—And yet you didn't volunteer to go down there when you heard he had a cold? A.—No.

Q.—Then no one knew the baby was at Hopewell except members of the family and the servants. A.—Yes.

Q.—No tradesmen heard it? A.—No.

Q.—No outsiders? A.—No.

"And you didn't tell this defendant here about it," inquired Reilly in one of his suddenly loud queries.

"No, I did not," was Miss Gow's answer.

CLASH OVER PHONE CALL

Q.—You don't suppose the telephone wires were tapped, do you? A.—No.

Attorney Reilly inquired about the telephone call made by Johnson to Miss Gow at the Lindbergh home on the evening of the kidnaping.

Q.—Did that call come after the colonel arrived? A.—Yes.

Q.—The Lindberghs were at dinner? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he tell you where he was calling from? A.—From Englewood.

Q.—Did you trace it? A.—Of course not.

"Don't you know that call was from Hopewell?" boomed Reilly.

Lawyers Wrangle About Call.

"I object to that sort of thing," said Prosecutor Wilentz. "It's not based upon any knowledge. I know that the call was not from Hopewell."

"And I object to your testifying," Reilly shouted.

"That is just a very clever way to stop the testimony of the witness at a very important point."

Q.—Why was that call so important? You'd seen him the night before? A.—He was leaving for Hartford and wanted to say good-night.

Q.—What time did he phone? A.—About 8:30.

Q.—How long did you talk? A.—About five minutes.

HINTS NEGLECT OF CHILD

"Now that child," continued Reilly, "had a cold bad enough so that he got a physic and had ointment rubbed on his chest and a special flannel shirt, yet you never visited him from 8 to 10?"

"That is correct," Miss Gow replied defiantly. "I was certain that he was perfectly all right."

Again and again, Attorney Reilly took the witness over the details of that night. He brought out that the house was well lighted, especially on the first floor, and there were no shades on the windows. No person outside the household knew the location of the nursery, Miss Gow admitted, so far as she knew.

Nursery Location Unknown.

"Well, you never indicated to any one where the nursery was, did you?" the attorney asked.

Q.—Now, when you entered the nursery at 10 p. m. you closed the French window? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see anything different when you looked around? A.—I didn't look around. I just knew the baby wasn't there and ran out.

Q.—How was the bed clothing? A.—Very slightly disarranged. They still held the shape of the baby.

Takes Jab at Whately.

There was more talking about the fox terrier in the home, Reilly cross-questioning Miss Gow.

Q.—Whately was his master, wasn't he? A.—No.

Q.—Well, he fed him and took care of him, didn't he? A.—Yes.

Q.—Anything that Whately would do wouldn't excite the suspicion of the dog? A.—No.

Q.—Did you hear him bark that night? A.—No.

Q.—But you've heard him bark when strangers came to the door? A.—Yes.

Attorney Reilly then launched an attack on the identification of the sleeping suit mailed by the kidnaper to Dr. John Condon as proof that he had the baby.

Several Sleeping Suits.

"There were four or five sleeping suits around the Hopewell home, weren't there?" Reilly asked.

"There were," Miss Gow replied.

"Was there any at the Englewood home?" Reilly asked.

"One, I think," Miss Gow said.

Q.—Have you ever seen them since the kidnaping? A.—I packed those at the Hopewell home. I didn't see them again.

"Now, as to the finding of that thumb guard," Reilly continued. "You could buy one of those in any drug store, couldn't you?"

"Probably," Miss Gow admitted.

Reilly continued his cross-examination of Miss Gow.

Q.—You've no doubt that it's in the same condition as when you picked it up? A.—Yes, it is the same.

Q.—How wide is the road where you found it? A.—About five yards.

Q.—Fifteen feet wide. And where was it? A.—In the middle of the road.

Q.—It was broad daylight? A.—Yes.

Q.—And this place was about 100 yards from the gatehouse, where the police were stationed? A.—Yes.

RESENTS CHARGE OF HOAX

Q.—There were hundreds of police and reporters all over those grounds following the kidnaping for days? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't see it on your way down to the gatehouse that afternoon? A.—No.

"You're sure," Reilly shouted, "that you didn't drop it yourself on the way down and find it on the way back."

"I am positive about it," replied Miss Gow in a voice nearly as loud. Her cheeks were flaming.

"And you'd have this jury believe," Reilly continued in the same loud tone, "that this bright and shiny implement lay there a month and was never noticed by all those eyes?"

The state objected to the "bright and shiny" description. So the thumb guard was handed to the jury to examine for themselves.

"Well, no one cleaned it since you found it, have they?" Reilly asked Miss Gow.

"It was muddier then," was the reply.

"I thought you said it was in the same condition as when you found it?" Reilly fairly barked.

Many People Handle It.

"It can't possibly be in the same condition with all those people handling it," Miss Gow retorted.

"You're a very bright young lady, aren't you?" Reilly inquired with heavy sarcasim.

"I am," was Miss Gow's calm reply.

This got the crowd. There were roars of laughter, a burst of handclapping. The judge issued his daily threat to clear the courtroom.

After the noon recess Miss Gow was cross-examined for only ten minutes more. She was excused after Prosecutor Wilentz had asked a few questions on redirect examination.

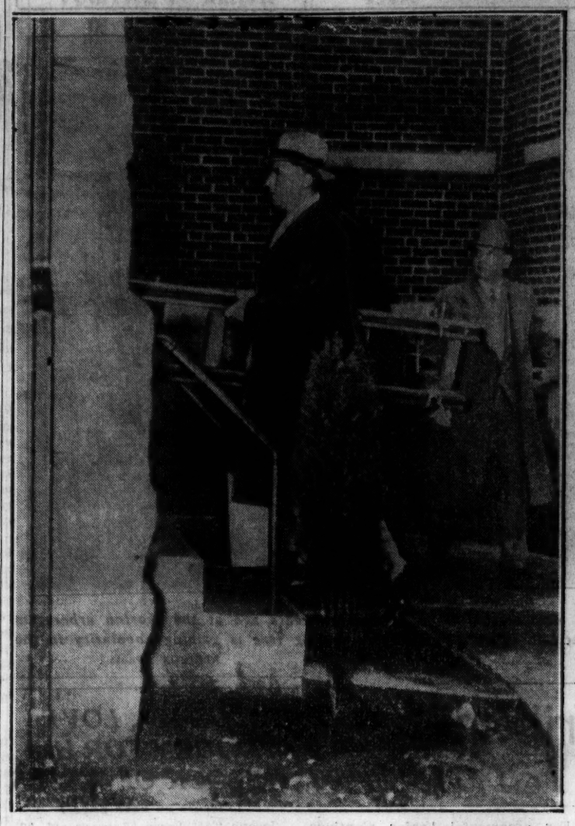
Kidnap Ladder Carried Into Court.



The famous Lindbergh kidnap ladder as it was being carried into the Hunterdon county courthouse yesterday. It was soon the center of bitter battle between prosecutors and defense.

SECOND RATE WORK, HAUPTMANN SAYS OF THE FAMOUS LADDER

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptman took a carpenter's interest today in the proceedings at his trial for the murder of the Lindbergh baby. The state and defense began today a fight over using the ladder as evidence.

When Hauptmann left the court room he was asked what he thought of the ladder.

"If I made that ladder," he replied, smiling, "I would be a second rate carpenter."

CONDON TO PUT HAUPTMANN AT CRIB, IS REPORT

Jafsie May Testify for the State Today.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon is to take the stand tomorrow against Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

It was reported tonight that Dr. Condon not only will identify Hauptmann as the "John" to whom he paid the ransom money, but also will place Hauptmann in the Lindbergh nursery on the night of the kidnaping.

State's Lawyers Reticent.

During the day Dr. Condon himself said he would not talk about the case. However, it is known that in his interview with "John" in Woodlawn cemetery, lasting for an hour or more, the two men sat close together on a bench, the elderly educator pleading with "John" to tell him the truth, because of the love he bore his mother, and on the honor in which he held his name and country.

"John's" answer to these pleas are not recorded, but are likely to come out in court. What is of greater importance to the state's case is the manner in which the alleged kidnaper answered questions made to test his veracity on the kidnaping itself.

Identified Blanket Pins?

For example, it is understood that Dr. Condon showed him two large safety pins and John is said to have answered "those are the pins that fastened down the blankets in the crib."

Then, before Dr. Condon would agree to pay the ransom money, according to this version of the interview, "John" assured him that he was actually the man who climbed the ladder into the nursery, took the baby from the crib without removing the blankets or disturbing them, and then started down the ladder again.

"Jafsie," it is said, identified Hauptmann as "John" when he visited him in the cell in the Hunterdon county jail. On that occasion he recalled to him the Bronx cemetery conversation in all its details. In parts of that jail talk it is said Hauptmann joined in a manner that indicated he must have taken part in the previous conversation.

Some Doubt Is Felt.

"Frankly, however," a member of the prosecutor's staf said tonight, "we are not sure that Dr. Condon actually will make any of these statements which he has promised. We still are not sure just what he will say when he takes the stand despite what he has told us at several conferences."

TABER AND KEHOE ON TRIAL TODAY FOR BUS MURDER

William Taber and Joseph J. Kehoe, officials of the street car men's union, will go on trial today in the criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers on the charge of murdering James Kelly, a bus dispatcher, who was beaten and shot on Sept. 26 in the violence that accompanied the bus strike.

Taber, who has been secretary of the union since 1902, and Kehoe, who has been recording secretary for the last 12 years, were indicted with 27 others on charges that they were involved in violence against the bus company which resulted in the deaths of Kelly and Mrs. Mary Kennard, who died after being struck in the head by a ball bearing thrown into a bus. Taber and Kehoe were granted a separate trial.

Ralph Stoltzmann, president of the union which called the bus strike and which is an affiliate of the street car union, was successful yesterday in having Judge Brothers set bonds of $105,000 for his release pending his trial.

ARTISTS FIGHT SALES TAX ON THEIR PICTURES

The Association of Artists and Students of Illinois, represented by Attorney Samuel A. Rinella, filed suit in the Circuit court yesterday to enjoin Knowlton L. Ames Jr., state director of finance, from collecting the 2 per cent sales tax upon pictures sold by association members. The artists contend that the pictures are products of their imagination and are thus intangibles which are not taxable. They argue further that they are entitled to the same status with respect to the sales tax as lawyers and physicians, who pay no tax on their services.

MAYOR BASHFUL ABOUT ASKING SEAT AT TRIAL

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—John Foran Schenck, Flemington's young mayor, is too modest to ask for a pass to the Hauptmann trial—much as he'd like to see it.

He's probably the only person in this town of 3,000 who has refrained from dunning Sherif John H. Curtiss. It hasn't occurred to him he might have political pull.

This is the first of may surprises. He is from Princeton, class of '27. He made the All-American lacrosse team and substituted as a football end. His family has lived here 111 years.

He's less than 29, fair haired, 6 feet 2 inches. He's glad the trial has brought much business to Flemington.

"I'm really obscure, too," he says. "When I ran for office I didn't expect this trial. Otherwise nobody outside Flemington might ever have asked my name.

"I'd love to watch the trial, but there are so many others interested that I am staying away. I thought they might have a better right to get in."

Mayor Schenck earns his living by working for the Foran foundry, which his mother's family owns.

LINDBERGHS GUARDED AFTER THREAT NOTES AT MORROWS' HOME

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Letters threatening members of the family of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh have resulted in the posting of a guard at the Englewood, N. J., home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother. The Lindberghs are staying there.

Anthony M. Hauck Jr., prosecutor of Hunterdon county, N. J., engaged in the trial of Hauptmann, revealed that he also has received threatening letters.

Col. Lindbergh is said to carry a pistol almost constantly. Special care is being taken of the Lindberghs' baby son, Jon.

TEA STEADIES BETTY GOW AS ORDEAL CLOSES

Warden Blames Hurried Eating for Dizziness.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—When Betty Gow finished her testimony today, she sat for a while in the courtroom. Complaining she felt "awful," she departed by a back door, opening into a law library.

There she immediately sat down. Mrs. Elsie Whately got her a glass of water. After a while Miss Gow continued to the home of Warden Harry O. McCrea, in the jail, which is connected to the courthouse. The warden said she had eaten a hasty luncheon at his place and that made her feel dizzy.

While rumors that she had collapsed spread through the town, and brought a crowd to the side of the courthouse, she sipped a cup of tea. After a while she left by a rear door and was driven back to Englewood, accompanied by Mrs. Whately. She was expected, according to County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, to return to Flemington tomorrow, although she will not go on the stand again.

The conduct of Hauptmann in his cell between sessions of his trial here continued today to be the only indication of how the prosecution's case is affecting him. At luncheon he ate practically nothing. The men on guard in his cell declare he paces back and forth in the "bullpen" outside his cell more than he formerly did.

Sherif John H. Curtiss, finding his office too full of persons seeking tickets for future sessions of the trial, and no other place in the building being available due to press arrangements, held an auction on the portico of the court house. He sold two mortgages. One for $10,000 on the Decatur inn at Glen Gardner, was bought by Ryman Herr for $100, and one for $3,000 on a 7 acre farm belonging to Ray Mitschele, was sold to F. E. Suderly, partne of County Judge A. O. Robbins, for $100. Almost 1,000 attended the sale.

John and Charles Smith, William Richter, Elmer Christian and Mitchell Gerstenberg, all of Bethlehem, Pa., started to copy the drama in a filling station belonging to one of them in that town. Finally they decided to see the actual trial. They left Bethlehem in an automobile at midnight and arrived here at 4 a. m. They stayed around the court house until about noon. Then, discouraged, they started back for Bethlehem to resume their presentation of the rôles of the trial by reading papers after assigning to each other the names of each day's principals.

As a witness today Betty Gow was asked by Attorney Reilly if she knew two women named Paulette and Louise Duboise. No clew was given as to why that was asked. Miss Gow said she did not.

In two hours 1,182 automobiles visited the Lindbergh estate Sunday, and County Engineer Walter E. Roberts estimated 5,000 cars were there during the entire day.

The New York Post, in a special dispatch said Septimus Banks, butler at the Morrow estate at Englewood, N. J., answered the telephone this morning and heard this question:

"Have you fixed a date for your wedding to Betty Gow?"

"I beg your pardon?" said Banks.

The question was repeated.

"I've never head of it," Banks replied with a chilling inflection.

The Post said Miss Gow and Banks were engaged to marry.

GARY POLICE SHOOT FUGITIVE TO DEATH IN STREET BATTLE

George Hall, 28 years old, was shot and killed in a gun battle by Gary policemen last night near a rendezvous in that city where he was to meet two fellow paroled convicts and divide the $2,200 they obtained in the robbery of a bank at Burlington, Ky., last Thursday. Unknown to him the others were under arrest.

The two, who were paroled with Hall three weeks ago from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City, are Ora Miller, who was discharged from the Gary police force five years ago, and George Wornick of Oak Town, Ind. The three planned to commit robberies outside the state and return to Gary as an operating base.

As they were fleeing from the bank robbery the automobile they had stolen in Gary broke down and the three separated, agreeing to meet yesterday afternoon in an apartment building at 220 West 8th avenue. Miller, however, was arrested a few hours later at Covington, Ky., and police captured Wornick in a Gary rooming house Saturday afternoon.

Learning of the rendezvous, Sergt. Harold Miller and Policemen George Harm and Herbert McConnachie waited in a squad car outside the apartment building. As Hall walked toward the building through an alley the policemen ordered him to halt. Instead he began shooting and started to run. Four police bullets cut him down and he died instantly. Hall was supposed to be bringing the bank loot, but only $315 was found on him.

Woman Cashier Gets Term of 1-10 Years for Theft

Miss Jane F. Callaghan, 38 years old, 5428 South Morgan street, was sentenced yesterday to a term of one to ten years in the women's penitentiary at Dwight for embezzling $4,000 from the real estate firm of Frank L. Langridge, 4654 South State street, where she was cashier for eighteen years. Miss Callaghan was found guilty by a jury three weeks ago and the sentence was given after Judge Grover C. Niemeyer of the Criminal court overruled a motion for a new trial. On the motion of Defense Attorney James Burke, Judge Niemeyer granted a stay for thirty days pending appeal.

JUDGE ORDERS A DIVISION OF TAX PENALTIES

In a decision yesterday Circuit Judge Joseph Burke held that Cook county may retain the major part of tax penalty money, but must distribute a share to other local governments. The judge said the county is entitled to all penalty money collected before tax delinquent property is forfeited to the state, but must distribute all penalties collected after forfeiture.

For 50 years Cook county has retained all this money, but many downstate counties distribute the post-forfeiture penalties. Judge Burke issued a writ of mandamus directing the county treasurer to distribute $750,000 in post-forfeiture penalties which he now holds.

Assistant State's Attorney Hayden Bell said he would appeal the case to the Illinois Supreme court. If Judge Burke's ruling is upheld it will mean that the county will have the right to about $3,000,000 collected annually in pre-forfeiture penalties.

HUMAN LIVES OR CONGRESSIONAL PORK?

The President says the dole is to be abolished and those who are now receiving it are to be put to work on useful public projects.

The saving of human lives is the most useful of all purposes for which the money might be spent. It is the one objective upon which there can be no disagreement.

Last year in Cook county 1,258 lives were lost in automobile accidents. At least 20,000 other persons suffered severe injuries from the same cause. A careful study of the circumstances of automobile accidents in Chicago led Prof. Miller McClintock of Harvard university to the conclusion that 72 per cent of them never would have occurred if a system of elevated highways had been in existence. If this estimate is correct, it follows that more than 900 lives could have been saved and would have been saved last year if there had been a modern highway system in the county.

Under the direction of Ald. Massen, chairman of the city council's trafic committee, extensive studies have been made of elevated highway routes and costs. In this work the Chicago plan commission, with characteristic thoroughness, has coöperated. A start can be made on extremely short notice. It is altogether certain that no other variety of major public work can be undertaken with so little loss of time, because the preliminary studies have already been completed.

The construction of superhighways falls in with the President's plan because of their great usefulness in saving lives, because there will be almost no delay in getting started and also because of the large numbers of men who can be employed upon them. At least half of the money advanced would be paid out in direct wages. At least another 25 per cent would be paid in wages to men working in steel and cement mills and other factories supplying materials and equipment. An appropriation of 20 million dollars would create 15 million dollars in wage payments in a year and provide steady employment for at least 10,000, and probably nearer 15,000, men now idle. It is not easy to estimate how many others would find jobs as a result of the spending of the wages, but certainly there would be several thousand others so benefited.

Today there is one automobile owned downstate for every four inhabitants, but in Cook county the ratio is one to six. The modernization of Chicago highways would increase safety and relieve congestion, and could be expected, therefore, to increase automobile ownership in and around Chicago to something like the downstate ratio. It would result, then, in an increase in employment in the factories making automobiles and automobile parts and also in an increase in the state and national revenues from licenses and gasoline taxes. In that sense, the government's expenditures on elevated highways could be made self-liquidating.

No one who has looked into the matter carefully can doubt the value of elevated highways in saving lives, creating employment, and improving the conditions of life in the city. The building of superhighways falls precisely within the specifications laid down by the President when he outlined the new public works program. If the work is not undertaken it will be because congressmen put their desire for pork barrel expenditures above everything, including the dictates of humanity.

Nine hundred lives a year can be saved if the citizens will force their will upon their representatives in Washington. The moment has come for the officials of the local governments and for all civic associations to unite in a demand that Chicago's share of the new public works appropriations be spent for the construction of a highway system which will put an end forever to the ghastly toll of deaths and injuries on our streets.

BUSINESS LEADERSHIP.

The success of a business exposition held by the Rotary club of Chicago last year has induced that wide-awake organization to repeat with an exposition which will take 35,000 square feet of space at the Hotel Sherman, for which 150 exhibitors are preparing displays. The great Century of Progress Exposition of 1933-'34 demonstrated not only that American industry and business could be illustrated most impressively, but that the public would promptly respond. The exhibitors at next week's Rotarian exposition undoubtedly have benefited by the effective methods of display developed for the Fair and will give a show well worth visiting. Restrictions of space have compelled the smaller exposition to limit admission to ticket holders, but the 17 Rotary clubs of the metropolitan district which have charge of the distribution will insure a well selected and representative attendance.

We think this exposition and similar ones which the Rotarians of New York, Detroit, and other cities are now planning have a special significance at this time. They will emphasize the part private enterprise can and will play in recovery. As America's amazing material progress during the last century is the achievement of men of courage, initiative, irresistible energy and imagination, so, as THE TRIBUNE has persistently preached, it is in these qualities we must place our main hope of economic recovery. The Rotarian exposition is an encouraging reminder that, in spite of the drastic losses of the last five years and the difficulties which still remain, these qualities survive in American enterprise and are actively at work conquering difficulties and laying the foundation for renewed accomplishment.

THE DAY OF RECKONING.

Mr. Baruch says he became possessed of gold mine properties quite indifferently upon the insistence of a mining engineer friend. When the government raised the price of gold from $20.69 an ounce to $35 there really was gold in the hills. Mr. Baruch is associated with Senator Pittman, the silver senator from Nevada. Mr. Pittman never has been indifferent. He is interested in silver mines and silver legislation.

When the government lifted silver prices from 35 cents to 64½ cents an ounce the value of the silver output was raised 151 per cent. Mr. Pittman's properties were not declared exempt from the profits derived directly from the legislation he and the other silver senators put through at Washington and from the executive orders following them.

The government has no use for monetary silver. Without silver it might create a panic by issuing currency on only its gold hoardings with the present statutory coverage if the public imagination took fright at the outpourings of legal tender. The silver policy is one of private profit and its sponsors are the beneficiaries.

The New Deal is one of pretentious idealism. It assumes the estheticism of a mendicant religious order. Its proponents are supposed to wear hair shirts, and when they lash out with whips of scorpions against greed, gain, and profits the austerity of their own lives is assumed to overwhelm the objects of their scorn. It follows that a blessing must descend upon their use of public money and their control of national resources, and that opprobrium must crush the persons who invite their wrath. There should be no dross found if the New Dealers went through the test of fire.

Democratic committees of inquiry have been raking over the ashes of Republican administration to find live coals of scandal. Before long, in the natural shift of public sentiment, there will be a change in the political control on Capitol hill. Then there will be a scandal hunt the like of which the country has never seen before. It will take minute account of Mr. Farley's subsidizing of the voters, of the political use of the public works fund, of the sugar quota and the market squeeze, of the monopoly practices under NRA, of the AAA bounties, of the gold and silver profits, and, it may be, of the relation of hy-bred corn to the corn reduction program.

The heat will be great. Possibly the innocent will come through it, but even virtue has a slim chance in the vindictiveness of a partisan inquiry.

WHERE CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN.

Picture service from Italy brings a photograph of Mussolini and his staf at the ceremony of sowing the first seeds on a farm in the reclaimed land of Littoria province, where the Pontine marshes have been drained and made fertile. The letter text says that the dictator scattered the first seeds on one of the farms and "helped the farmers in their humble tasks."

For these humble tasks Mussolini and his aids are in army review regalia. He is spurred and wears a military greatcoat which makes him look like a Cossack general on parade. The scene is familiar enough in most of its particulars, but it is probably because it is familiar that it has meaning.

It is assumed that dictatorship must constantly fill the eye. Mussolini is Belasco, P. T. Barnum, Augustus Cæsar, Pericles, and Napoleon in his better days. The Barnum is for his closet. The others are for the public gaze. If Mr. Roosevelt appeared at Warm Springs in the trappings of a general anxious friends would take Mr. Farley aside and the country would be pop-eyed, or if he appeared to review the fleet in the uniform of an admiral. What would happen if he went to examine a Wallace-Tugwell cotton plow-under or an Ickes desert dam looking like Gen. Scott at his best before the civil war is entirely unimaginable.

Mussolini intends to be the revival of imperial Rome and the part must be dressed. It must be constantly dressed, impressively, menacingly, pompously. Dictators must be allowed to know their business, the nature of which is at times dreadfully juvenile, as most affairs of the emotions are even when they are savage.

Editorial of the Day

HEAD VERSUS BODY.

[Danville Commercial-News.]

A farmer's head may easily be worth four times as much as the rest of his body when it comes to producing a net profit for his labor, says P. E. Johnson of the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

He points out that good farm hands can be hired for around $500 a year, which fairly accurately represents the value of the physical labor that a farm operator can perform. However, combining this amount of labor with good managing ability, the farm may produce an annual net income of $2,500 or more.

This has been demonstrated by the analysis of the accounts of 1,800 farmers in 89 counties in Illinois last year. Records on 36 farms revealed 12 farms with an average net income of $2,586 a farm, as contrasted with 12 similar farms with an average net profit of only $313 each.

The relative value of head work and labor with the rest of the body is about the same for any business. This accounts not only for the successful farmer and the unsuccessful farmer but also for the successful merchant and his unsuccessful competitor, no matter what their line is.

When land was to be had for the taking and it had not been robbed of its fertility, any system of farming made money for the operator. The same thing was true in the world of industry and business.

But with the development of civilization changes came, and more and more the head increased in value while the actual physical labor remained in much the same status.

It is that which has given us ambition, the desire to forge ahead. It is that which distinguishes us from barbarian people and the animals.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

HAVE THE ENGLISH a sense of humor? We often ask that question, being quite assured that we Americans have an abundant sense of humor. But the English themselves may question that when they read the reports of the trial of the man accused of kidnaping and killing the Lindbergh baby. Interlarded with the testimony of the witnesses are such comments as: "Here the spectators roared with laughter; "The audience in the little courtroom burst out in hearty laughter"; "The entire courtroom resounded with laughter." And this at a trial of one of the most ghastly, heartbreaking, sickening crimes ever committed. How any one can sit in that courtroom and laugh in the very presence of the parents of the dead child is beyond my comprehension. But maybe I'm the one that has no sense of humor.

SOME SAY the big increase in automobile fatalities is due to the repeal of the Sacred Eighteenth. Others say the blame should be laid on the depression which prevented car owners from buying new cars or keeping the old ones in proper repair. I burned the walls that held me in;
The smoke curled upward, gray and thin.

And when the ashes strewed the ground,
I took the first white road I found.

I sought the sea; when stars were bright

Ah, now at last I would be free!
The whole wide world belonged to me!

Storms tore my ship . . . for who was I
To paint my own unclouded sky?

MEXICO hopes to reduce the amount of strong drink consumed in that country by putting such a high tax on booze that only the very rich can afford to get snozzled. That is distinctly class legislation and would be met in this country by furiously indignant letters to the "Voice of the People" column. And in Mexico the new law will compel the common people, whom it is supposed to safeguard, to sell their shirts, charcoal stoves, their spurs and funny pants with jingle buttons on 'em and even the last can of tamales in the house just to get enough centavos to buy a half drink of pulque. And then, too, Mexico will become a bootleggers' Heaven. We tried to settle the Demon Rum menace in the United States by passing a bone dry law. To which the answer was: "Ha, ha, ha!" The same answer may be expected in Mexico or whatever word they use in the Spanish language to express excessive mirth.

Which probably consisted of little King Peter dragging the log around the great dining room of the castle while he sang that dear old song, "Yule be sorry when we burn you." I SAW a cunning little puppy in a dog store the other day that I wanted to buy for a boy friend. But the little puppy put his tiny paws up on my arm and looked at me so appealingly and sweetly and trustfully that I had to say: "No, little puppy; I don't dare to buy you. My boy friend is careless and he may let you wander ten feet out of his sight and then the dog catcher will get you and put you in the dog pound. Then you'll be strapped to a table in front of a crowd of medical students to be vivisected. You'll probably land there, anyhow, but I don't want ever to feel that I had anything to do with it. Good-by, little puppy; good-by, you poor, wretched little thing." And I had to turn away and get out of the store quickly.

SCARLET FEVER.

THE rattlesnake of infectious diseases is scarlet fever, and when it strikes it injects a poison that may prove exceedingly virulent. There are, of course, mild cases and cases of moderate severity.

The disease has been recognized since the time of Thomas Sydenham, who in 1675 distinguished clearly between measles and scarlet fever. Unfortunately, Sydenham stated that scarlet fever was a mild and harmless disease.

In 1923 George and Gladys Dick proved the existence of a substance [toxin] produced by a certain strain of hemolytic streptococcus, the injection of which into human beings is followed by the typical scarlet fever rash. Working with the scarlet fever toxin the Dicks have developed a plan of conferring immunity against the disease by the injection of graduated doses of the toxin. According to their method five doses are required, which are given one week apart. Reliable data show that this procedure confers immunity on 95 per cent of susceptible persons, and in the majority this immunity is retained for several years. Thus the door has been opened to the prevention and ultimate eradication of this dread disease of childhood.

There are different strains of streptococci—cousins, aunts, and uncles of the main family—and some of these relatives do not cause scarlet fever but are responsible for other disease conditions such as tonsilitis, wound infections, and puerperal fever.

The contagious nature of scarlet fever has long been recognized. Ordinarily the disease is conveyed by direct contact, that is, from the sick to the well, although not infrequently it is disseminated by toys and other articles that have been associated with an acute case.

After exposure, the disease develops in from one to eleven days in a susceptible person. The onset is characterized by sore throat, vomiting, headache, and in some cases delirium. The temperature is generally quite high, and although the face is flushed there may be no definite rash for several hours. The skin eruption usually appears first on the neck, the chest, and behind the ears, gradually spreading to the arms and legs, and looks as though the skin had been covered with a bright red paint. Peeling requires a period of from two to three weeks.

The vicious character of the disease can be well understood when one considers the numerous complications that may follow. Severe involvement often occurs in the throat, the tonsils, the glands of the neck, and sometimes the heart is affected. Middle ear disease is fairly frequent and in about one-sixth of the cases acute inflammation of the kidneys will develop.

The essential treatment of scarlet fever is good nursing, including isolation of the patient from any possible contact with susceptible persons. Ice packs may be applied to the throat and a generous amount of fruit juice and water should be added to a nutritious, easily digested diet. Restriction of food for fear of kidney complications is not advised. The room in which the patient is placed should be airy, and, if possible, sunny. Scarlet fever antitoxin should be used if the case is severe, and several workers, including the Dicks, have proved the effectiveness of such antitoxin in suitable cases. No single disease of childhood requires more careful management.

FOOT RELIEF.

A. G. R. writes: I had itching of the feet and was able to rid myself of the condition by the use of sodium hyposulphite. This can be purchased at any drug store. Place a quarter of a pound in as hot water as the feet can stand and keep the feet soaking for half an hour. Do this for three days. My feet were rather rough after this treatment, which was relieved by using glycerin at night.

FINGERS CRACK.

R. L. V. writes: The skin on my finger tips cracks and bleeds. What causes it and what can I do for it?

REPLY.

This is probably some form of eczema. You may remedy this condition by using some sterile ointment on the finger tips and finger nails several times daily. Sometimes it is a symptom of chapped hands. If the backs of the hands are rough at the same time you may attribute the trouble to cold weather, dirt and dust, and excessive drying of the skin. There are many lotions that are helpful.

DIET IN EPILEPSY.

F. C. writes: My family doctor diagnosed my case as epilepsy and gave me a diet in which the fluids are restricted. He claims that some cases of epilepsy are caused by excess water in the central nervous system. What is your opinion?

REPLY.

A diet rich in fats, with only a moderate amount of fluid, is recommended by many authorities.

RELIEVING PRESSURE CURES.

Mrs. F. G. C. writes: In your reply to a question on soft corns you suggested using tissue paper between the toes. I have cured my soft corns by using a small piece of rubber bath sponge between the toes.

Fabre, in his well known book, "Here and There in Popular Science," shows conclusively that there is absolutely no danger of our earth's being destroyed by comets. STEAM VS. DIESEL.

Wilmette, Ill., Jan. 3.—In the Jan. 2 issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE an article over the signature of Mr. James S. Brown contended that steam is cheaper to operate than Diesel, steam can be made to travel faster than Diesel, and that steam is more flexible than Diesel.

On the face of what was written the article was most interestingly compiled and I doubt if its veracity should be questioned, although I couldn't help doing a little wondering. Also, do his figures come from the train that made the fast run from Los Angeles to New York? The motivating power is supplied to the electric motors by means of an internal combustion engine, but this engine uses distillate for fuel. When distillate is used a more complicated arrangement of carburetors and such is used, similar to that employed in a gasoline engine.

But let us assume he is talking Diesel. First I should like to ask where he got his figures. For instance, he speaks of lubrication for steam as $550 against Diesel at $2,200. That would mean close to ten gallons of oil consumed a day every day in the year in the Diesel. Is that possible? Next the cost of maintenance is covered. In the figures $43,211 engine and cars are mentioned in steam against $119,115 for the complete Diesel train. Upon what basis are these figures compiled? Because if the first several months of operation are used as a basis we must remember that internal combustion engines of the larger type are a trifle more expensive to operate and maintain when new. As for the initial cost of each train, how much would it cost to build the steam train were it something comparatively new, as is the Diesel train? That is the unfortunate thing about new developments; they do cost more. I say the same thing about amortization as I did about maintenance. Upon what basis are these figures compiled?

I am glad to see the steam advocates working on plans for more speed, because it is true that steam can be utilized to travel faster. While working on this angle, what are they going to do about the 90 per cent of their heat units in the fuel being wasted, against the utilization of close to 23 per cent of the heat units in the fuel in Diesel?

Perhaps I should mention also that because of its lighter weight the Diesel train is more flexible and can be stopped and started with more rapidity.

Although I haven't tried to prove anything one way or the other, I'm afraid the steam men will have to kid themselves a lot more or else be afflicted with Dieselitis. A. F. CHILDS.

A STORY OF ACHIEVEMENT.

Mount Morris, Ill., Dec. 31.—Mr. Lee's story of the "rising tide of color" is most interesting. The writer, having had some experience in technical difficulties in the operation of magazine rotary presses in an executive capacity, can appreciate fully the difficulties met and overcome by THE TRIBUNE departments in achieving their triumph. I recall the editorial giving credit to the department heads of THE TRIBUNE mechanical staf when the first color page appeared in 1931. What impressed me was that THE TRIBUNE did not call in industrial engineers, efficiency experts, or even a brain truster, but encouraged its own men to work out the problem and then was thoughtful enough to give them credit. To my mind this is as much an achievement in good management as is the success in surmounting the color problem. It shows THE TRIBUNE has executives who can get the best out of their men by inspiring them with zeal that money or wages cannot always bring, the knowledge that they will get recognition with a big "R."

Mr. Lee's story was well told and is intensely interesting. He handled the difficulties of the technical problems in a clear way, perhaps more fully appreciated by the technical man than by the layman. A. H. RITTENHOUSE.

DOUBLE TAXATION!

Chicago, Dec. 31.—The proceeds of the $22,500,000 board of education bonds which are now being offered and which run serially for twenty-five years more were used to pay the school teachers of the city of Chicago part of their 1934 salaries.

When the estimated budget for 1934 was made up it was expected these salaries would be paid out of this budget, and when the 1934 taxes are in collection in November, 1935, will this $22,500,000 be included, which apparently would make a double taxation, or will the board of education's budget be reduced that much, thereby reducing the 1934 tax bills by $22,500,000? RUTH INGRAM.

THEY ANSWERED, ALL BUT ONE.

Painesville, O., Dec. 31.—It seems incredible that a newspaper like THE TRIBUNE would stoop so low as to print trashy and nonsensical articles like your editorial "They Answered, All But One." At this time when the peoples' minds are already poisoned why add more fuel to the burning fire of hatred existing among the English speaking peoples?

When King George talked to his subjects on Christmas day it was a message of good will, not for the English speaking peoples alone, but for all the peoples of this world, which at this time need a bit of encouragement even if it has to come from the king of England.

It would be a good idea if your newspapers would encourage your own Presidents to send Christmas greetings to the unfortunate starving peoples of Porto Rico, Virgin Islands, and the Philippines, which at present are being starved and held in submission by American guns.

SIRENS FOR AIRPLANES.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The delay, trouble and expense in finding the flyers lost in the Adirondack mountains might have been avoided had their plane been equipped with a siren run by battery and by hand power. A siren at 2,200 feet altitude in the silent mountains could have been heard several miles away.

A public highway lies only two miles from the accident, yet four lives were nearly lost because they could not make themselves seen nor heard.

The public and passenger safety requires that all planes have a siren for warning of emergency landings and to signal for help. M. D.

DIRTY WINDOWS.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—For some years I have been a rider of the railroads, elevated, and surface lines, and I cannot recall a time when the windows of all the cars were as filthy as they are now.

Some hot water and a few squeegees will soon remedy this and will give work to probably one hundred men without invading the revenues of the public carriers to any vast extent.

LEGISLATORS OFF TO SPRINGFIELD; CAUCUS TONIGHT

Democrats to Settle Row Over Speakership.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Legislators started for Springfield yesterday to attend party caucuses tonight and convene the 59th general assembly tomorrow. They will step into a seething political row, for the question of officers of both houses was still far from being settled as the night trains left for the capital.

The speakership situation was static. Representatives John P. Devine of Dixon and Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, both Democrats, were in the lead for the speakership, each assured of a comfortable bloc of supporters, but it could not be determined which would have the better chance to win a majority of their downstate Democratic colleagues.

Boyle the Chicago Entry.

This left the Cook county delegation holding the balance of power and it is pledged to Representative James P. Boyle, Chicago Democrat. Undoubtedly Boyle, who is connected with the city administration as a member of the board of local improvements, will get the 35 Cook county votes on the first caucus roll, but he would still be eight votes shy on the 43 majority necessary to carry the caucus.

Assuming that the 49 downstaters all split their votes between Sinnett and Devine and refuse to switch to Boyle, the Chicagoans would have to choose between the two. In that event, Devine was considered more likely to gain.

Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago is slated for Democratic floor leader if the speakersip goes downstate.

The contest for Republican floor leader, which will be decided in the form of a nomination for speaker, lies between Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, the incumbent, and Leroy M. Green of Rockford, powerful downstate leader. Schnackenberg believes he will receive all but one or two of the 21 Cook county Republican votes and feels that he will have sufficient downstate support to total the 35 necessary votes to win in the caucus.

Barr Not a Candidate.

In the senate, with Richard J. Barr of Joliet, veteran Republican leader, not a candidate for reëlection, Earl B. Searcy of Springeld will probably be the Republican choice for floor leader.

The majority posts are less certain, but Senator Richey V. Graham, Cicero Democrat, is confident that he will be reëlected as president pro tem. In case of a mixup in the Democratic caucus, Rollo M. Shaw of Lawrenceville would be the likely choice. Shaw will be named floor leader in case Graham remains president pro tem, it was believed.

Gov. Horner continued his hands off attitude so far as the speakership is concerned, except that it is known he prefers it to go to a downstater. He is actively for Graham in the senate and for Shaw for floor leader.

National Committeeman P. A. Nash will accompany the Chicago Democratic bloc to Springfield as chief lobbyist for the Boyle cause.

MOODIE TAKES OFFICE; RETAINS MORATORIUM ACT

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Taking office quietly today, with the question of his eligibility still unsettled, Gov. Thomas H. Moodie as his first official act reaffirmed a mortgage moratorium proclaimed by his predecessor, Ole H. Olson.

Covering all debts incurred up to June 28, 1934, the moratorium is designed to prevent farm and home foreclosures "for the duration of the present economic and agricultural crisis."

The purpose of the reproclaiming of the mortorium, Moodie explained, was to give "our people such protection against unreasonable creditors as may be required until the state legislators or congress may provide means for achieving the same end."

Pending in the courts is Attorney General P. O. Sathre's challenge of Moodie's right to office on the ground the new governor has not lived in the state five consecutive years before his election as required by the state constitution.

THREE MORE SUE COUNTY TO GET DEDUCTED PAY

Thomas J. Bowler, former president of the sanitary district and now clerk of the Criminal court; Howard W. Elmore, former sanitary district trustee, and Miss Rose Bell, former secretary to Bowler, filed mandamus suits yesterday in Circuit court to collect the amounts deducted from their salaries under the 15 per cent economy program of the late Mayor Cermak.

Bowler and Elmore ask for $2,187 each while Miss Bell asks $1,020. So far Circuit Judge Joseph Burke has issued writs to seven county officials who sued to collect their back pay. Approximately 4,000 county employés who shared the economy cut are without legal recourse to collect the amounts deducted from their salaries.

County Schools to Press for $160,000 from State

Otto F. Aken, Cook county superintendent of schools, announced yesterday that he would renew his plea for a grant of $160,000 to aid financially distressed rural and village schools of Cook county in a petition to be forwarded next week to Gov. Horner. All county schools but seven in three districts were open yesterday after the Christmas vacation, but Aken predicted that 41 districts would not be able to continue classes through the present term.

EWING, BRITISH NAVY'S 'EYES' IN WAR, DIES AT 79

Decoded German Signals for Admiralty.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Sir Alfred Ewing, one of the "men who won the war," died today at Cambridge at the age of 79. Ewing was professor of mechanical engineering at Cambridge as well as a director of naval education at the admiralty before the world war. His hobby was cryptography.

This became known to Capt. [now admiral] Hall, who was director of naval intelligence, and he installed Ewing, with a small staf, in the famous "Room 46" at the Admiralty. There the scientist was given the task of deciphering German coded wireless messages intercepted by the British radio as well as captured documents.

Discovered Battle Plans.

So successful did Ewing prove to be that before long every move made by the Germans was known to the British admiralty as quickly as to the German recipients of the orders.

He was able from intercepted messages to tell the admiralty that German ships were coming out before the battle of Dogger Bank, in the North sea. The battle of Jutland was fought because he was able to tell the admiralty of German plans days before the battle.

He deciphered the famous Zimmerman telegram which revealed a conditional German offer of an alliance with Mexico against the United States early in 1917. He also picked up the U-boat commander's exultant report of the sinking of the Lusitania.

Sir Alfred and his staf became so expert that they were able to boast that no German cipher remained unbroken for more than three hours after reaching their hands.

OFFER TO MEXICO.

Arthur Zimmerman, German secretary of state, invited Mexico to enter an alliance, offering her as a reward the states of New Mexico, Texas, and Arizona. The message was intercepted and was published by President Wilson March 1. It was a primary cause of the United States declaration of war. Zimmerman retired several months later.

TRAIN SMASHES AUTO; 3 IN CAR LEAP TO SAFETY

Two men and a boy narrowly escaped injury last night when a Rock Island railroad train struck and demolished the automobile in which they were riding at 97th and May streets. All three saw the lights of the train through the fog in time to jump clear.

A rear wheel of the automobile had skidded onto the slippery rails of the crossing and Edward Shroyer, 6945 Lowe avenue, driver of the car, could not get it free in time. His passengers were Hans G. Hahn, 1039 West 97th street, and Hahn's son Howard, 14 years old.

Charles Arnold, 25 years old, 31 West 109th street, driver of an automobile which skidded off the Chicago road a half mile north of Thornton early yesterday, later was absolved by a coroner's jury of blame for the death of Mrs. Marcella Hughes, 20 years old, 1430 East 69th street, a passenger in the car who was killed in the accident. Mrs. Hughes' death brought the Cook county motor fatality toll to 9 for 1935.

J. C. Huntington, 5330 Cornell avenue, one of five persons injured Christmas eve when two automobiles collided on route 9 west of Gibson City, died Sunday night in a Bloomington hospital. His wife died of her injuries a few hours after the accident.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—When Paramount studio ordered work on Mae West's current picture, "Now I'm a Lady," temporarily suspended because of the death yesterday of her father, the actress insisted on carrying on. "All these people are going to need their pay checks," she said. "I'll be at the studio at 9 o'clock."

And she was there.

Her paternal grandparents, the Rodham Allens, who had been large land owners in Virginia, founded and named the town of Mount Vernon. Mrs. Gowenlock was born there Aug. 27, 1856.

When she was 18 years old she married Thomas Gowenlock, a mining engineer, and moved to Colorado, where her husband became the first mayor of Leadville, Colo. Her husband preceded her to their new home and she rode 80 miles in a stagecoach and 110 miles on horseback to join him. Mr. Gowenlock died 20 years ago. A son, Col. Thomas Gowenlock, of the Ambassador hotel survives.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

They're calling Ted Weems Dick Tracy these days. For months radio orchestras all over town have been losing instruments mysteriously—thousands of dollars' worth. Last week the Palmer house maestro caught the thief, one Jack Sedehl, a drummer in balmier days, endeavoring to make off with instruments from the bandstand. Brought before Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court, Sedehl pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell.

Dozens of pawn tickets in Sedehl's pockets enabled local orchestra men to recover more than $2,000 worth of stolen instruments. Among these were a trumpet belong to Art Weems, Ted's brother; drums belonging to Kay Kyser of the Blackhawk, another W-G-N maestro; Richard Cole's violin, stolen months ago when he was at the Palmer house, and drums taken from Harry Sosnik's stand at the Edgewater Beach hotel last summer.

Sedehl also stole high priced arrangements from the bands at the better hotels and sold them for a few dollars to obscure orchestras, which came to regard him as a veritable Ferde Grofe or Frank Black because of his fancy orchestrations. He usually made his appearance while the bandsmen were gone, posing as a repair man or a station official, occasionally pausing to ask a head waiter to have the house piano tuned.

George F. Isaac, commercial manager of W-G-N, has been appointed executive head of the radio department of Lord & Thomas Advertising agency, Chicago. Isaac has been commercial manager of the station for five years and associated with THE TRIBUNE for ten. Lewis Goodkind and Basil Loughrane continue in their respective posts at the agency.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor, will be guest soloist with the Boston Symphony at the Providence, R. I., choral festival next Sunday. . . . Dr. Herman N. Bundesen will open a new commercial program on WMAQ next Monday. The cereal maker who previously has had Babe Ruth on the air will pay the bills. Assisting Dr. Bundesen will be Larry Larsen, organist; David Moll, violinist, and Les Tremayne, announcer. . . . Sally Rand once more will explain her art over the air. The time: 4 o'clock tomorrow over WIND.

Charles Winninger—"Capt. Henry" until two months ago—is auditioning for a new radio program. . . . Mario Chamlee, opera singer, is to return to the air shortly as half of a team to be called "Tony and Gus." Tony will play the part of an Italian street singer; Gus, a Swedish prize fighter.

This Dog Actor Learns Jargon of Movie Lot

Role Is Serious Business to Lightning.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Because the dog actor, Lightning, is so smart he understands words, the director, Edward Sloman, the dog's master, a man named Johnston; the assistant director, and others working on the story "Dog of Flanders" at Radio-R. K. O. studio have to spell out the things they want the dog and members of the cast to do.

The dog, a grandson of the old police dog movie star, Strongheart, takes his cues from certain words and inflections and it is to avoid misleading him that Sloman spells his directions.

When a scene or a take has been satisfactorily shot the dog's reward is to be allowed to play with his rubber ball; he gets nothing to eat, only the permission to romp and evidently this is compensation for Lightning beyond all the hamburger in Hamburg.

Lightning is the most affable and kindly of actors while he is working, but when his scene is completed and he is told by his master to wait in his box, the kindly public manner vanishes and the dog snarls at people who come near him talking loudly or seem to intend to pet him.

Frankie Thomas, 12 years old, with blue eyes and yellowish hair, and O. P. Heggie play the important human rôles in the film and the dog gravely but willingly engages in rather formal frolics with young Thomas.

This movie dog is so smart that he knows what the director's phrase "cut" means. When Sloman says "cut," indicating the end of a scene, the dog breaks his silence and his bit of action, whatever it is, and runs, sniffing, and making delighted throaty sounds to hunt for his ball.

In one scene of "Dog of Flanders" on the day I was on the set, Frankie Thomas was supposed to be in tears because the dog's mean master, who had beaten him once before, came to take Lightning away after the kid had nursed the animal back to health. Frankie's mother, who was on the set with him, came over to Frankie and slapped his cheek. Then she chided Frankie for something and the kid went before the camera with tears trickling down.

In a few minutes the director said "cut" and a bright smile magically effaced Frankie's tears. He came running to his mother beaming and said "Thanks, Ma," the thanks being for the slap and the bawling out which put him "in the mood."

In the last several months Hollywood has begun to be accustomed to hear the title "Hollywood's Prettiest Actress" bestowed on Rosita Moreno. Miss Moreno is a native of Madrid, Spain, daughter of La Pilarica, a famous Spanish dancer, and herself began her career in America as a dancer. She is engaged to be married in June to Melville Shauer, one of the Paramount studio executives.

Joan Crawford's Christmas present to Franchot Tone was a sixteen cylinder automobile of expensive American make.

Warner studio was making a recapitulation of its contract players for 1935 and discovered 21 of them were Irish or of Irish extraction.

Louise Fazenda expects shortly to have her book, a semi-autobiography titled "Anything for a Laugh," completed.

The voice teacher of Ethelreda Leopold, Chicago's precocious artist dancing-acting-beauty winning contribution to the movies, is Josephine Dillon, who was Clark Gable's first wife.

Guest in City

Miss Elizabeth-Ann Field will come to Chicago as a bride in March. She is the daughter of the Charles Barr Fields of Rye, N. Y., and her engagement to Lester B. Knight Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Knight of Larchmont, N. Y., was announced on Christmas day. Miss Field, who was graduated from Mount Vernon seminary in 1933, is in Lake Forest visiting her aunt and uncle, the Eugene Fauntleroys, and seeing several of her friends among Mount Vernon alumnæ. Mr. Knight, who was graduated from the school of engineering at Cornell university in 1929, is engaged in business here and he and his bride-to-be are spending their spare moments apartment hunting.

Hairdressers Told How They Can Help Guard Patron's Health

At the monthly meeting of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association last night at the Hotel Sherman Dr. B. Barker Beeson, chief of the department of skin diseases at Cook County hospital, pointed out the beauty culturist's responsibility as a guardian of a patron's health.

In an illustrated lecture on what the beautician should know about skin diseases Dr. Beeson demonstrated that the alert operator is in a position to warn clients of the possible advent of cancer when certain easily recognized symptoms are found to be present and that, in the case of contagious diseases, it is to his own as well as the client's advantage to know external danger signals.

Dr. Beeson amplified his lecture with a discussion of moles that are potentially cancerous, of peculiar cases of baldness, of acne and ringworm and urged members of his audience to acquaint themselves with a working knowledge of the symptoms of each.

Society Forms Study Clubs on Current Events

Meet at Members' Homes Each Week.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Now that the holiday season with its attendant festivity is a matter of history, current topics ranging from the Saar plebiscite to President Roosevelt's public works program are assuming increasing importance in drawing rooms as well as lecture halls.

According to a hasty census among several dozen prominent families, it is the fashion to spend at least one afternoon or evening a week in discussion with a recognized authority on national and international affairs. Clifton Utley, director of the Council on Foreign Relations, is one of the favorite leaders. Others are Dr. Hugo Simon, former German consul general here and now professor in the department of political science at Northwestern university, and Mrs. Quincy Wright.

One of the largest and most interesting current topics groups is meeting informally every Wednesday evening at the homes of various members. Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne will be the host and hostess and the discussion will center about some phase of the New Deal. Well aware that it is necessary to live under the NRA, whether indorsing it or not, the group is treating various phases of it on consecutive Wednesdays. The policies of the national labor board have already been treated and so has the federal housing administration.

Some Who Attend These Discussions.

The Sterling Mortons review current affairs with this class. So do Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Cook Kimball, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Lawrence M. Viles, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, and Mrs. William P. Conger and her daughter, Miss Cornelia Conger.

Mr. Utley leads the group and also a similar class that meets every Monday evening in Lake Forest either at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps or that of Mr. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift. The Lake Foresters start their meetings in the early fall and continue through the last week in January.

A mixed group meeting frequent Tuesday evenings in various near north side drawing rooms is the outgrowth of a similar afternoon group that was for ladies only. Attending these meetings, among others, are Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Odell, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harris Brewer.

There are still, however, several afternoon groups for ladies only. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Utley led such a symposium for a number of young matrons at Mrs. Adlai Stevenson's home. Every Thursday afternoon a group of intellectually interesting women in Lake Forest assembles to discuss national and foreign affairs under the leadership of Mr. Utley. Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr. is one of the moving forces in this class which will meet this Thursday at the home of Mrs. Walter Hoving.

Lecture Series by Dr. Simon

More formal is the series of three lectures on "Current International Politics" by Dr. Simon to be heard the next three weeks in homes on the near north side. Mrs. Henry Bartholomay will be hostess for the first lecture at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at her home at 1455 N. State parkway. A week from tomorrow Dr. Simon will lecture in Mrs. Raymond Redheffer's drawing room at 1430 Lake Shore drive and on Jan. 23 Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger will be the hostess at her home at 1400 N. State parkway.

Because the Junior Leaguers indicated such enthusiastic interest in Mr. Utley's current events' lectures last

The grandmother of a Chicago child put her on the train in Detroit Saturday and as she put her into a chair in the parlor car addressed the blonde young woman wearing a sable coat who sat in the adjacent chair:

Chaperon—Explosion—Stag—Misfortunes.

"My small granddaughter is going to Chicago and her mother will meet her at the station there," she said. "Would you mind sort of keeping an eye on her?"

"I'd be delighted," said the blonde young woman. And she did, too, cocking her head around the corner of the door of the smoking room, to which she repaired immediately, at intervals to see that the child was all right. She was Miss Bennett of the movies, the child proudly informed her mother when she got off the train in Chicago.

This story comes from Dave Rutzinger, a telegraph messenger. It seems that it is customary for the boys to sit on a bench in the office, near a clerk who assigns them to their various errands. No. 106, whose name is Charles Dunkel, was sitting on the extreme end of the bench when he was called for service and he slid along the bench toward the clerk. A celluloid comb in his pocket ignited because of the friction. The clerk, showing great presence of mind, turned the boy upside down under the water cooler. Damage to the uniform amounted to $2, but the cost of patching young Mr. Dunkel's skin was only 50 cents. He is again taking his meals sitting down, we add, giving an extra folksy note to the item.

Speaking of folksy items, here is one from the Galena Daily Gazette, headed "Entertain at Stag Party":

"Mr. Charles Pettigout Sr. entertained at a stag party Saturday evening at his home on Washington street. Games were played and peanuts were distributed to the guests. One thing, however, marred the entertainment for a short time. Just as Chuck Calvert was about to pin the donkey's tail on and the excitement was at its highest pitch Charley P.'s upper left molar failed to function and as a result a large peanut became lodged in his esophagus. . . . The remainder of the evening was spent in playing with toys that Santa had left for the kiddies and listening to the radio."

If that's a stag in Galena wonder what a kiddies' party is like.

In the morning mail (on Y. M. C. A. hotel stationery): "Can you tie this for man's inhumanity to man? Received severe blow on head about month ago. Subject to fainting spells since and not able to work. Fell a few days ago and received severe gash on forehead. Man in automobile offered to care for me. My face smeared with blood, I accepted, expecting first aid. In a few minutes he drove into dark alley, held me up at point of gun, and robbed me of my slim remaining assets."

New Footwear Combines Style with Comfort

Flats and Sharps Sound Seasonal Note.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Fancy footnotes in flats and sharps . . . the swanky new "British Flats" sponsored by a smart Chicago shoe shop. Low heels, of course, but low heels with character and smartness, not the pluggy models that make the feet look or feel heavy and clumsy, but infinitly different streamlines that smack of free striding Dianas in either town or country. You'll find them in exciting new black alligator with and without the fringed over tongue, the very correct models to wear with fuzzy English tweels and tailored topcoats and all the rougher sportswear.

If you like sleek, dull kidskins with tailored silk bows that will remind you of your childhood pumps, you'll enjoy the clever black and deep brown models that are classics, and practically ageless as far as dating is concerned. The heels are low and of the walking variety, combining comfort with the smartest footlines possible. Low heels no longer mean dull footwear after you have discovered these new collections.

The sharps . . . the high heeled, or rather higher heeled, daytime footwear made of chamois and chamois combined with other leathers. Sometimes, as in a pair of dark brown lether pumps, only the perky decorative bow on the toe is of chamois, but lots of them are a good three-quarter chamois combined with white or dark brown.

Some of the most distinctive of street oxfords with interesting high heels are combined of chamois with white, walking pumps with moderately high heels are chamois with toe and heel patches of dark brown kidskin, with eyelets in both models of lovely dark brown to achieve the dramatic contrast.

South bound trunks carry these very new chamois-skin shoes with soft yellow chamois gloves to match. We who stay home will wear them just as early as we can this coming spring!

Heart Association Will Map Program for New Year Today

The Chicago Heart association today will hold its annual meeting at the Cordon club, 410 South Michigan avenue. The yearly report will be presented and a program for 1935 adopted. Dr. Anton J. Carlson, chairman of the department of physiology at the University of Chicago, will speak on the "Physiological Aspects of Heart Disease."

According to Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, president of the organization, heart disease caused 8,955 deaths in Chicago in 1933, the last year for which vital statistics are available. Proper knowledge of facilities for diagnosis and treatment in Chicago would have saved many of those patients, Mrs. Britton said. The spreading of information about these facilities and the extending of services are the aims of the association.

The association maintains offices at 203 North Wabash avenue. Approximately $10,000 a year, most of which is derived from the annual sale of Valentine stamps, is spent on the organization's work.

Good Morning!

Soft lights. . . . Music. . . . Tinkle of ice in glasses. . . . Laughter. . . . A group of well bred people who know each other intimately [apparently] and [to all appearances] like each other well, enjoying [?] an informal evening together . . . .

So it seems. BUT—supposing the gay, unrevealing conversation should take a turn? Supposing that each one present should roll lips back over teeth and decide to tell THE TRUTH—or HALF truths—about his or her real feelings toward the others? To disclose certain damning items of information? Ah—far better always to let "sleeping dogs lie." This is the premise on which the plot of "Dangerous Corner" has been erected.

The picture—adapted from the play—concerns itself with such a group of folks as has been mentioned, and shows you what REALLY happened—and what MIGHT have happened—at a dangerous corner in all their lives.

To go further into the story here would be to spoil the picture for you, I'm afraid—which would be a shame. For the subject matter is skilfully worked out and is engagingly presented by a hand-picked cast. The male principals and lovely Virginia Bruce are discovered as connected with a publishing house. The tragic death of one of the men precipitates most of the action. All of it, in fact.

A joy, isn't it, to view a really unusual photoplay? Such, I'm sure, you will declare "Dangerous Corner" to be.

See you tomorrow.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

All women, from grandmothers down to the debs, are interested nowadays in making the most of their eyes. Mascara is used by most of us as religiously and casually as powder and more and more of us are reaching the stage where we feel undressed without a discreet touch of eye shadow.

Everywhere we go lately women have been tossing the same question at us; they all want to know about the new liquid mascara that requires no water.

It certainly is mother's little helper; when you want to doll up your eyes you don't have to drop everything and run, brush in hand, to the nearest water faucet. You snap open the little black case that holds the mascara tube and a tiny brush and set right to work. The whole little gadget adds practically nothing to the bulk of your pocketbook.

This mascara is tearproof to a certain extent, but you'd better not risk a good crying spell at a sad movie. Don't try your luck that far. However, it doesn't smudge and that's a great help if you're the sort of person, like us, who is eternally rubbing the tired eyes. If a drop gets in it won't smart either.

It won't make your lashes brittle; because it has an oil base it should actually be good for the little dears. It is quite natural looking, goes on nicely and does impart a luster to each lash.

We like it for the brows, too, if it is brushed on properly.

Because it is inexpensive to begin with and because a tube should last you practically forever it really cuts down the high cost of living. You'll find it in several shops around town at a price that will please you.

DEB FINDS CURE FOR STOCKING RUNS

MIRIAM TILDEN, pretty Philadelphia debutante, holds up the party again! "More run trouble," she explains to her escort. "It seems as though every time I bend a knee, threads pop like machine guns!" Other girls who have run trouble will be interested in how Miss Tilden solved this problem!—See her story below.

SNAPPED WITH her cure for stocking troubles! "Somebody tipped me off to Lux," Miss Tilden says. "It's smooth. Cut my runs down right away!"

Trust a modern deb to know her onions! Cake-soap rubbing and soaps with harmful alkali weaken stocking elasticity—threads tend to break under strain—then runs start.

LUX SAVES STOCKING ELASTICITY

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the large Russian estate of his stepfather, and grew up with a peasant couple and their large brood of children, until his mother got him an English tutor. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and is anxious to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin. She is the widow of an executed engineer. Though English her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also anxious to obtain from her a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. They stop at the home of the grandparents of the peasant children Stephen had grown up with, who believe Stephen to be one of their many grandchildren. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. Akulina dislikes the frail woman, as she does Irina, a beautiful communist friend of Stephen's. Irina wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Stephen knows she might prove dangerous. He and Elizabeth must get away. They travel by sledge with Yuri to Tronsk. Irina has departed for a nearby collective farm, and Stephen has learned Petroff is there. Stephen leaves Elizabeth in a café and tells her to wait for him.

INSTALMENT XX.

HER DREADED ENEMY.

Elizabeth was glad to be alone. Her heart still beat, and all her thoughts were in confusion. That half embrace had most deeply and sweetly troubled her. When the waiter put the cup of coffee before her she looked up with a start. She paid him and, taking up her cup, she sipped from it and began for the first time to take in her surroundings. Four of five of the tables were now occupied by quiet people who ate and drank either in silence or with some scarcely audible murmur of speech. Opposite the door by which she and Stephen had come in was an open archway partially screened by curtains. It appeared to lead to an outer room.

Elizabeth drank her coffee. After one glance over her shoulder she kept her face from the room. Presently she found that she could see without being seen. On the wall of the alcove a little above her head was a small mirror in a cheap wooden frame. It was tilted at such an angle that it reflected the curtained arch and about half the room. Every now and then the curtains in the mirror would part and some one would come through them into the picture—a man with gray hair and a broken nose; an elderly woman with bowed shoulders and a lagging step; and others. Sometimes they stayed in the picture, sitting down at one of the small reflected tables to eat and drink. They came for the most part singly, and went, as they had come, without speech or greeting.

Elizabeth looked for Stephen's return and feared it. His touch had moved her so deeply that their next meeting would be full of strange emotions and possibilities. She longed for him to come, and she dreaded his coming.

She looked up from her thoughts into the mirror and saw the curtains part.

Irina stood between them.

The floor seemed to tilt under Elizabeth's feet. The roof reflected in the mirror was tilting too. Irina stood, tall and dark and beautiful, with a scarlet handkerchief knotted at her throat. There was a mist round her. Through the mist Elizabeth saw the curtains move. It was Irina who moved then, thrusting at the heavy folds with a strong bare hand.

Irina turned and spoke over her shoulder to some one.

"This way, Petroff. There is plenty of room in here, and it is warm."

At Petroff's name Elizabeth found herself on her feet. The floor still tilted. The noise in her ears confused her. A kind of panic courage carried her towards the door by which she and Stephen had come in. She mustn't run. She must be quick without seeming to hurry. She must keep her back to the curtain through which Petroff might come at any moment. If he saw her, she was lost.

She reached the door. Opened it. Shut it behind her.

In the dark passage she stood, drawing the long breaths of a hunted creature. Her heart still beat and her knees shook, but the floor was steady under her feet. She began to run, and then, remembering that there were steps ahead of her, pulled up with a hand on the wall at either side of the narrow passage. She had stopped only just in time. One foot was over the edge of the topmost step. For a moment all her weight came on her hands. Then, as she steadied herself, some one came running towards her out of the darkness. She had no time to draw back, to turn, or to flatten herself against the wall. Some one large and black loomed up, bumped into her, caught her off her feet and carried her with a half stride along the passage. An overwhelming rush of happiness swept her clear of all her terror and confusion, because at the first touch she knew that it was Stephen who held her. Each said the other's name in a laughing, breathless whisper.

"Stephen!"

"Elizabeth!"

"We must run. Petroff is there with Irina."

He gave a long, soft whistle.

"The devil he is! Did they see you?"

"I don't know. I didn't dare look. I got to the door somehow."

All this time she was in his arms, held close whilst they whispered. There might not have been any danger in the world. To Elizabeth there was only Stephen, and to Stephen only Elizabeth.

Then in a moment everything changed. With a smothered laugh he set her on her feet, swung round with her, and ran her down the stairs, through the passage, and across the kitchen. They were out in the wintry dusk with the sky dark over them and a faint glimmering light striking up from the fresh fallen snow. The path that had been cut through it to the yard gate was like a strip of black carpet spread for them to walk on. Actually they ran, and came, still running, out of the gate and round the corner into an empty street.

"Well, that's that," said Stephen cheerfully. He dropped his arm from Elizabeth's waist and hurried her along with a hand at her elbow. "Petroff couldn't have seen you or he'd have been after us by now. Tell me about it."

Elizabeth told him. Then she said:

"How did they come there? Were they following us? You said they were at the collective farm."

"Yes—I've got to think that out—it's important. By the way, I've found a room all right. It belongs to the man I told you about, Boris Adreieff. He's a very hot Red, so it'll be a good place for us to stay. Well, now about Petroff and Irina—I should think Irina went pelting off to the farm in a temper. I don't suppose she went specially to see Petroff, though of course she knew he was there, because the person who told me was the schoolmaster, and he'd naturally tell Irina too. She may have gone specially to see Petroff, but I don't think so." He spoke as if he was thinking aloud. Then he gave a kind of half laugh and turned to Elizabeth. "I'm only guessing, but when you know people you can generally guess right. Let's go on guessing. I think Irina got to the farm and started grousing to Petroff about how uncollective the peasants were, and what a lack of party enthusiasm there was. That's not guessing, because she always does that when she can get any one to listen to her. And then, I think, she probably went on to grouse about me—what a pity I didn't go to an agricultural college and get a government job, and what was I thinking about to go and pick up with a woman nobody knew anything about, a half-witted creature who couldn't put two words together, and all that sort of thing." He patted her arm encouragingly. "I say, you don't mind, do you—because you did act it most awfully well."

"No, I don't mind," said Elizabeth in a dreamy, contented voice.

Stephen patted her arm again.

"It was a compliment really. Anyhow I meant it to be a compliment. Well, then I expect Petroff asked questions, and Irina probably described you enough to make him prick up his ears. They couldn't get over last night because of the snow, but I rather guess they took a drive this morning—and thank the Lord—they just missed us. Well, they found we were gone and they came along after us. It's all guessing, but that's how I think it was. We're feeling awfully important to ourselves, but it's just on the cards that they're not giving a damn for us. Irina often goes off into the blue when anything has put her out, so it's quite likely she got Petroff to give her a lift and came here to work things off. She's got friends in Tronsk."

Dislikes Her Boy Friend.

"Dear Miss Blake: I took a dislike to my boy friend. He loves me. How can I break away from him?

"TROUBLED CLAUDA."

You'll just have to tell him frankly you're no longer interested and prefer not to see him or go out with him again.

Gift Suggestions.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a girl six months. Her birthday is this month. Should I give her anything? F. R."

Flowers are always an acceptable remembrance—a vanity case, perfume, or a bag, should you prefer something more lasting.

Don't "Rub It In" When Child Makes Mistake

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

It's bad enough to make mistakes without having some one remind you of them. And the person who says, "I told you so," is a terrible strain on your good temper and self-control.

Parents, I believe, more than any one else should refrain from "rubbing it in" in dealing with their children. If your daughter leaves her bedroom in confusion and you decide to put it in order, tell her about it—but don't "rub it in." If your son is made responsible for the furnace and lets it go out twice in one week, you can thrash it out with him if you think it necessary but, as he may say, "Gee, Mom—I feel bad enough about it anyhow—don't rub it in."

And with more serious matters be watchful of yourself. If your girl has lied or your boy has stolen, don't keep harking back to his or her act. It may need settling by talk, or cure by the finding of causes—but it should not be rubbed in. The wholesome thing mentally is for that child to be helped to form a "positive" picture of himself, not a "negative" one of himself doing anti-social things.

We had a great uncle in our family whose wife liked to dwell on any past peccadillo—but before she'd get fairly started her husband would say, "That's ancient history, Susannah—forget it—it has nothing to do with today." It would be a good check for some of us.

Let bygones be bygones—big or little. Help your child to start fresh. Don't be the kind of mother about whom your son or daughter can say, "O, dear, if mother knows about it I'll never hear the last of it."

If we grownups had a mentor who reminded us of all our past infringements we wouldn't be any too happy about it. Let's refrain from harking back to the children's past misdemeanors and from "rubbing it in."

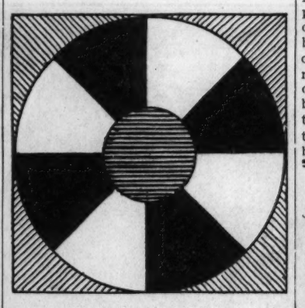
New Version of Popular Old Quilt Pattern



Circle within Circle.

By NANCY CABOT.

"Circle within Circle" is a simplified adaption of the original "Wheel of Fortune" block. This new version is considerably simpler to piece than its prototype. The old Pennsylvania Dutch women were eminently in favor of this type of block. Possessing the patience of Griselda, they enjoyed working these intricate wedges and circles into smooth, beautiful squares. In the hustle and bustle of the 20th century the design again has been received with greatest enthusiasm.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

For Itching Rashes Use Cuticura Ointment

It brings quick relief and soon heals. Because of its absolute purity, and mildly antiseptic and healing properties, it is unsurpassed in the treatment of rashes, red, rough skin, sore, itching, burning feet, chafings, chappings, irritations, cuts or burns. No household should be without it.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SOME EXAMPLES OF FORCING OPENING BIDS.

Remember that you can call for the king of a suit of which your partner has bid the ace. This was neatly done by Johnny Rau on this hand:

Sp. x x	Di. —
Hts. A K Q J 10 x x x x	Cl. A x

Three hearts, three spades. The hand is now safe at five. He bids three no trumps, giving partner the opportunity to bid the ace of diamonds. This card will no longer be a duplication, though he is void of that suit, because he can throw a losing black card on it and he can get to dummy to do so by means of the spade ace. Partner obligingly bids four diamonds. Now the question is only between six and seven. A black king will make seven a laydown. Johnny bid four spades, calling for the king. Partner had A K x x in spades, and again obliged with the needed card—five spades. Seven hearts by Johnny. Had responder denied the spade king with a bid of five hearts, opener could still bid six clubs, as the hand is definitly safe to lose only one trick in case responder must deny the club king by bidding six hearts. In this instance, had responder held A K Q of spades, but not the king of clubs, I think he should bid six spades over six clubs, as it is now clear that the queen of spades will serve to eliminate a loser as surely as the king of clubs would. Each of his responses has plainly eliminated a loser, and there can be no loser in hearts, otherwise declarer would not have said: "If you have the king of clubs, bid seven clubs and I can then go seven hearts." This is an exceptional case, where the opening bidder has made it clear that he has no losers in trumps; has ace and either one or two small clubs; and is fishing about for some high card on which to discard his last loser in order to bid for grand slam. It is plain that there is no fatal duplication of values; also that six no trumps can be made, as opener's probe in clubs was directed solely at the king. He must have the ace.

What Is the Analysis on This Hand?

One of my readers was dealt this hand, and writes in to ask how to bid it:

Sp. A K J 10 x x x	Di. —
Hts. A K J 10 x x	Cl. —

This hand calls for a two bid, not a three bid. You are interested only in your partner's distribution, the grouping of his cards in so far as that will enable him to choose between your suits for trumps. If he has three cards in either one, you want to play for grand slam. The odds are greatly in favor of your being able to drop the queen of trumps and ruff the other suit once so as to unguard the queen if it is held with two small cards. A two bid will give you the needed information. Your hope is that your partner will not be able to bid both diamonds and clubs; only if he bids both these suits, showing at least ten or perhaps eleven or more cards in the minors, is there a serious risk that he cannot fit one of your majors. The best is, if he bids nothing but no trumps. Two spades, two no trumps, three hearts, three no trumps. Now bid seven hearts, asking him to pass that or bid seven spades; he should know that three trumps is now ample support for either of these suits. If he has a doubleton in each suit, he must take you back to spades, the suit you bid first. There is a fine prospect of ruffing hearts once without being over-ruffed, and then dropping the queens of both spades and hearts. If he had two five card minor suits, he should bid them both in answer to your two bid, though neither contains an honor. It is the same as if he had a six card suit. I forget whether I remembered to mention this when giving the basis of suit responses to a two bid.

Make One Change in the Hand.

If one of the small spades were a minor suit small singleton, I would make a three bid. The first thing is now to find out about the ace needed to take care of the singleton and furnish an entry for a possible finesse. Next, I would bid and rebid hearts as often as necessary to show my partner that I was not merely probing for the heart king, but was actually seeking to learn ultimately his preference between my two suits. Definitly, I want to play the hand at six in one of them. Even if it cannot actually be made, it should be bid. True, I would not now obtain information about his distribution, but I would be able to extort some kind of a preference, however dubious, and who would not wish to gamble a mere game against the likelihood of dropping the queen in two leads or the preferred one of two such fine six card suits?

Girl Queries Technique of Making Friends

BY DORIS BLAKE.

You hear about technique in writing, the girl says, technique in piano playing, the technique of acting. Isn't there any technique about making people like you—men, especially?

"If there is such a technique I certainly have not learned any of its principles. I am friendless and alone. Can you help?"

Of course there is a technique about making friends. Certain popular folk may not be aware they have one. They may not have cultivated it deliberately. But their conduct toward others has all the flavor of a well thought out technique. Other folk have been known to achieve no mean popularity through observing the principles involved.

First, naturally, you would have to develop a genuine interest in and liking for people, not just confine your interests to a choosy few. Nothing rounds your character out quite so lovably as interest in a number of people and their naturally responsive interest in you.

Give everyone a chance to reveal the gold that is in them. You'll get the reflected glow of their appreciation, which won't hurt your cause any. When you get around more and become a bit more expert at drawing people out you'll be that much better armed for the male admirer. He'll want to talk about himself, as every one else does. You'll have learned not to think of this common frailty as excess vanity.

Your judgment will be tempered to value the man in spite of his superficial oddities, since all of us are subject to them, a fact you will have athered from the previous contacts. In the meantime you will have done quite a bit of growing up, have acquired a surer poise, become a more human person, all of which lends a person the attractions that draw people to her.

fall, a second series, beginning at 11 o'clock Friday morning, has been organized. The series will include ten meetings at the league headquarters in the Farwell building, but for those who are going away on winter vacation there is the privilege of taking only half the series.

Dinner Party For Kirks.

Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk will not have to don wraps when they go out to dinner, for they are to be the especial guests at a party Frank McNair will give in his residence, 1430 Lake Shore drive, the same building in which the Kirks live. After dinner Mr. McNair will take his guests to see that delightful musical comedy, "Roberta," which opened at the Erlanger Sunday night.

Mrs. Wheaton Augur is leaving today to spend the rest of the winter in Santa Fe, N. M. It was Mrs. Augur's wedding gown and not the bridegroom's grandmother's that Miss Louise McCormick wore last Thursday when she was married to Montgomery Orr.

The gown was loaned to "Monty's" bride by his aunt, Mrs. Robert C. Orr, Mrs. Augur's daughter, who has it packed away to be worn by her daughters, Adair and Nancy, when they are married.

When the weather shows signs that spring is not far away, Samuel Insull Jr. and his little son, Samuel III., and the latter's nurse will be leaving the apartment hotel in which they are living now to move to a little house in Geneva which Mr. Insull just has rented.

The house is across the street from the one Mr. Insull's great friends, the Arthur Farwells, purchased last fall. Among the Insulls' other neighbors will be the young John Van Nortwicks and their little son, who are moving from Wheaton to Geneva shortly. They have taken the house left vacant when Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walker moved to Philadelphia just after Christmas. The removal to the east of the former Marion Dawes and her husband is a source of great regret among their many friends and relatives in Geneva and on the north shore, for they are an unusually popular couple.

Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., and her daughter, Miss Francise Clow, are leaving today for Havana for several weeks. The Robert G. McGaunns have gone to Phoenix where they are staying at the Arizona-Biltmore.

Interesting News of Winter Travels.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace White Armstrong have taken an apartment at the Drake for a fortnight. Their daughter and son, Miss Jean Armstrong and Frank H. Armstrong II., who is engaged to Miss Barbara Bastien, are in Florida for a month or two. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will join them in Boca Raton in two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke will return the week after next from a brief trip to Jamaica.

Miss Meryl Grayson, who has been visiting Mrs. William F. Cowham of the Ambassador for several months, left yesterday for New York where she will be the guest for about a month of Mrs. Cowham's daughter, Mrs. John L. Senior. Miss Mary Senior, who has visited Miss Grayson in England, is back at Vassar after a holiday vacation in Canada. Miss Grayson will return to her home in England next month.

Three debutantes of the future return to Dobbs Ferry today after taking part in the gay subdeb whirl of Chicago's Christmas celebration. They are Miss Kay Goodman, daughter of Mrs. James M. Hopkins; Miss Mary Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, and Miss Kate Barkhausen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Barkhausen.

The Edward H. Bennetts, who have a future debutante in their family in the person of Mrs. Bennett's daughter, Betty Mead, although she will not come out until two or three years after the Dobbs Ferry students, have made plans to go to their New Mexico ranch in March. They will spend the next two months in their Burton place home.

Molyneux Offers a Swagger Coat, Cut Like Cape, for Extremely Formal Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—We have heard enough and a plenty about swagger coats, and yet they keep right on being part of styles. The Paris dressmakers, however, have been doing things to this type of wrap that makes it seem different, and therefore gives it a right to keep right on. Molyneux has the most sensational of the revised swagger coats. It is pictured here. It cannot be distinguished from a cape unless the arms are raised to an angle of forty-five degrees straight out in front. You see how it is made. You or I or anybody would be justified in saying "There goes another cape." But those full, gathered pieces over the arms are really sleeves, with underarm seams, armholes and everything. They begin from a dropped shoulder yoke which makes a point of sloping shoulder lines. This yoke is interrupted at the back by a full gathered panel that is set in from the neckline and that makes the swagger part of the wrap. There is a ruffle, instead of a collar, and the front of this model is gathered below the ruffle, much in the way that a smock is gathered.

Molyneux makes this wrap of supple sapphire blue velvet, and it is for extremely formal wear.

Gay Dessert a Pick-Me-Up for Jaded Diners

Pies and Puddings Break Post-Holiday Ennui.

"All-in-One-Dish Meals," a booklet of twenty-two recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

The sad fact that we're out of the Christmas tree season is no good reason for renigging on dinner gayety and colorful desserts. In fact, the best antidote we've found for the after-holiday letdown is a rousing good maraschino pear pie topped with a lattice of crusty pastry and presented to folks with our most radiant smile. It's a grand start-off for a brand new year of pleasant dining.

MARASCHINO PEAR PIE

½ cup maraschino cherries
No. 2½ can Bartlett pears
½ cup pear sirup
3 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 recipe pastry

Drain the pears and cherries and chop them together. Then add to them the lemon juice and the ½ cup of pear sirup. Heat the mixture to boiling. Meanwhile, blend the sugar and flour, adding just enough cold pear juice to make a thin paste. Stir this carefully into the hot fruit, continuing the stirring until it is thickened. Add the butter, then cool. Have ready a pie pan lined with unbaked pastry. Pour in the cooled filling and place strips of the pastry, lattice fashion, over the top. Bake in a hot oven [400 degrees F.] for 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to 375 degrees F. and bake for half an hour longer. Serve up with a garnish of hard sauce roses.

And while we're on the subject of good things which come out of cans, I wonder whether you have ever tried the stunt of making crusty brown patties out of your can of corned beef hash? It's a quick trick and simple. Merely tuck the unopened can of corned beef hash away in the refrigerator, leaving it until it is well chilled. Then open the can with a can opener which neatly takes off the whole top, without leaving raw edges projecting. Cut out the bottom of the can in the same way, but leave the round cut piece in place. Now place your fingers on the cut disk at the bottom and push the hash out carefully onto a cutting board. It will come forth it. a perfect cylinder if it has been well chilled. With a sharp bread knife slice it in half-inch rounds, laying them down carefully to avoid breaking. Have ready beaten egg and milk, also a plate of fine dry crums. Dip the slices first in the egg, then in the crumbs. Fry in hot fat in a frying pan until golden brown on both sides. Lift with a pancake turner onto a hot plate, lining the slices up with their shoulders just overlapping one another. A garnish which is gayly colored but at the same time most edible is raw carrot strips in green pepper rings. Cut the rings from a small firm green pepper, slicing them one-quarter inch in width. Let the crisp carrot strips be about three inches long and of a good size for finger-lifting. Tuck the orange slivers in the green pepper rings and place about the lineup of fried corn beef hash rounds. Add sprigs of parsley if you wish. Serve at once.

Another delicacy which has come back to us with the repeal of Mr. Volstead's act is nesselrode pudding. This old English favorite seems to have an astounding number of possible recipes. I have chosen the following one, since it so well adapts itself to our modern leaning toward refrigerator-frozen desserts.

NESSELRODE PUDDING

½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons brandy
2 egg yolks
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
8 marshmallows, cut in quarters
½ cup rolled and sifted macaroon crums
¼ cup almonds, blanched and chopped

Combine the sugar, brandy, and egg yolks in the top of a double boiler. Beat them over the boiling water until light and creamy. Then remove from the heat and continue beating until the mixture is cold. Fold in the stiff-beaten cream, the marshmallows, macaroon crums, and the chopped almonds. Mix all these well and turn them into a freezing tray. Set the control at the coldest temperature and freeze quickly without stirring.

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Nesselrode Ice Cream of Fine Texture

The creaminess of this Nesselrode ice cream mix before it goes into the refrigerator is proof enough that it will be fine textured when firm. The egg yolks, whipped cream, and marshmallows all help to prevent iciness in a frozen dessert which is not stirred.

Ungainly Walk Results from "Toeing Out"

So Point Your Feet Straight Ahead, Girls.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday I directed my remarks to the young fry. I reminded them that it isn't only Mom's job to rectify her bad posture habits. Averagely speaking, the young ones need straightening quite as much as their elder sisters, mothers and aunts. Also, they need to take as many lessons in feet handling.

Their mothers probably nagged obstinancy into them, or their teachers about keeping their feet pointed straight ahead, walking Indian fashion. Anyway, to see the way some of the young women—and I speak of the 'teen age from 13 on—direct their toes it would seem their object is to show that Mother and teacher didn't know what they were talking about.

Well, then, girls, your movie idol does. Your movie heroine does. He and she aren't squaring off their heels. They're not walking with toes turned out as if the old Charlie Chaplin were physical instructor. No, young lady your pet crushes of the movies, male and female, have to put those toes of theirs straight ahead and keep them that way when they're walking.

And look at the way they walk on the screen. Do you catch any of them slouching along with rounded shoulders and caved in chest? You study them, yourself, and see what you see.

Then, so long as I'm after you with the big stick, I do wish you would go a little easier on the makeup stuff. I suppose it would be too much to ask of you to forego it altogether. But, migoodness, you sometimes do horrible things to yourself! You can't see it, naturally. You can't see how you bury your greatest charm under coatings of rouge and lipstick, and eyelash trim.

If I call it your innocence or your sweetness you'll probably holler back: "Who wants to look sweet and innocent?" Well, they're still the grandest bets you have, believe it or not. If you don't believe me, listen to the boys you know rave about some girl as the sweetest and most natural kid ever. Note the tone of their voices when they say it.

There's a caressing tone there that only comes with a genuinely pleasurable response. Ask the boys, if you won't take my word.

THE STAGE

Ina Claire will figure in Chicago's midwinter theatricals in her new vehicle, a comedy adapted from the French called "Ode to Liberty," which she is now acting in New York. This will be the third offering of the American Theater society to its subscribers and casual box office trade. The première, originally planned for Jan. 21, has been postponed until early in February. The theater may be the Grand Opera house or the Selwyn.

Dennis King, now practicing light comedy with success at the Harris theater in "Petticoat Fever," is planning a special matinée of more serious stuff. He intends to give a program consisting of the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," a slice of "Hamlet," including the "To be or not to be" soliloquy, and the "Get thee to a nunnery scene" with Ophelia; and an episode from "Richard of Bordeaux." He has not yet decided upon the date.

"Twelfth Night" will be added to the repertory of the Old Globe company, at the Studebaker theater, next Monday night. Miss Jackson Perkins will be the Viola, Carl Benton Reid the Sir Toby, and Donald Gallagher the Malvolio. This play was not acted by the troupe during its stay at A Century of Progress. Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus" will be the other play on the program.

The Circuit Theater company will give a single performance of Sheridan's classic comedy, "The Rivals," in the Goodman theater next Friday night.

Taper Eyebrows Gracefully.

P. B.: Leave the eyebrows moderately thick in the center and let them taper gracefully to a point at each end. Clear out the line of the brow if the growth is too heavy and shape it to a nice arch. Then tweeze out the straggly hairs on the eyelid. It smartens the appearance. My leaflet on lashes and brows may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

Special Music Series Opens Next Tuesday

A week from tonight the first of a series of three chamber music recitals will be given in the foyer of Orchestra hall by the Mischakoff string quartet, which also will give the second program on Feb. 19. The third will be given by the Philharmonic string quartet on March 19.

These recitals, planned by the Chicago chamber music committee, are delightfully informal and are considered a boon by those chamber music lovers who feel that the opportunities in Chicago for hearing that particular sort of music are very limited. Charles H. Hamill, Albert A. Sprague, Frederick Stock, Charles H. Swift, John Alden Carpenter, Carl Bricken and Eric DeLamarter are on the advisory board of the Chicago chamber music committee, and Miss Beatrice Norton, Mrs. Harry Lackritz, Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, Mrs. Ralph H. Norton, Mrs. James Tatman, Mrs. Charles P. Schwartz, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed and Miss Peggy Hambleton are managing the recitals.

Igor Stravinsky, who is to be in Chicago on Sunday for a dinner the Arts club will give for him, is to be present at the recital next Tuesday night when one of his works will be played by the quartet. Following the dinner at the Arts club the first Chicago performance of Stravinsky's "Octuor for Wind Instruments" and other works of the composer will be given by members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Benefit Plans to Be Told Today.

Mrs. John R. Hurley will have two dozen of the prettiest debutantes and post-debs selling flowers and cigarets the evenings of Jan. 28 and 29 in the lobby of the Harris theater when the Abbey players are to give two productions for the benefit of the Little Company of Mary hospital.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody will tell of the plans for the benefit when she entertains at tea this afternoon in her drawing room at 1525 State parkway. At the same time Miss Harriet McLaughlin will report that boxes have been sold to such theatergoers as Harold F. McCormick, Addison Stillwell, Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, the Howard Prestons, and Mayor and Mrs. Kelly.

Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, her sister; Miss Anna Fitzu, Mrs. Samuel Ettelson, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk are a few of the society women who will radio addresses the next fortnight in the interest of President Roosevelt's birthday ball to be held Jan. 30 in the new amphitheater at the Union stockyards. The radio speakers represent the boards of various charities for crippled children in Chicago, which are to receive 70 per cent of the party proceeds. Mrs. Graham, chairman of the woman's committee for the ball, reports that more than half of the 100 boxes already have been sold, as well as many seats. Some of those who have taken boxes are Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, the Albert A. Spragues, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering, and Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Furniture and Toys on This List.

J. G., a case worker, writes of a family much in need of household furnishings. There are seven members, including four small children, the father of whom is confined in a tuberculosis sanitarium. Their home is a five room flat in close proximity to the steel mills. They moved there from an even less desirable neighborhood, and while living conditions have somewhat improved for them, they are far from comfortable because of the lack of furnishings. There are no rugs of any kind on the floors, and aside from adequate sleeping facilities, a dining room and kitchen table and chairs, there is no other furniture. Additional chairs, rugs of any size, dressers, etc., will do much toward making a more livable and enjoyable home for this family. Discarded toys for the children, who range in age from 2 to 5 years, will be gratefully accepted.

JUDGES DEMAND LOWERED AGES IN JUVENILE LAW

Will Draw Up Amendment for Legislature.

Changes in the method of handling juvenile criminals were recommended at a meeting yesterday attended by State's Attorney Courtney and judges of the Criminal and Juvenile courts.

Amendments in the state law were suggested to make it impossible for criminals of the incorrigible type to take refuge behind the juvenile age limitation. Under the present law boys under 17 and girls under 18 come automatically into the jurisdiction of the Juvenile court.

The judges and prosecutor urged an amendment to lower the age limit of boys to 15 years and that of girls to 17 years. A bill embodying these changes will be drafted by a committee headed by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court and will be submitted to the legislature.

Juvenile Court Judge Agrees.

Judge Frank Bicek of the Juvenile court, who presided over the meeting, assented to a plan whereby the prisoners' backgrounds rather than their ages will determine whether they would be prosecuted in the Criminal or in the Juvenile court.

In turn the Criminal court judges agreed to relinquish jurisdiction in favor of the Juvenile court in all cases where young charges are not deserving of criminal prosecution.

State's Attorney Courtney, who was present with his first assistant, Wilbert F. Crowley, announced that when the new law is passed he would assign an "experienced and vigorous" prosecutor to the Juvenile court. It will be his duty to insist that the cases of juveniles under 17 charged with serious crimes are sent to the Juvenile court.

State's Attorney Favors Change.

"A change is necessary in the interest of society," Mr. Courtney said. "Under the present system felons under 17 are sent to the juvenile court, and it becomes impossible for the Criminal court to resume jurisdiction, no matter how serious the crime.

"There have been instances in which the ringleader of a robbery gang escaped prosecution because of his age, while his underlings, tried in the Criminal court, were sent to prison."

HOME FURNISHING SHOWS OPEN AND BUYERS CROWD IN

Officials of 8 Events Report Records Set.

The eyes of North America's home furnishing business centered upon Chicago yesterday with the opening here of practically every national show of consequence which the industry expects to hold during 1935.

The shows, the first of a swift array of 21 major merchandising events to be held here in the five week period ending Feb. 16, brought into the city the vanguard of thousands of buyers, drawn from all sections of the United States, with an unusually large delegation from the south.

Eight major shows opened yesterday, and the directors of all of them were unanimous in one thing—that the deluge of buyers broke all opening day records since 1929. From this they deduce only one fact—that they may truthfully say they now have renewed confidence in buying power of 1935.

Predicts 6,000 at Market.

At the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, 2,075 buyers of home furnishings registered before 4 p. m., a figure doubling that of 1929 and exceeding by 25 per cent the all-time high of 1,600. A total market attendance of 6,000 is forecast by Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the Mart.

Also at the Furniture Mart was the national rug show, held in advance of the New York opening for the first time since its establishment. Some 37 manufacturers are displaying here all varieties of floor coverings, from jute and felt throw rugs to American orientals.

At the Merchandise Mart, four combined markets of furniture, floor coverings, lamps, and home furnishings opened, with buyers registering at the rate of more than 100 per hour, an increase of 22 per cent over the opening day last year.

New Styles Stress Simplicity.

At the Stevens hotel, more than 320 exhibitors displayed their lines in the housewares show, while 57 lamp manufacturers had exhibits in the Palmer house.

Among the innovations offered at the shows this year is the 1935 modern furniture, distinguished from the bizarre moderne of several years ago by simplicity of line, utilitarian appeal and unusual effects obtained from cover fabrics and finish. The new lamps and floor coverings harmonize in style.

The annual convention of the National Retail Furniture Men's association will open at 8 a. m. today in the Furniture Mart with a breakfast debate on the future of the furniture industry after the expiration of the National Industrial Recovery act in June.

DIPLOMATS FIND STALIN "PURGED" REBELLIOUS GPU

Ordered Mass Executions After Kirov Killing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 7.—According to information obtained by the Moscow diplomatic corps on the inside story of the assassination of Sergei Kirov, powerful communist leader, there was a remarkable analogy between the events which transpired in Leningrad on the night of Dec. 1 and those in Munich on last May 30. At that time Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler reported he had discovered a plot to overthrow his dictatorship among the Storm Troops and ordered mass execution.

Like the German dictator, Josef Stalin immediately boarded an airplane for Leningrad after Kirov's assassination. He was accompanied by Commissar of War and Marine K. E. Voroshilov, L. M. Kaganovich, a member of the presidium of the union central executive committee and a leader of the communist party, and G. G. Yagoda, chief of the GPU, secret police.

Faced with Mutiny.

In Leningrad, according to the story which has been pieced together through the combined efforts of the Moscow diplomats, Stalin discovered he also was faced with mutiny in the GPU, the leaders of which decided to support the Gregory Zinoviev and Leo Kamenev faction of the communist party. With the aid of Voroshilov, who called upon the Leningrad military garrison for support, the entire staf of the Leningrad GPU was arrested together with Yagoda and Deputy Commissar Medveid in charge of the Leningrad district.

A year ago Yagoda was hailed as a national hero for his supervision of the construction of the White Sea-Baltic canal, which he finished in record time with forced labor. He received the order of Lenin, the Kremlin's highest decoration. Today his fate has become a mystery. His post is filled by Deputy Commissar Ivan Alexandrovich Akulov, who has held his job since the late Felix Djerjinski organized the dreaded Cheka.

Fate Is Mystery.

Medveid's fate, too, is unknown. Agranov, Chekist notorious for his mass executions following the Kronstadt revolt in 1921, has taken Medveid's place. Other GPU posts in Leningrad were filled with officers from the Leningrad garrison.

While in Leningrad Stalin also arrested Gregory Weinstein, former leader of the New York communist party and a member of the staf of the soviet mission in America in 1920. He was deported with Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, unrecognized and self-appointed soviet ambassador to the United States in 1921.

According to the diplomats, Stalin's order authorizing mass executions terrorized the rank and file of the communist party. Nevertheless, the opposition group still is powerful and mass arrests are being made.

HELD IN NARCOTIC CASE.

Steve Mackey, colored, 28 years old, 4718 South Calumet avenue, charged with violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act, was held to the grand jury in $5,000 bonds yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

3 NATIONS BAN OLD GERMAN NAMES OF CITIES; NAZIS STIRRED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Orders issued by Estonia, Latvia and Czecho-Slovakia that only local languages must be used in public proclamations and that the German names of old German towns and villages must be eliminated are distressing Germany. Czech post-offices refuse to forward mail of any kind if the German names of municipalities are used instead of the new Czech appellations.

The Germans believe that the compulsory introduction of the new languages is a violation of the spirit of the minority agreement.

"Estonia and Latvia owe their existence to democratic principles which they should respect for their own sakes," tomorrow's edition of the Berliner Tageblatt will say. It bemoans that "a misunderstanding of Germany's true aims is responsible for this action, which is bound to lead to cultural isolation contrary to the interests of the countries involved."

Toreadors Fight Mad Bulls on Deck of Storm-Swept Liner

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A bullfight at sea, with daring Spanish toreadors battling maddened animals on the deck of a storm-swept ocean liner, was described today on the arrival of the Hamburg American vessel Cordillera from Peru.

Mountainous seas broke over the liner's sides and smashed two bull pens in which a pair of crack fighting animals were being transported to the rings of Maracaibo.

The bulls dashed about the slippery, heaving deck while seamen tried vainly to catch them. Four more bulls stamped in their pens, threatening momentarily to escape.

Bulls Turn on Sailors.

The liberated bulls finally became infuriated and turned on the sailors, driving them to shelter. A ship's officer drew a pistol and from a vantage point was taking aim to kill the animals.

There were two toreadors on board. One of them, Rafael Ortego, custodian of the animals, ran up to the officer and persuaded him to hold his fire. Then Ortego, known to bullfight fans as "El Cuco" the cunning, stepped into the pitching "arena" armed only with a lasso.

Spectators crowding around the rail on an upper deck gasped as Ortego moved slowly and warily over the wave washed, slippery planking, swinging the noose. One of the bulls charged him and he calmly sidestepped, still swinging the noose.

Swings Rope Over Neck.

The other animal charged, and Ortego nearly lost his footing with a quick movement. But he regained his balance and again started swinging the noose in a circle. Finally he threw.

There was a shout from spectators as the noose settled over the neck of one of the animals. Ortego passed the end of the lasso to a seaman who secured it to a derrick and hauled the animal into a helpless position.

Demetrio Gomez, another toreador, helped with the second animal. Both of them were tied up and dragged back into their pens which had been repaired during the fight.

RUSSIAN EXPRESS TRAINS COLLIDE; "MANY VICTIMS"

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., Jan. 7.—(AP)—An official bulletin announced today that "many passengers were victims" of a rear-end collision yesterday between express trains bound from Leningrad to Moscow. Four relief trains were rushed to the scene of the wreck, near Torbine, 130 miles south of Leningrad.

When the Leningrad-Moscow express crashed into the Leningrad-Tiflis express, three cars of the first train burned and several others were demolished. It required 13 hours to clear the tracks and relief work was handicaped by a temperature of 25 degrees below zero fahrenheit.

Soviet authorities began an investigation of the cause of the wreck. The number or identity of the victims had not been announced but Intourist [Soviet travel bureau], which routes foreign travelers, said there was no record of foreigners being on either train.

WHAT A HOUSE CLEANING JOB YOU DO!

YES, MADAM, HERE AT BOWMAN'S WE SCRUB AND STERILIZE ALL EQUIPMENT EVERY DAY.

❶ Every day of the year is "house cleaning day" at Bowman bottling plants! And cleaning here means more than floor scrubbing and metal polishing. There are containers and pipes and machines to clean inside and out.

Visitors to Bowman bottling plants are usually amazed to discover that all milk equipment is taken apart every twenty-four hours—scrubbed, rinsed and sterilized with streams of live steam! And then put back together again, ready for the next day's operations.

What a job that is! It takes a lot of time, a good deal of patience, and a good deal of money, too, to do it three hundred and sixty-five days a year. But Bowman knows this meticulous care is essential in the delivery of milk that is pure and rich and clean.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Illinois handed the Purdue basketball team its first defeat of the year tonight, when the Illini, after battling uphill practically all the game, came with a rush in the closing minutes and won by a score of 37 to 36.

The Boilermakers led, 35 to 31, when Froschauer scored a field goal. This was followed by Jack Beynon's free throw. Froschauer sank another field goal and then made a free throw which clinched victory, although Seward converted a free throw for Purdue.

Froschauer Leads Scorers.

Froschauer led the victors in scoring with 13 points on six baskets and a free throw, while Cottom led Purdue with 10 points from four baskets and two free throws.

The victory broke a winning streak which had netted six victories for Purdue this season. It confirmed the tradition that the Illini are tough for the Boilermakers on the home floor, since Purdue has not won here since 1929.

Purdue took off to a flying start with three baskets, two by Baumbach and one by Seward in three shots, but goals by Froschauer and Henry and two free throws by Riegel evened the count.

Although the Illini once led by a 1 point margin, the Boilermakers finally ran the score to 13-11. Baskets by Riegel and Henry, who made two in a row, while the Boilermakers were held to one by Seward, reduced the Boilermaker lead to 20-17 at half time.

Purdue Leads, 25 to 17.

Purdue started the second half with a rush and ran the score to 25-17 before Froschauer scored Illinois' first points. The Boilermakers maintained their lead and once led by 8 points, 30-22. Baskets by Riegel, Combes, and Beynon brought the Illini total to 28 before Purdue scored again with Cottom's shot. With the score 32-28, both teams battled wildly to the cheers of 6,000 fans. Harry Combes, sophomore forward, made a one handed shot from a corner and soon Froschauer's feats put the Illini in front.

The Illini outscored the Boilermakers from the field, but Purdue converted ten of thirteen free throw trials, while the Illini made seven out of fifteen. Lineup:

IOWA, 39; CHICAGO, 29

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Cutting loose with a high scoring attack early in the first half, the University of Iowa basketball team here tonight scored a 39 to 29 victory over the University of Chicago. A crowd of 4,500 persons saw the Hawkeyes score their second straight victory of the Big Ten campaign.

The Maroons were outclassed throughout the contest, except for the last five minutes of the first half, when they closed a wide Iowa margin to 16 to 12 at the end of the period.

Lang Leads Scorers.

Three long shots in the closing moments gave Lang, Chicago guard, scoring honors with 13 points, while Iowa's guards, Johnny Grim and Al Bobby, paced the winning attack with nine points each. Bobby turned in a good defensive performance against Bill Haarlow, Maroon star, but later Haarlow got loose to score 8 points. He missed six free throws.

Chicago opened the scoring on a free throw by Lang, but the Hawkeyes piled up a big lead of 15 to 4 as Grim led the way. In the final five minutes of the period Chicago held the Hawkeyes to a lone free throw while getting eight points. Lang cut the lead to 16 to 13 as the last period started, but Bobby scored four straight field goals to send the Iowans into a big lead which was never threatened. Lineup:

HARVARD DAILY ASSAILS CHOICE OF HEAD COACH

Alumni Approve Harlow as Undergraduates Object

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Reactions resulting from the surprising appointment of Dick Harlow as Harvard's first nongraduate football coach today ranged from skeptical criticism to wild acclaim.

WM. BINGHAM.

Undergraduate sentiment, if it has been correctly gauged by two student publications, did not look kindly on the selection of the successful Western Maryland coach.

On the other hand, it was roundly approved by many prominent Harvard football figures, including Eddie Casey, resigned, whom Harlow succeds, and Bob Haley, the 1935 captain.

The prospect of Harlow's appearance in the muddled Harvard football situation drew hearty applause from Joe McKenney, whose Boston college elevens have engaged Harlow's teams with little success for the last three years; Al McCoy, Northeastern coach, who played under Harlow at Penn State, and Leo Manley, coach of the undefeated Tufts team. To them Harvard could not have made a better selection.

Editors Remember Bingham's Speech.

The Crimson, undergraduate publication, in an editorial, recalled the blasting Athletic Director William Bingham gave big time football during the recent New York coaches' meetings and, after reviewing Harlow's record at Penn State, Colgate, and Western Maryland, added:

"Without knowing more of the personal convictions of Mr. Harlow on the subject of recruiting players, his association with colleges of somewhat shady character in the matter of proselyting makes it difficult to reconcile Mr. Bingham's statements with the appointment."

The Lampoon, a humorous weekly, abruptly demanded: "Where is Western Maryland?"

Harlow had no comment on the criticism, but his associates had plenty to say. In his characteristic soft spoken but firm manner, Harlow said:

"I have nothing at all to say about it. I'll let the Harvard people take care of that."

Western Maryland Is All Burned Up.

Dr. Albert Norman Ward, president of Western Maryland, however, indignantly branded the crimson's reference as "not true" and said he thought it "should be beneath the dignity of Harvard to make such a statement as that.

"Western Maryland has never countenanced proselyting and we never shall. Dick Harlow is a very fine man and I am awfully sorry we are going to lose him."

Robert J. Gill, attorney and chairman of the Western Maryland Alumni Athletic committee, commented:

"After Harlow has been at Harvard for a time, all Harvard men will understand how it is possible to have good football teams by legitimate methods."

PREP STAR DIES AFTER CRASH IN BASKET PRACTICE

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Elmer Lambert, 18 year old star of the Southmont High school basketball team, died today from injuries received during practice a week ago.

Lambert and a fellow member of the team crashed head-on while one was dribbling the ball.

Apparently not seriously hurt, Lambert went home, but a few hours later lapsed into unconsciousness. He was taken to a hospital, but died without regaining consciousness.

Paralysis had set in after he arrived at the hospital. Physicians said it was due to a blood clot on the brain. The skull was not fractured. Lambert's companion was not badly hurt.

WINGS THREATEN BLACKHAWKS' RECORD TONIGHT

Chicago Six Unbeaten in U. S. Division.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Chicago's Blackhawks, whose dignity as world champions hasn't suffered any of late, tonight at the Stadium will meet the Detroit Red Wings, last season's National Hocky league champs, who have become very saucy since they took the last of two lickings the Hawks have administered to them in the current schedule.

The feeling between the Hawks and the Wings has never been any too fraternal and the regard the two ensembles have had for each other since the Hawks whipped the Detroiters in the Stanley Cup final has amounted to a fued.

The Incentive Is There.

Aside from the natural desire of the Hawks to win every game they play and especially those they play with the Wings, the Hawks tonight have the added incentive of wanting to continue undefeated in their own division of the National league. The Hawks have been beaten six times and tied twice. All eight of these games have been played against teams in the Canadian division. American division opponents have been set back in all seven meetings with the world's champs.

Despite their inability to beat the Hawks to date and the fact that they are in third place in the American division, five notches back of the leading Hawks, players on the Wings are usurping the individual scoring honors in the American division. According to official figures Wieland, Lewis, and Goodfellow are one, two, three in the latest tabulations. The Wings have scored 60 goals, as compared with the 47 for the Hawks, and 25 of the 60 were registered in three games.

Old Goalie Returns.

While most of yesterday's statistical data anent the American division had to do with the trio of Wing stars, space was devoted to a discussion of Howie Morenz's great comeback with the Hawks. Howie has a total of 16 points for a tie for fourth place in the division. All last season with the Canadiens Howie made only 21 points.

John Ross Roach, eccentric veferan goalie, will try to kick them away for the visitors tonight, having been put back in upholstery after the slump of Normie Smith. In two starts the vet has shut out the New York Americans and the marvelous Toronto Maple Leafs. The altered cast of the Wings also will include the touring Roche brothers, Earl and Desse, late of the Maroons, Canadiens, Ottawa, and St. Louis.

Wings Appear at Peak.

There are those who think the combinations the Wings now are able to put forward are the best Detroit ever has had. At any rate the same personnel Sunday night was able to make five goals against the Canadiens in 5 minutes and 2 seconds, which, of course, is peppering them in with startling speed.

Customers tonight will be given a "Note from the Blackhawks" in the form of a polite communication addressed to the missil throwers who have been getting bolder with their onslaughts since the Stadium management recently brought about the release of a bottle tosser who had been arrested at the instance of the Blackhawk management. The appeal, signed by all the players, follows:

"Fans, the Blackhawks, when we're playing a hocky game, are engaged in a very serious and hazardous occupation. Despite the exactions of the game we try with every ounce of strength we possess to win.

It May Help Some.

"In a great measure your support and coöperation are tremendous factors in our success. Without your help we would find it extremely difficult to win. May we go a little further and ask for a bit more of your coöperation to aid us in discouraging the growing practice of throwing objects on the ice during the progress of the game. . . . The smallest article, even a piece of paper, may be the cause of our crashing to the ice or into the boards, which only too easily can end a hocky career. The most pitiful part of any accident is the thought that it could have been avoided."

A rather mincing note to stop hoodlums, but it may cut down the shower of debris by a couple of herring.

Moss, Ex-Purdue Star, Seeks Kirksville Job

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Paul Moss, former Purdue end, has applied for the head coaching position at Kirksville, Mo., State Teachers college to succeed Don Faurot, newly appointed coach at Missouri university, it was learned today. Moss was assistant coach at the Maplewood High school and played with the St. Louis Gunners of the National league last season.

TONY CANZONERI K. O.'S EDDIE RAN IN SECOND ROUND

Newark, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight and lightweight boxing champion, tonight knocked out Eddie Ran, Polish welterweight, one minute and six seconds after the start of the second round. Canzoneri weighed 140¼, Ran 143½.

It was Canzoneri's first appearance as a welterweight and his weight tonight was the highest at which he ever entered the ring during his long career. The former champion was cautious in the first round, feeling Ran out and guarding carefully against the Pole's famed right hand punch.

In the second, after shooting a few punches to the body Tony let loose with lefts and rights to Ran's head, which dropped him for the count. Trying to rise at the count of nine, Ran collapsed and was carried to his corner.

De Paul Romps Over Grinnell Quintet, 47 to 19

De Paul university won its sixth game in seven starts last night at the De Paul gymnasium, overwhelming Grinnell college, 47 to 19.

The Iowans were no match for the smooth passing Demons, who ran up a 22 to 7 lead at halftime, and steadily increased their margin in the second half.

Ray Adams, forward, was the individual scoring star of the night with seven baskets and one free throw. Capt. Frank Linskey scored five field goals, while Willie Phillips thrilled the capacity crowd with his spectacular floor play and accurate passing. Nick Yost, six foot three inch center, made eight points during the short time he played.

Coach Jim Kelly used twelve Demon players, and only Dick Mason of the Iowa squad had any success in scoring. He led his team with four baskets and one free throw.

PARKS AND CLUBS ENTER TEAMS IN SKATE DERBIES

Entrants Get In Under Midnight Deadline.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

More than 600 entries for THE TRIBUNE'S eighteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies were received in yesterday's mail, the last acceptable for this year's races under the rule which established Sunday midnight as a deadline. While the total number of competitors will not be known until all names have been tabulated, the field probably will be larger than last year.

The seven races and the necessary preliminaries are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday afternoons at the Waveland avenue arena. While the present foggy, warm weather is not at all propitious, the Waveland arena is a flooded surface, and any moderately cold wave Thursday or Friday will make possible the races this week-end.

No More Entries Accepted.

In event the Derbies can not be held this week, they will be postponed until the following week. The present list of entries is the only group which will be permitted to compete. No further entries will be accepted.

HOLLYWOOD INFLUENCE.

HOLLYWOOD, CAL., Jan. 7.—It's in the Hollywood air, it's infectious—this passion to enter the movies. We must confess. Even The Wake, long known for our conservatism, has succumbed.

We gave the subject long and careful thought. "Too long," said the little devil within us, "have you hidden your light under a bushel. Why not reveal your talent to a screen loving public?" This sounded so plausible, so enticing, that vain was the warning of our guardian angel, if any, of "What will your Evanston neighbors think of you?"

BEANS REARDON.

So we sauntered forth in search of a studio, not particular which it might be. Our steps carried us to Fox's downtown lot, where a policeman at the gate informed us it was not possible to see Harry Lachman, director, or James Ryan, casting director. Argument did no good, so we flashed our Chicago police lines pass and asked for Francis Perrett, unit public relations representative for "Dante's Inferno," now in production.

At first Mr. Perrett was mildly sympathetic. But our conversation developed that he was born in Menominee, Mich.; that he had been Associated Press correspondent out here for a number of years; that we had many mutual friends. So he finally agreed to make an appointment for us with Harry Lachman, director of "Dante's Inferno," for Wednesday morning. Are we priming up on Mr. Lachman's previous career? We are.

We intend to tell Wake readers frankly of our experiences, of the pitfalls and temptations which beset a young man from a small town, Evanston, in seeking a place in the screen world. This tale will be unfolded in this column. Order from your newsdealer early.

Incidentally, Beans Reardon, National league umpire, is playing a cowboy bartender in Mae West's current movie, "Now I'm a Lady."

That Old Chenille Cover.

As the winters and summers pass into the years
Leaving sunshine and sadness and smiles and tears,
I see through the mist as Life's highways I roam
An old chenille cover—on the table back home.

Its colors were orange, deep reds, and rich brown,
And a bright golden thread that ran in and around,
A garland of roses, of quaint autumn tone,
I see in that cover—on the table back home.

The bright parlor carpet, with green leaves, I now see,
And the tall corner what-not with its treasures to me,
The big rocking chair of red plush, where Dad read—
That chair made him sleepy to sit in, he said.

Yes, the days with their sunsets pass into the night
Leaving ashes-of-roses in memory's light.
But I wish, oh, somehow, alone we could be,
Just Daddy and Mother, my brother and me.

O Time, take me back to that quaint little town
Where places seem hallowed, where true friends are found,
And oftimes in memory I feel myself roam
To that old chenille cover—on the table back home.

Edith Andrew Burchell.

Temperament Squelched.

Perhaps contemplation of a movie career made us temperamental this morning, for when Daughter Wake asked $10 for groceries and household expenses we replied with dignity: "I wish you wouldn't intrude such sordid subjects as money into my artistic thoughts. It's too prosaic."

"All right, daddy dear, then we'll just have an artistic dinner without much food." Daughter Wake replied with such quantitative but menacing sweetness that we quickly handed over ten bucks, however distasteful it was to our present mood.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Northwestern university's basketball team, victor in six pre-conference games and a favorite in the Big Ten race, was defeated, 16 to 9, by Wisconsin tonight before a capacity crowd of 8,550. The score was tied 6 to 6 at the end of the first half.

It was the first conference game for Northwestern and the second for the Badgers, who lost 19 to 18 to Purdue Saturday night.

The result was an impressive tribute to Wisconsin's defensive prowess. Although the score was one of the lowest in recent years, it did not establish a record for Big Ten competition. Wisconsin defeated Illinois, 13 to 9 and 14 to 9 in 1931.

Fisher Well Guarded.

Play developed a number of unusual features. Wisconsin scored its six first half points in the first seven minutes of play. All were made by Ed Stege, Oak Park, Ill., junior, who starred at center. Northwestern, boasting a high scoring combination, did not make a field goal in the first 14 minutes of the game. Lyle Fisher, Northwestern's star forward and leading point getter, was held to a single field goal. It was scored early in the second half and gave Northwestern an 8 to 6 lead, marking the only time throughout the contest that the Wildcats held an advantage.

After taking a 6 to 1 lead at the end of the first seven minutes, Wisconsin went scoreless for 17 minutes, until Stege got a field goal and a free throw in the second half to overcome Northwestern's 8 to 6 advantage.

Stege opened the scoring in the first half with two free throws on Kawal's foul, and followed with a one-handed shot. Vance got Northwestern's first point on a free throw when Jones fouled him. Stege then pushed in a rebound to give the Badgers a 6 to 1 lead.

Stege Takes Charge.

During the remaining 13 minutes of the half, the Wildcats gained a tie on McAnally's free throw and field goals by Mercer and Kawal.

After Fisher's field goal, which was scored on a push-in shot at the outset of the second half, Stege returned to the lineup. He drove into the basket and was fouled by McAnally. Officials ruled his field goal counted because Fisher had leaped into the air and hit the ball as it came through the hoop.

Demark's free throw and a field goal by Poser increased this lead to 12 to 8. Kawal and Preboski matched free throws to run the count to 13 to 9 with five minutes to play. At this point, Northwestern made its first substitutions, Davis replacing Mercer, and Bender relieving Kawal. Wisconsin elected to stall during the remaining minutes, content to score on free throws by Poser, McDonald and Demark.

OHIO, 33; MICHIGAN, 30

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Ohio State scored an unexpected 33 to 30 victory over Michigan tonight, coming from behind midway in the second half and taking an early lead in the overtime period. The regulation time found the teams tied at 25 all.

Michigan went out in front 11 to 1 in the first few minutes, but after Laybourne sank Ohio State's first field goal nine minutes after the start the Buckeyes began moving up. At half time the score was 15 to 10 and halfway through the second period Ohio State took the lead for the first time.

Michigan put on a rally in the last two minutes, scoring six points—the last two on a basket just two seconds before the final gun sounded—to force overtime.

TOMMY ARMOUR WINS MIAMI OPEN GOLF WITH A 281

Chicagoan Has 3 Stroke Edge on Cruickshank.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Tommy Armour of the Medinah Country club of Chicago won the $2,500 Miami open golf tournament today with a 72 hole score of 281. His victory enriched him by $500.

Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond was three strokes behind with 284 and Bill Mehlhorn of Louisville bettered the course record by two strokes to shoot a 64 in the afternoon and tie Felix Serafin of Scranton, Pa., for third place with 72 hole scores of 286. Second place money was $400 and third $300.

Armour Has 70, 72.

Armour, who topped the field at the end of play yesterday with 139 for 36 holes, was out in 34, one under par, this morning and back in 36. In the afternoon he shot fours all the way out for a 36 and came in with the same score for a 72, two over par.

Cruickshank cut down Armour's lead two strokes in the last 18 after he had trailed five strokes at the end of the morning round with 214. He came in with a par 70 in the afternoon.

Mehlhorn had to clip two strokes off the course record to tie Serafin with 286. Mehlhorn was well back at the end of the morning round with 77 for 222, but in the afternoon he burned up the fairways.

Gets Eight Birdies.

He collected eight birdies and lost strokes to par on two holes, the par 3 fourteenth and par 4 seventeenth. Going out he matched par on every hole to the fifth, where he got his first birdies.

He got another birdie on the sixth and then ran out the nine with three consecutive birdies—3, 2, 3. On the back nine he collected birdies on four holes.

The other first ten finishers were Jules Huot, Quebec, 288; Joe Turnesa, West Hartford, 287; Al Watrous, Detroit, 288; Gene Kunes, Norristown, Pa., 289; Frank Walsh, Chicago, 290; Willie Klein, Wheatley Hills, L. I., 291, and Terrell Johnson, Hazelton, Pa., 291.

Amateur honors went to Arnold Minkley of Cleveland, who finished with a 307. Sam Anderson of Kenosha, Wis., was second with 311.

Other Chicago scorers outside of Armour and Walsh included George Smith, 294; Dave Tosh, 297; Jim Noonan, 298, and Bob Stupple, 309.

MILLER WINS 8 ROUND DECISION OVER TONELLI

Billy Miller, Milwaukee, Wis., boxer, pounded out an eight round decision over Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., in the windup bout at Marigold Gardens last night. Miller, who sustained a cut over his left eye in the sixth round, had the advantage in the clinches, but Tonelli landed quite frequently with left swings. Many in the crowd of 1,200 who paid $960 gross thought Laddie deserved a draw. Other results:

Lou Vine stopped Clint Cassell [3].
Syl Sylaski beat Spud Kelly [4].

Tracks of Muskrats are Easy to Identify in Winter

BY BOB BECKER.

When snow and ice cover rivers, sloughs and lakes in the middle west, the round topped homes of muskrats usually break the monotony of the expanse of the white winter waterscape, because this water animal still is a fairly common fur bearer around the Great Lakes states.

Outdoor fans will find the distinctive tracks of the "water rat" on the snow covered ice wherever these animals live. Usually the tracks show where the animal has come up to see the white world through a hole in the ice, and then fooled around to get food. In many places you can see the blurring imprint of the muskrat's tail in the snow.

The snow track of the muskrat is unlike anything else that the outdoor fan will find along a water course or in a marsh, so it is easy to identify.

Coyotes Still Live in Illinois.

Although coyotes can hardly be called abundant in Illinois, it is surprising how, even in fairly thickly settled farming areas, these animals persist. Just a few days ago two farmers living three miles east of Lemont killed a coyote which first had been seen around the chicken yard. We know of coyotes being killed around Morris on Frank Collins' farm. One has been seen this winter on THE TRIBUNE experimental farm near Yorkville.

It is difficult to distinguish between the track of a coyote and a big red fox, since a good sized fox makes as big a track as a small coyote. But a comparison between the tracks of a coyote, fox, and a dog of the same size shows this difference: The foot of the coyote is not as fleshy as that of a dog. Therefore, the toes of the former appear more sharply divided than in the dog's track.

Dogs Have Softer Feet.

Naturally our domestic dogs have softer feet than wild coyotes, foxes, or wolves. This gives us another point to look for in their snow tracks. When the dog strikes a fast gait in the snow his soft, fleshy toes spread out more than those of the coyote or fox.

The squirrel practically always pairs its feet when on the ground, and its snow track is so common and easy to read that it is not difficult to distinguish the trail of this little animal in the snow. The hind feet of the squirrel always point outward, so that even with imperfect imprints one can readily determine in which direction the trail leads.

Complete Wrestling Card at Marigold Gardens

Supporting bouts announced yesterday for the George Dusette-Al Williams windup of the wrestling show tomorrow at Marigold Gardens: Zack Malkov and George Lagoski have been paired for the semi-final. Other matches will involve Charley Peterson and Stanley West, Henry Forman and Buck O'Neil, and Jack Arnet and Ed Van Herrick.

Notre Dame, Marquette to Meet Tonight

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Marquette will invade the Notre Dame fieldhouse tomorrow night with a team which has become stronger game by game since the addition of Capt. Ray Morstadt to the lineup. Withheld from practice because of football activities, the Hilltopper captain has taken over the Marquette scoring lead, reaching his peak with 23 points against Stanford.

Each Scores 118 Points.

In the last four games Notre Dame and Marquette have broken even, scoring 118 points apiece. Marquette had a one point advantage two years ago, and Notre Dame has a one point advantage in last year's totals. Scores for the last four games are:

	Notre Dame.	Marquette.
1932-'33	32	35
	36	34
1933-'34	30	28
	20	21
	118	118

Since last year's series, Notre Dame has lost the services of Capt. Ed Krause and Joe Voegele, forward, who averaged 350 points a season together, and Leo Crowe, floor guard.

What the Irish have lost in offense they have partially made up in defensive ability, but Coach George Keogan, in diagramming Marquette plays and setting up defenses today, told his players: "These defenses are just superficial. The idea is to go out and get some points yourself, because you can't win by just holding the other team down."

Divide with Badgers.

Marquette was defeated by Wisconsin early in the season and, with Morstadt in the lineup a week later, won handily from the Badgers, only to lose to Purdue in a later game. Morstadt will be pitted against Marty Peters, star Irish center, who has averaged 10 points in five games this season.

Probable lineups:

MARQUETTE.		NOTRE DAME.
Morstadt [C.]	R. F.	O'Kane
Eirich	L. F.	Ford
Ehrig	C	Peters
Rubado	R. G.	[C.] Jordan

Steele has taken a long rest in his California home and is beginning the 1935 season with prospects of landing high among the contenders in the next year.

ROOSEVELT FIVE STARTS DEFENSE OF TITLE TODAY

14 Other Lightweight Prep Games Scheduled.

Roosevelt's 1934 lightweight champions will begin defense of their title this afternoon in one of the feature games of the opening of the Chicago High school league basketball season. The Roosevelt quintet will meet Sullivan.

Two Veterans Back.

Roland Young, high scoring forward, and Rubin Katzen, guard, are the veterans remaining from last year's powerful aggregation. Harold Stursiner will be assigned the other guard berth, and Roland Muller will play forward with Young in today's contest. Both were members of the squad last season, although neither performed regularly. Johnny Wolf, rangy center, will be in the tipoff circle at the opening whistle.

Fourteen other lightweight games will complete the card today. Four contests will be played in the central, west, and north sections, with three up for decision in the south section. Tomorrow afternoon McKinley and Marshall will meet, thus concluding the opening bracket.

Heavies Open Thursday.

Heavyweight teams will swing into league competition Thursday and Friday evenings, and Lane, last year's champion and winner of the Christmas week tournament at the University of Chicago, again will send a rugged quintet after another title.

Steinmetz High school has been added to the league, games in which will be decided in a single round robin, rather than double.

Animal Census Urged by U. S. Game Head

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A new kind of census, one that would tell who's who and how many in the nation's wild animal population, was proposed today by J. N. [Ding] Darling, chief of the bureau of biological survey.

Darling, a former newspaperman whose cartoons on wild life are famous, has requested public works funds to conduct such a survey, through the game and fish commissions of the various states.

"It is hard to believe that no survey ever has been made to estimate the wild life population. We have no definite figures to show the approximate size of any group of our animals. Nor do we know how many are killed every year by hunters," he said.

Such a survey, Darling explained, would show "what game we are taking and what we should take in order to leave sufficient numbers for breeding and replacements."

The data obtained would show the status of every species of our wild life and would establish which animals should have more protection from hunters. The census, he said, could be taken in every state within six months.

Missouri now is conducting such a survey, the first complete and comprehensive one of its kind. Some time ago Iowa made a preliminary survey.

EASTERN BOXERS TO HEAD STADIUM, DETROIT CARDS

Mullen, Lewis Due from New York Tomorrow.

James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis, co-matchmakers at the Chicago Stadium and Detroit Olympia, expect to return tomorrow from New York, where they have been conferring with managers of leading fighters relative to matches to be held at the Stadium Jan. 25 and the Olympia Feb. 1. They hope to return with contracts of several eastern stars in their possession.

Max Baer, heavyweight champion, and Joe Louis, Detroit youngster, attractions in recent successful cards presented by the new Chicago promotional organization of which Mullen and Lewis are members, will be unable to take part in either of the impending shows.

Baer Meets Madden.

Baer is booked to box Dick Madden at Boston Thursday, after which he and his retinue will head for Florida for a series of bouts preparatory to returning to California. The champion is slated to make his next appearance under the auspices of the Chicago group in March.

Louis will leave Detroit today for a bout with Hans Birkie of New York at Pittsburgh Friday. Then he will await completion of negotiations for a second encounter against Lee Ramage, planned for Feb. 22 at Los Angeles. If the match is arranged Joe will depart immediately for the coast. The Detroit heavyweight has agreed to engage in two fights for Mullen and Lewis in March, one at Detroit and the other in Chicago.

Eddie Risko May Fight Here.

One of the eastern boxers expected to fight at the Stadium this month will be Eddie [Babe] Risko, conqueror of Champion Teddy Yarosz in a recent nontitle battle.

Sammy Fuller of Boston, Mass., recently named No. 1 contender for Barney Ross' lightweight crown by the Illinois athletic commission, yesterday posted a $2,500 forfeit challenge check with the commission for such a match. . . . The champion will start boxing drills today at Trafton's gymnasium for his junior welterweight title defense against Frank Klick at Miami, Fla., Jan. 24. . . . Ross, Co-Managers Sam Pian and Art Winch, Trainer Izzy Kline and Sergt. Harry O'Connell, the champion's bodyguard, plan to entrain for Florida Friday.

Young Joe Firpo, Philadelphia junior welterweight, and Frank Sagilio of Cicero will meet for ten rounds at Cicero stadium on Jan. 18. . . . Conquest of Firpo will earn Sagilio a bout with Tony Falco, also of Philadelphia, at Cicero two weeks later. . . . Rudy Sterbenz and Biff Bennett, Chicago heavyweights, were matched yesterday for a four round preliminary at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Paul Lee and Young Rightmire likely will meet in the main event. . . . Mickey O'Shea, north side welterweight, is preparing to go to Florida Saturday for a series of bouts.

Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, has been given permission to referee a wrestling exhibition at Springfield, Ill., Thursday. . . . Manager Bert Linnehan has placed his welterweight charge, Patrick Henry, under the direction of Eddie Long during his absence at Rochester, Minn., where he will undergo an operation for a sinus infection. . . . Young Jack Blackburn, south side welterweight, and Harry Warner, former lightweight, make sketches of boxers at Trafton's gymnasium.

Louis [Chip] London, secretary of the state athletic commission, has turned over his duties to Gene Meany. . . . London will transfer to the Chicago health department. . . . Bus Breese, Manhattan, Kas., has accepted a ten round bout against Joey Alcanter at Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 23. . . . Jack Elverrillo, Chicago 147 pounder, is seeking a match with Laddie Tonelli or Billy Miller. . . . E. J. Bickhouse, Quincy, Ill., had his promotional bond renewed yesterday. . . . Promoter War Looms Over Baer's Services

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A boxing promoters' war over the services of the world's heavyweight champion, Max Adelbert Baer, was imminent tonight.

Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis, Chicago promoters, exhibited a contract here today which commits Baer to five no decision bouts under their direction before the champion makes his first defense of his title under the direction of Madison Square Garden.

Mullen and Lewis plan to use Baer in ten round contests that will be within the meaning of a provision in Madison Square Garden's contract on Baer which stipulates the champion must make the first defense of his title for the garden.

Jimmy Speaks Off.

James J. Johnston, boxing director at the Garden, scoffed at the Mullen-Lewis proposal, claiming any exhibition in excess of four rounds must of necessity be regarded as a contest, regardless of whether it is to a decision, and, as such, would be in violation of the Garden contract.

"Precedent and custom are what we go by in defining an exhibition," said Johnston, "and I have never, in all my years of association with boxing heard of an exhibition that went as far as ten rounds. That is a fight, whether it is to a decision or not. If he undertakes a ten round event the Garden's attorneys will be on the job."

Mullen and Lewis, however, are confident they will have Baer's services in ten round no decision events.

Baer Wants to Fight.

"Baer wants to prove he can beat all challengers in ten rounds," said Mullen. "If one survives the distance with Baer he will be established as the outstanding challenger. Certainly a challenger who travels ten rounds with the champion will draw the most money in a championship bout.

"We had a long discussion with Charlie Harvey, manager for Steve Hamas, today, and he is ready to send Hamas against Baer for any distance from four to ten rounds, if his proposed German bout falls through," Mullen continued. "We have a heavyweight out in our part of the country named Joe Louis, a Golden Gloves product, who will make another opponent, and a mighty good one, too. Walter Neusel also will be welcome."

Mullen announced that Lewis and he are seeking boxers other than heavyweights for Chicago. He conferred with Sammy Goldman, manager of Tony Canzoneri, relative to a bout for the former lightweight champion in the Chicago Stadium.

SCHUH TO MEET OLESON ON WHITE CITY MAT TONIGHT

Pete Schuh, the big Californian who for a number of years has been one of Ed Strangler Lewis' chief trainers, returns to the mat himself tonight at White City, where he will meet Olaf Oleson of Milwaukee in the main event of Promoter Mique Malloy's wrestling show.

It will be Malloy's first appearance as a promoter of heavyweight matches. Three other matches at top poundage will support the argument between Schuh and Oleson. The latter, an exponent of the scissors hold, will match that weapon against Schuh's headlock.

In the semi-final George Mack of Chicago will trade grips with Jack Smith, also of Chicago. Hans Bauer, one time partner of Jim Londos, will meet Gene Almon of Boston, and Zack Malkov, the north shore motorcycle policeman, will grapple with Jack Zaravich in the opener.

Don George Triumphs Over Strangler Lewis in 43:48

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Ed Don George, Buffalo, threw Ed [Strangler] Lewis after 43 minutes 48 seconds of a rough wrestling match at the 71st Regiment armory tonight.

A flying tackle brought Lewis down, his head striking the mat with terrific force. George fell on the Strangler and pinned him for the prescribed three seconds.

Wood Turns on Power.

Allowing his second round opponent, George Gaallet, Miami, to take four games in a row, Wood then went into action to end the meeting, 6-4, 6-3, with two fine placements for clean scoring aces. Bell had an opportunity to show some of his remarkable court covering ability in defeating George Andradi, New York, 6-3, 6-1.

Malon Courts and Bryan M. Grant, both of Atlanta and joint holders of the southern doubles championship, also advanced in straight set victories. Courts eliminated A. Brassford, New York, 6-2, 6-2, while Grant turned back Charles Hartridge, Orlando, Fla., 6-1, 6-1.

QUICKLY WHIPS SMALL FIELD AT TROPICAL PARK

Scores by 1½ Lengths Over Chatterdoo.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—J. E. Smallman's Quickly, which compiled an excellent record in Canada last summer, returned to winning ways at Tropical Park today and scored by a length and a half in the six furlong fifth race.

Quickly led home H. R. Dickens' Chatterdoo, with George W. Ogle's Tractable third in the field of five. The Sage stable's Bright Haven and the Amalgamated stable's Frederick completed the list.

There was no outstanding feature, but a fair weekday crowd attended. The weather was clear and the track fast. Quickly ran as if much the best. She won twelve times last summer, but in a campaign at Narragansett Park failed to get into the money. Today marked her first Florida start.

Winner Steps Out.

Bright Haven and the winner got away first, and for nearly half a mile they stayed close together. When Bright Haven tired and fell back after the fast early pace, Quickly drew away to a lead of several lengths.

At the head of the stretch Quickly was sailing along four lengths ahead of Bright Haven, which was dropping back steadily. Chatterdoo began to close ground in the final furlongs, however, and the winner was extended in the drive and was doing her best at the finish. Chatterdoo had been third all the way, but moved up when Bright Haven tired.

Frederick, favored mildly by the betters and made 9 to 5 at post time, raced with unexpected sluggishness all the way, never getting out of last place. Quickly paid $7.90 straight after covering the distance in 1:11 2-5. She is a 5 year old daughter of Haste-Stephanie.

Marching Home Returns $2.70.

The only races on the program not governed by the claiming clause were the third and fourth, allowance affairs for 3 year olds over the five and a half furlong distance. The first of these brought out the shortest priced winner of the meeting, as the Middleburg stable's Marching Home triumphed by five lengths to pay $2.70 straight.

Another star on the Milwaukee squad is Pete Peterson, 6 foot 5 inch center, who formerly played with the Denver Pigs, one of the strongest amateur teams in the country.

Wilfred Hetzel, claimant of the world's free throwing championship, will attempt to break his record of 112 in a row before tonight's game. The lineup:

NEW PEAK MADE IN MONTGOMERY WARD CO. SALES

Total for December Is $34,683,742.

Montgomery Ward & Co. announced yesterday that December was the biggest month in the company's history in point of gross volume of business done. Sales reached an all-time peak figure of $34,683,742, which exceeded by a slight margin total sales in December, 1929, the best previous month in the company's history, which dates back to 1872.

Last month's sales showed wide gains over December sales in the preceding four years. December is normally the best month of the year for the company. Compared with December, 1933, last month's sales showed a gain of $9,829,016, or 39.55 per cent. The December, 1933, volume totaled $24,854,726. The seasonal increase last month over November, 1934, amounting to $7,800,000, was the biggest on record.

Month Sales Up 33.6 Per Cent.

Sales for the eleven months ended Dec. 31 totaled $243,994,391, compared with $182,632,349 for the similar period in 1933, an increase of $61,362,042, or 33.60 per cent.

Last month was the twentieth consecutive month that the company's business showed a gain over the comparable period of the preceding year. The percentage gain of 39.55, however, was not as large as was shown in February and March last year. The percentage gains of 52 and 63, respectively, shown in those months were accounted for by the fact that the business in 1933 during those months was at an abnormally low level because of the banking troubles of that year.

The Montgomery Ward figures give ample confirmation of the tremendous volume of holiday buying which swept the country in 1934. Last week Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported that its December sales were the largest for any four week period since October, 1929, and showed a gain of 13.3 per cent over comparable period of 1933.

Table of Sales Volume.

The following table shows the sales trend during the first eleven months of Montgomery Ward & Co.'s fiscal year, which closes at the end of this month:

	1934.	1933.	Pct. inc.
February ...	$ 15,421,893	$ 10,131,891	52.2
March	18,312,477	11,263,374	62.6
April	20,872,132	15,665,586	33.2
May	20,934,510	15,247,812	37.3
June	19,266,336	16,103,560	19.6
July	15,896,560	13,641,121	16.4
August	18,914,959	15,390,120	22.9
September ..	23,093,465	16,583,708	39.2
October	29,703,511	22,780,643	30.4
November ..	29,969,806	23,969,808	28.2
December ...	34,683,742	24,854,726	39.5
Eleven mo.	$243,994,391	$182,632,349	33.6

The December, 1929, sales figures of the company heretofore published were $35,799,316, or in excess of the gross sales reported yesterday for last month. The company explained, however, that the figures previously reported for 1929 included some business carried over from November of that year in accordance with the practice then prevailing. Stated on a comparable basis the December, 1929, sales were $34,552,798, against gross sales last month of $34,683,742.

Change Merchandising Methods.

The steady improvement that has been taking place in the company's business is attributed in large measure to the changes in merchandising methods and personnel which the present management has effected. The company has adopted a uniform store building, modernized old units, changed its merchandise display methods and revised its mail order catalogs. The present management took over the company in March, 1932, when Sewell L. Avery was elected president.

The twenty-third consecutive monthly gain in sales was reported yesterday by Spiegel-May-Stern company, Chicago mail order company. December sales were $3,273,583, compared with $2,020,839 in December, 1933, an increase of 62 per cent. Net sales for the year ended Dec. 31 totaled $26,238,131, compared with $13,540,792 in the preceding year, an increase of 94 per cent.

BILL TO CONTROL GRAIN EXCHANGE FILED IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The commodity exchange control bill, designed as a companion law for the stock exchange regulatory act, today made its reappearance in congress.

The legislation was the first of the major administration-backed agricultural measures to be introduced in the house this session. It was put in by Chairman Jones of the house agricultural committee.

The chief objective is to halt large scale speculation in grains and cottons, but whether the latter commodity will remain in the measure, however, is not certain, because of some senate coolness to including the cotton exchanges.

Walgreen's Business Sets New Record

December sales of the Walgreen company were the largest in the company's history, the company reported yesterday. Sales aggregated $6,154,158, as compared with $5,318,061 in December, 1933. Up to last month December, 1933, had been the biggest sales month on record. The increase last month over a year ago amounted to $836,097, equivalent to 15.7 per cent.

The December results brought sales for the full year to $54,783,886, an increase of $7,372,441, or 15.5 per cent, over the $47,412,445 volume handled in 1933.

All Branches Expand.

The expansion in sales was uniform in all branches of the company's business. Liquors were added to the company's line in December, 1933.

S. H. Kress & Co. reported December sales of $12,412,070, an increase of $971,391, or 8.5 per cent, over the same month of 1933. Sales for the full year were $75,662,276, an increase of $10,649,166, or 16.4 per cent, over 1933.

S. S. Kresge company sales for December increased 7½ per cent over the previous year to a total of $21,212,908. In November the improvement over 1933 amounted to 7.8 per cent.

Sales of Safeway Stores company in December totaled $19,627,807, compared with $17,746,262 in the same period last year. In the 52 weeks ended Dec. 29 sales amounted to $241,837,753, against $219,628,978 in the previous year.

Newberry Sales Higher.

J. J. Newberry december sales amounted to $6,795,807, compared with $6,086,110 in the same month last year. In the full 12 months sales totaled $41,057,802, against $35,146,974 in the previous year.

The Katz Drug company reported December sales of $1,053,430, against $907,990 in the corresponding month a year ago, an increase of 16 per cent. Sales for November amounted to $872,021, an increase of 11.2 per cent over the like month of 1933.

DOLLAR EASES ON ROOSEVELT'S BUDGET MESSAGE

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The dollar cheapened slightly in foreign exchange today after the publication of the President's budget message forecasting continued large deficits in this and the next fiscal years. The gold bloc currencies and those sympathetic to the gold group advanced in dollar value, while the pound sterling and its followers weakened.

The franc rose to 6.63½ cents, slightly above par, and closed at 6.62⅞ cents, up ⅜ point net. The guilder was up 5 points to 67.95 cents, the Belga up a point to 23.52 cents, and the Swiss franc was up a point to 32.55 cents.

At the closing quotation on the franc the dollar was worth $1.0007, based on the new par of the franc, compared with $1.0013 on Saturday. Calculated on the new par of the franc, the dollar was valued at 59.10 cents, against 59.14 cents.

Sterling dropped 1¾ cents to $4.90¾ and the Scandinavian exchanges were down 8 or 9 points. The yen dropped 3 points to 28.67 cents, the Canadian dollar lost 6¼ points to close at a premium of ⅜ cent.

The federal reserve bank of New York reported the receipt of $5,539,100 gold from England and $2,011,400 gold from India. In the London gold market the gold price was raised 5½ pence to 142 shillings 1 pence.

A previously announced schedule included the state sales tax, which is deducted from the retail prices. The customer will pay the sales tax as he does on other goods and commodities. Companies announcing increases yesterday included Shell, Pure Oil, Texas, Sinclair, and Continental.

GLASS-FDIC QUARREL PUT UP TO CONGRESS BY VANDENBERG BILL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The controversy between Senator Glass (Dem., Va.) and the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation over limiting the interest on bank deposits was placed before congress today by Senator Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.].

Vandenberg, one of the authors of the bank deposit insurance law, offered his bill on the theory that the insurance of deposits must be protected by a limitation on interest rates. His bill would legalize beyond dispute the deposit insurance corporation's recent order limiting interest on deposits to 2½ per cent.

Glass, who challenged the corporation's power to issue such an order, withheld comment on the Vandenberg bill until he had a chance to study it. At first, under the impression that Vandenberg's bill was a statutory limitation on interest rates of 2½ per cent, the Virginian said he was "utterly opposed to it." But when he was informed that it was broad in its language, Glass withdrew the statement and withheld comment.

Vandenberg merely proposed to add to the insurance corporation's powers authority "to regulate maximum interest rates to be paid upon insured deposits by zones or otherwise."

PLAN TO LET RFC LEND BILLION FOR PRIVATE BUILDING

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Another proposed stimulus to housing, in the form of legislation to allow the RFC to lend directly up to $1,000,000,000 for private building, today was under consideration by the administration. This was disclosed in authoritative circles by officials who said that such an amendment to the present RFC act might pry loose the funds that private lenders are still holding.

The proposed legislation, however, if exercised, would put the government more directly into competition with private business. President Roosevelt in his message to congress indicated that home construction would be a part of the $4,000,000,000 public works program which he contemplated. Officials said they expected most of the public works money to be spent for slum clearance and similar low cost housing projects.

U. S. WINS RIGHT TO INVESTIGATE REORGANIZATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The right of the federal government to inquire into motives behind the reorganization of corporations in determining tax liabilities was upheld today by the Supreme court. The government contended this was necessary to ascertain whether reorganizations are genuine or merely to escape tax payments.

The decision, handed down in a case brought by Mrs. Evelyn F. Gregory of Brooklyn, was considered by court attachés to be one of the most important tax rulings in recent years. A $10,678 surtax had been levied by the commissioner of internal revenue against Mrs. Gregory who sought to escape payment.

Mills Novelty Co. Obtains $100,000 Building Permit

A building permit for a $100,000 four story brick building to be used as offices and factory of the Mills Novelty company, at 4036-54 Fullerton avenue, was issued yesterday.

Boylan Elected New President of Grain Board

Robert P. Boylan, 43 year old first vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade, a position he has held for the last three years, was unanimously elected president of the grain body at the annual election yesterday.

He succeeds Peter B. Carey, who has piloted the organization through the last three years, stormy years for grain traders who have witnessed government interference play havoc with their livelihood at times.

ROBT. P. BOYLAN.

Boylan headed the regular slate, which had no opposition. Thomas Y. Wickham automatically became first vice president and Kenneth S. Templeton was elected second vice president.

The regular slate of directors to serve three years was elected. Included were Archer E. Hayes, John G. McCarthy, Louis T. Sayre, Arthur C. Sullivan, James A. White, Richard McNellis, Simon Mayer, and Alex W. Kay. Thomas E. Hosty, a member of Charles Sincere & Co., a candidate by petition, was defeated.

Carey was elected to the nominating committee for one year. Others chosen for this group were Lowel Holt, Earle M. Combs, Edwin J. Kuh Jr., and George T. Carhart.

David H. Annan, Brackett B. Denniston, Alfred A. Meyer, John H. Wheeler, and Alex Moore were elected to the appeals committee. Members of the arbitration committee are Frank Haines, Philip A. Copenhaver, George W. Altorfer, George H. Phillips, and Lawrence J. Ryan.

Boylan has been a member of the grain exchange for more than nineteen years. He started in a minor position in 1905 at the age of 14 and worked in various brokerage house capacities until 1915, when he purchased a membership on the board. Since 1918 he has operated as a grain broker under his own name.

He has played a prominent part in affairs of the exchange during the last few years, representing it in negotiations which preceded enactment of the grain exchange code.

Directors of the board honored Carey at a luncheon yesterday at the Standard club.

Suit to Force Kaspar Bank Deposit Payment Dismissed

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Circuit Judge L. E. Stone today dismissed a mandamus suit that sought to compel Edward J. Barrett, state auditor of public accounts, to pay "dividends" for the Kaspar American State bank of Chicago, which closed two years ago. The court was told the bank is ready to re-open.

New Treasury Issue Sells at 0.12 Per Cent Discount

Applications for the treasury's latest offering of short term paper totaled $141,685,000, Secretary Morgenthau announced last night. A total of $75,185,000 was accepted. The bills, dated Jan. 9, and maturing July 10, brought an average price of 99.942, equal to 0.12 per cent annually on a bank discount basis.

NICHOLS' BANK PAYS 6% DIVIDEND; WARNS OF FEDERAL POLICIES

J. M. Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, yesterday announced a 6 per cent dividend to holders of the institution's $200,000 capital stock as of Dec. 31, 1934.

"With an administration seemingly bent on obliterating sound banking, we feel it is a real achievement to be able to share with you even a slight profit, which, unlike the window-dressing so prevalent today, has actually been earned within the current year," said Mr. Nichols. More important, he added, is the fact that the bank continues free from political domination, "which, in my opinion, would practically annihilate your investment in this institution."

Banker Nichols called attention to the fact that the bank has liquid assets in cash and government securities equal to 100.59 per cent of its $6,657,163 deposits. He calls this policy out of sympathy with the "academic idea that a bank must support the borrowing public and that no depositor should expect to be paid in full." The bank's ability to pay its depositors depends entirely on the ability of the government to meet its obligations, he added, and called attention to an amendment to the bylaws giving the bank the right to pay deposits in government securities, to be voted on Feb. 13.

STEEL INSTITUTE REPORTS RISE OF 10.7% IN OUTPUT

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Continuing the rise of the last two months of 1934, steel output for the current week was estimated today by the American Iron and Steel institute at 43.4 per cent of capacity, against an estimated schedule for last week of 39.2 per cent. The production rate was 32.7 per cent a month ago and 30.7 per cent a year ago.

The increase over the previous week, one of the sharpest in the course of the current upturn in steel operations, was 4.2 points or 10.7 per cent. Current operations, on the basis of the estimate, are the highest since last June.

Production of steel ingots in 1934 was estimated by the institute at 25,360,570 tons, the largest total since 1931. The previous year's output was 22,594,079 tons. December output came to 1,941,127 tons, against 1,798,606 tons in December, 1933.

Federal Food Price Index Shows Only Slight Sag

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The cost of stocking the pantry shelves during the two weeks ended Dec. 18 was reported by the labor department today to have remained about the same as during the previous two weeks.

Food that cost $1.143 during the two weeks ended Dec. 18 cost $1.146 the previous fortnight. The same food cost $1.16 last September, the high point in 1934; $1.03 a year ago; 98 cents two years ago.

GRAINS RALLY ON PROSPECTS FOR INFLATION

President's Message Is Prime Factor.

Inflationary aspects of the President's budget message to congress, coupled with persistent strength in the cash market, resulted in outstanding strength in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

Buying was particularly noticeable on every recession, and with selling pressure light, prices had little difficulty in pushing forward. Wheat, corn, and oats moved up about a cent each, closing at or near the best levels of the day.

Millers again are reported to be buying wheat. The fact that they have been forced to dip heavily into visible supplies was indicated in a reduction in stocks of this class totaling 3,442,000 bushels for the last week, which carried the total down to 81,328,000 bushels, against 122,314,000 at this time a year ago.

May Deliveries Strongest.

Most strength was shown in May deliveries of all grains. Deferred contracts failed to reflect the full advance and in some cases actually chalked up losses. Closing prices of May futures of principal grains follow:

	Yesterday.	Saturday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$1.01¾	$1.00⅝	$ .99⅝
Corn	.91⅜	.90½	.89⅝
Oats	.54⅞	.54	.53
Rye	.76⅝	.75¾	.75¾

Winnipeg displayed modest improvement by rising ⅛ to ¼ cent, while Liverpool advanced ⅝ cent. Buenos Aires gained a minor fraction and Rotterdam finished unchanged to ½ cent above Saturday's close.

Domestic consumption of wheat this season is placed at 655 million bushels by the department of agriculture, which indicates a surplus of 131 million bushels at the end of the crop year July 1 next. On July 1, 1934, the total stood at 290 million bushels. Approximately 85 million bushels are expected to be fed to live stock this season.

May-July Spread Widens.

Buying to remove previously placed hedges resulted in the widening of the May-July spread to 7⅜ cents. A week ago it was 6 cents. Many observers foresee a further broadening as supplies are withdrawn from visible supply points.

In the cash market prices moved higher with futures. Trading basis was unchanged with the exception of some grades of wheat which moved a half cent higher.

Buying, said to represent purchases for cash interests, gave considerable buoyancy to corn. Gossip said liberal sales were completed last week from an Indiana market to a distilling firm.

TELEPHONE GAIN BY BELL SYSTEM ABOVE LAST YEAR

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—There was an increase of 21,200 telephones in service in the Bell system in December, 1934, comparing with a gain of 13,000 telephones in the same month in 1933 and with 17,000 in November. Excepting June and July last year, gains have occurred in each month since August, 1933.

For the final quarter of 1934 telephone gains in the Bell system were 71,400, against 52,000 the year before and 38,000 in the third quarter of 1934. For 1934 as a whole the gain totaled 293,000 telephones, comparing with a net loss of 630,000 stations in 1933.

Better Autos, Not Cheaper Ones, Wanted

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7. — [Special.] — There aren't any cheap cars among the 1935 models displayed at the annual automobile show here this week, notwithstanding the depression buying trend toward smaller vehicles. Manufacturers this year, as previously, have added more luxury in appearance and performance to their products. To those without cash for a new car the popular low price field is a misnomer.

ROY FAULKNER.

"Why don't you give the public a car that is really low priced?" Roy Faulkner, president of the Auburn Automobile company, was asked.

"What would you suggest?" he shot back.

"Why not a midget car, economical and answering all requirements for individual urban transportation?"

Says Americans Want Best.

"I'll build one when I find you walking down Michigan avenue some summer afternoon in a pair of linen shorts, economical, comfortable, and answering all requirements for hiding your nudity," was his reply. "You'll never do it. An American fears ridicule. We are proud. It's hunger for the best things in life that makes America what it is."

"Then why not a full size automobile to sell at about $250? Leave off the fancy chromium trimmings, the expensive upholstery and hardware, put a small engine with a cruising speed of thirty miles an hour in a light chassis, revert to two wheel brakes, economize everywhere in the construction. Give the farmer bare transportation to the village grocery and the laborer cheap transportation to his employment."

"Because the farmer and laborer want beauty and luxury," Faulkner responded. "Futhermore, there are really low cost automobiles available to those without the money to buy a new car. The used car dealer offers more value for $250 than we could produce in the assembly of new material."

Want to Look Prosperous.

That may answer those who believe that the so-called low price field is a misnomer.

"And," the manufacturer concluded, running a hand over his gray hair, "the trend in buying is changing. Folks with money are no longer afraid their neighbors and business associates will disapprove evidence of prosperity.

"We're no longer living down to the Jones, a tendency that helped to prolong the depression. We're buying what we can afford and proud that we can afford it. Folks are buying better clothes, buying better furniture, buying better in everything, and automobiles are no exception. Those with money are spending. Take a look at the night clubs, for example."

"Let's do."

"It's a date."

That's the spirit of the annual automobile show which will be repeated in Chicago's Coliseum Jan. 26 to Feb. 2.

CHRYSLER'S 1934 OUTPUT RISES 33% TO NEW RECORD

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Walter P. Chrysler announced today that the Chrysler corporation during 1934 produced more automobiles than in any previous year in its history. He said production was 33 per cent above 1933 and represented a gain of 19.5 per cent over the previous peak year, 1928.

Chrysler said retail sales are keeping pace with climbing production. He pointed to shipments of 57,305 new cars in December, as presaging "even greater records for 1935."

STOCKS STRONG; BUDGET PLANS CAUSE NO STIR

Rails Lead Advance Late in Session.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7. — [Special.] — President Roosevelt's budget message to congress, containing no startling revelations, today failed to produce any momentous doings in the stock market. It was pointed out that only an optimistic minority in the financial district had hoped for a reversal of the administration's theory of "spending the way" to recovery.

The turnover in stocks was approximately 1,286,000 shares, the first million share day of the year, and at the close prices were generally at the best level of the day. After some irregularity in the forenoon the list turned upward in more or less general fashion with the railroad group leading the advance in the last hour. The big factor in the late rally was the announcement of further improvement in heavy industries.

Another constructive force was the report of the December sales of Montgomery Ward.

Message Received Favorably.

The President's message, all things taken into consideration, was received favorably in the street, especially by speculators looking forward to some kind of inflation and commission-hungry brokers. On the other hand, some brokers think that inasmuch as spending our way out of the depression has not been a complete success it is still pertinent to ask whether, if given greater freedom, business might use to better advantage on its own account the billions of bank credit the government proposes to appropriate and spend through political channels.

One of the most impressive features of the market was the performance of the pivotals, Westinghouse, General Electric, United States Steel, and American Can all bettering their previous closing prices.

Motor Issues Irregular.

With the national automobile show now in full swing the motor shares churned along in active fashion, but aside from Mack, which gained 1¼ points, and Auburn, which went ahead fractionally, failed to make any appreciable headway.

The steel industry's improvement was reflected most sharply by Bethlehem preferred, which presented its holders with a substantial gain of 3¼ points. The common stock of the same company edged forward with a fractional gain, as did both issues of United States Steel.

Two strong spots in the list were Homestake Mining and Coca Cola. The former climbed up 16½ points and the later climbed over 3 points to hit a new high for the year.

The metal shares were fractionally higher, but these stocks, which as a rule come in for most attention when inflationary talk is in the air, were not especially active.

Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey in the utility division gave way fractionally, while American Telephone managed to hold to its previous closing level.

Oils Sag on NRA Ruling.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Oil stocks turned a bit soft here late today following the Supreme court decision overthrowing the clause of the NRA under which the government has attempted to curtail oil production. A statement from Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, that regulation of "hot oil" would be continued under the oil code appeared to reassure traders.

Standard Oil of California lost 50 cents and Union Oil 25 cents a share. Several oil shares lost part or all of earlier gains.

SCIENTIFIC METHOD

To substitute accurate knowledge for guesswork is the heart of the scientific method. To assume, as some do, that this method is valid in every branch of science and industry but not to any valuable extent in the management of investments, does not appear to accord with either logic or the facts. MEMBER BANKS' CREDIT SHRINKS; DEPOSITS FALL

Further Contraction Seen in Weekly Report.

Further contractions in credit and individual deposits were disclosed in the weekly federal reserve member bank report issued yesterday covering operations in ninety-one leading cities.

Chicago reported a drop of 27 millions in gross deposits for the week ended Jan. 2, but gains in New York and the interior lifted the net upturn to 111 millions for the nation. Individual deposits fell 19 millions in New York, 29 millions here, and rose 12 millions elsewhere, a total decline of 36 millions.

Government deposits with the banks were undisturbed, but interbank deposits rose 147 millions through advances of 117 millions in New York, 2 millions here, and 28 millions in the eighty-nine cities.

Buy More Federal Bonds.

With the exception of loans to brokers and increases in holdings of government securities, investments and credits registered decreases. New York bolstered its federal bond portfolio 23 millions, Chicago reported no change, and the interior recorded a decline of 5 millions, a net upturn of 18 millions.

Brokers' loans expanded 27 millions, rose 26 in New York, 2 millions in the interior, and dipped a million here.

Commercial acceptances moved 5 millions higher in New York, although decreases of 2 millions each in Chicago and the interior reduced the net change to an increase of 1 million.

Commercial Loans Decline.

Commercial loans dropped 25 millions on declines of 16 millions in New York, a million here, and 8 millions elsewhere.

Investments in other than government securities slumped 66 millions, falling 16 in New York, 37 here, and 13 in the interior. Total loans and investments registered a decline of 55 millions.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A large increase in the government's expenditures to regulate the nation's stock markets and to curb stock frauds is proposed for the next fiscal year for the Securities and Exchange commission. The commission would expend $2,340,000, compared with $583,159 in the present fiscal year, the budget, made public today, discloses.

Total personnel would be increased from 153 to 655, and a substantial portion of the gain would include special investigators of one kind or another.

COTTON UP 4 TO 9 POINTS ON STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Strength in stocks had considerable influence on cotton yesterday, and while there was a small dip early on scattered selling, part of which was attributed to the far east, a rally of around 10 points from the inside levels came later and the finish was around the top. Chicago showed net gains of 4 to 7 points, while other markets were up 4 to 9 points, with New York leading.

Spot cotton closed 5 to 10 points higher, with New Orleans, Galveston, Houston, and New York 12.85 cents per pound. Prices follow:

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Despite the prospect of heavy new financing this year by the treasury, as outlined in President Roosevelt's budget message to congress today, the market for long-term United States government bonds continued to move higher today.

Most of the treasury bonds were hesitant and easy during forenoon trading but later there was a broadened demand despite the indicated deficit of more than $4,500,000,000 in the next fiscal year and the threat of a further substantial increase in the national debt. Treasury 3¼s of '49 closed ¼ of a point higher and the 3s of '51 were ⅛ higher. The indirect obligations and Liberties were proportionately improved.

Corporation Issues Advance.

A long list of domestic corporation bonds climbed 1 to more than 3 points, several to levels above the best prices of 1934. Speculative railroad bonds were actively dealt in and it was in this group that most of the best advances were scored. A number of utility issues recovered some of the ground they lost last week.

Several issues equaled or broke through the 1934 highs, including Santa Fe adjustment 4s, American Telephone 5s, Duquesne Light 4½s, Pennsylvania 4½s, and Union Pacific 4s. Others selling higher included obligations of Rochester Gas and Electric, New York Steam, Midvale Steel and International Cement.

Secondary Issues Higher.

In the secondary issues gains running up to a point or more were registered by obligations of New York Central, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Postal Telegraph, Gould Coupling, Pressed Steel Car, Southern Pacific, Southern railway, Walworth, Wabash and Warren Brothers.

With the resumption of back payments of interest on some Brazilian loans a number of these issues rallied a point or more. Other Latin-American loans closed firm in quiet trading. Strength in many of the German and Italian loans was a feature of the European list, reflecting the better outlook as a result of the Franco-Italian political discussions.

Art Metal.

Investors' Guide: I have been advised to buy stock in Art Metal works, but before I invest I would be very grateful for an opinion from you on it. Accept my thanks for past advice.—H. E.

Answer: Art Metal Works, Inc., whose main plant is at Newark, N. J., manufactures a wide variety of metal products such as ecclesiastical statuary, ornaments, toys, lamps, smokers' sundries, etc. More than 12,000 different items are turned out.

The company reported a profit of $22,000, or 10 cents a share, for 1933, against losses of $72,000 and $149,000 for 1932 and 1931, respectively. Net income in 1930 was $211,000, or 94 cents a share.

On April 17, 1934, Alexander Harris, treasurer, said that operations in the first quarter, which usually are unprofitable, were in the black.

The company finished 1933 with current assets, including cash of $220,000, of $931,000 and current liabilities of $146,000.

Capitalization consists solely of 223,494 shares of $5 par common stock. After a two year suspension of dividends the stock was placed on a quarterly basis of 10 cents a share on Oct. 1, 1934. An extra of 5 cents a share was paid Dec. 21. The stock is somewhat speculative.

Central Illinois Light.

Investors' Guide: Shall thank you for information regarding Central Illinois Light company. Shall I buy the common stock?—Mrs. M. S. L.

Answer: This subsidiary of Commonwealth and Southern corporation supplies electricity to Peoria, Pekin, Springfield and 57 other Illinois communities having a population of 266,000, and natural gas to 14. The company also does some steam heat and hot water business.

Earnings over a long period of years have covered preferred dividend requirements by a wide margin. They were earned 2.66 times in the twelve months to Oct. 31, 1934, the same margin by which they were earned in the preceding twelve months. In 1933 they were earned 2.43 times, and in preceding years by larger margin.

Current position at the close of 1933 was satisfactory.

The preferred is high grade. The common is all owned by Commonwealth and Southern corporation.

Total Share Sales.

Investors' Guide: I would greatly appreciate it if you would furnish me with the total sales of the New York Stock exchange on Dec. 28, 1934.—D. L.

Answer: On Dec. 28, 1934, sales on the New York Stock exchange totaled 1,276,051 shares.

JOHN WALGREEN BUYS RESIDENCE ON SOUTH SIDE

Standard Oil Obtains New Site on 75th Street.

BY AL CHASE.

John R. Walgreen, head of the Walgreen company, yesterday purchased the residence of Mrs. Rose L. Eisendrath at 4441 Drexel boulevard for an indicated $20,000. Title was taken by Myrtle R. Walgreen, his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Walgreen, who now are living in an apartment at 6912 South Shore drive, will move to their new home as soon as alterations and redecorations are completed.

The house just purchased was erected twenty-two years ago by the late William N. Eisendrath, head of the Monarch Leather company, a concern which his sons still operate on Goose Island. Armstrong, Furst & Tilton were architects. It cost about $45,000, contains sixteen rooms, and is of French design with exterior walls of brown brick and stone.

Paneled Throughout.

It is paneled throughout with walnut, mahogany, and other expensive woods, and has a large recreation room with brick paneling in the basement. The property has a frontage of 75 feet on Drexel boulevard and a depth of 250 feet.

H. R. Hoffman of McKey & Poague was the only broker in the transaction.

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana purchased the northwest corner of East 75th street and Yates avenue, 134x132, from the South Shore Service Station, Inc., which has been operating the property.

To Discuss Financing.

Financing of residential construction under title 2 of the national housing act will be discussed at the January meeting of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects this evening at the Architects' club, 1801 Prairie avenue. Speakers will be Carroll H. Sudler, district director of the Federal Housing administration; Leo Cotter, chief underwriter; Percy E. Wagner, chief valuator, and John O. Merrill, architectural supervisor.

Stockholders in the Federal Home Loan bank of Chicago yesterday received their second annual 2 per cent dividend amounting to $233,005. According to Henry G. Zander, chairman of the board, the dividend total is 69.8 per cent above a year ago.

EGG PRICES CLOSE LOWER; BUTTER DIPS ⅛ TO ¼ CENT

January eggs dropped sharply at the opening on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, but recovered part of the break and closed ¼c per dozen lower. Other egg deliveries were unchanged. Butter closed ⅛@¼c per lb. lower.

Warm weather and prospects of continued mild temperatures led to fear that fresh egg production would increase in the near future.

Butter held within a narrow range, displaying moderate strength in the last few minutes on short coverings.

Sales: Butter, 70 cars; eggs, 37 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car. Prices follow:

LARD AT HIGHEST LEVELS SINCE SEPTEMBER, 1927

Lard futures sold at a new high for the season on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday with prices at the best level since September, 1927. Strength in hogs and corn brought in fair commission house buying, and while the top level was not maintained, due to profit taking and hedging, the finish was at net gains of 7½ to 12½ points. Bellies gained 5 to 20 points.

A better demand was reported for hog products, especially for green meats. Cash lard closed at 12.92 cents, loose and leaf at 13⅝ cents, and bellies at 16⅝ cents per pound. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw. Following the 2 point decline Saturday, the market steadied today and regained the setback, closing at 2.85c per lb, with a little more interest reported at that figure. Sales included 22,750 bags of Cubas from store on Saturday at 2.83c; today 22,750 bags of Puerto Rican at 2.85c, and 36,000 Philippines from store at 2.83@2.85c. The week-end announcement that the quota for the short tons by the agricultural administration, or about 117,000 tons less than last year's quota was bullishly interpreted in the futures market and responsible for further advances. The market closed 1 to 4 points higher in the old contract and 3 to 4 points higher in the new. Sales: 19,550 tons in the old and 13,700 tons in the other.

PRICES OF HOGS SET NEW MARK FOR 51 MONTHS

Best hogs rose to a top of $10.85 yesterday, including the $2.25 processing tax, the highest price in 51 months. Steers at $11.50 sold the highest in 37 months.

The hog market as a whole showed 10 to 25 cents advance for the day and the price level was more than $2 above the December low spot. Decreased receipts were responsible for the upturn.

Beef steers and most butcher stock rose 25 to 40 cents on good demand. Occasional sales in this division were as much as 50 cents above the Saturday close.

Sheep and lambs were slow and the market fell 25 to 35 cents. Packers bought largely around $9.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The following figures on hog prices include $2.25 per hundredweight collected by the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are per 100 pounds of live animal:

You will be given an exclusive territory filled with prospects in Chicago or North Shore or Western Suburbs and be 100% protected in this territory, being paid a bonus and percentage arrangement on all sales made therein.

As we are only looking for a limited number of men apply this morning only at

We finance you, maintain offices for your success and thoroughly train and supervise you with the necessary information and knowledge that is required to develop this "gold mine."

If you are a go-getter, honest, clean cut and willing to work.
